Sukarno Steps Aside

JAKARTA, Indonesia AP – President Sukarno tonight surrendered his presidential powers to Indonesian strongman Gen. Suharto and thus ended 21 years of one - man rule.

By his own statement, he remains president in name only and even this title may be taken away from him. Informed sources said Congress at its meeting next month may take a final disposition of his future.

There was speculation whether Sukarno would leave Indonesia. But his Japanese Wife, Ratna Sari Dewi, said in Tokyo she did not believe he will leave the country. She is in Tokyo to await the birth of her first child.

Sukarno had surrendered most of his powers to Suharto last March but he remained a symbol to millions of Indonesians as the father of Indonesia's independence.

A signed statement by Sukarno said he gave all power to Suharto "for the sake of the people and the country."

Sukarno's stepdown was not a full resignation but was a surrender of executive powers.

The 65 - year -old president, who led this huge Southeast Asian nation from Dutch colonial rule to independence will remain president in name only.

His decision came following two weeks of intensive pressure from Suharto and his military followers.

Sukarno had been warned that if he did not hand over powers he would be investigated by Congress and possibly brought to trial.

There were no indications what compromises were made with Sukarno. However, political and military sources said Suharto agreed to insure that Sukarno would not be brought to trial.

Sukarno's statement said Suharto would have to report to him regularly on how he was using the presidential powers. But this was probably a face-saving gesture.

Following an attempt by Indonesian Communists to seize power Oct. 1, 1965, many of the coup leaders were brought to trial and some implicated Sukarno in the attempt.

Sukarno's handover of powers leaves Suharto as the sole leader of this nation of 109 million people. He faces a complex array of problems brought on by years of mismanagement and corruption under Sukarno.

Suharto, 45, a four-star general faces an immediate task of bringing about some form of economic stability. The country is still divided politically over loyalty to Sukarno.

Suharto also faces a problem of maintaining unity within his own military ranks.

Although he will be nominally in command, Foreign Minister Malik will take the brunt of organizaing Indonesia's foreign policy.

Political sources said Congress will go ahead with its special session on Sukarno and that the possibility still remains that it will strip away Sukarno's last vestiges of power.

These sources said Sukarno was not completely ousted at this point for fear of creating greater disunity in this troubled country. They added that further decisions on Sukarno's future are expected when Congress meets March 7.

Man Dies in Beauty Shop

Charlie P. Shumpert, 150la Osage, was found dead in a beauty shop in Sunset Addition owned and operated by his wife, Mrs. Sue Ella Shumpert, this morning at 7:30 a.m., Coroner Gene Nunnelee reported.

He had last been seen by members of his family at 10:30 p.m. Monday, Nunnelee said. Shumpert apparently entered the beauty shop Tuesday, turned on an unvented gas space heater and laid down on the couch to take a nap, the coroner said.

The beauty shop is usually closed on Mondays and Tuesdays.

The family became concerned and started looking for Shumpert. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Mattie Riggs, passed by the beauty shop this morning and noticed the gas heater had been turned on. Shumpert was found lying on the couch dead.

Nunnelee ruled the death as accidental asphyxiation and said there was no evidence of foul play. The body was taken to Dotson Funeral Home.

House Advances Shared Time Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The Missouri House Tuesday advanced the "shared time" bill into position for final passage.

It would allow students from private and parochial schools to attend special courses in public schools that would be at least partially financed by state funds.

But by a 78-77 vote the House refused to extend the bill to cover so-called "educationally deprived" students because there was no clear interpretation of what that meant.

The vote for advancement was 94-64, giving the measure far more than the 82 needed for final House passage.

Robbery Report Is Hoax

A service station attendant and a friend tried to stage a hoax armed robbery Tuesday night at the Flying G Shell Service Station, Highway 61 South, police reported today.

Donnie W. Shoptaw, 17, Louisville, Ky., and Carl E. Rowe, 19, Melvin, Ky., were taken into police custody at about 9:30 p.m. After questioning by the State Highway patrol, Scott County authorities and Sikeston police, both men admitted to the theft of $83.03 from the station, police said.

Rowe was employed as an attendant at the station for a little more than a week, police said. He was found tied with an electrical cord and gagged with a shop towel in the restroom of the station at about 8:15 p.m. by Fred Spencer of Elkton, Md., a customer, police stated.

Rowe first told investigating officer Sgt. Richard Wallace that a man wearing a black topcoat stuck a gun in his ribs, took about $80 from the cash register, bound and gagged him and forced him into the restroom.

Rowe also said that the robbery took place about 10 minutes after a customer identified as Clarence Rafferty, 610 Carroll, left the station. Rowe showed Rafferty's ticket to police.

Chief Arthur Bruce said he was suspicious from the start and became more so when Rowe told conflicting stories.

After questioning by Chief Bruce and Sheiff John Dennis both Rowe and Shoptaw admitted the robbery was a contrivance.

Shoptaw had tied Rowe and waited on a customer as he was leaving the station. The customer was not identified, police said.

Shoptaw took police to the Dunn Hotel, where he had rented a room, and returned the stolen money. The change was hidden above the door in the room and the bills were hidden between the wallpaper and the wall, police said.

Both men will be turned over to New Madrid county authorities today and probably will be charged with grand larceny for a theft of more than $50, police reported.

House Passes Bill to Hike Jobless Benefits

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House today passed a bill to increase the maximum weekly unemployment benefit from $45 a week to $55.50.

The bill was introduced by Rep. Richard Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, majority floor leader. It sets up a new formula for determining the amount of unemployment based on 50 per cent of the average weekly income in Missouri. The average now is computed by the Department of Labor and is $111 a week.

In debate before final passage Rep. Robert O. Snyder, R-Kirkwood, questioned raising unemployment benefits 24 per cent. He said they should not increase faster than the cost of living. Unemployment benefits have gotten out of balance in the cost of living, he said.

The unemployment compensation fund has a surplus at this time and the new bill would not increase unemployment payments by employers, Rabbitt said.

A companion bill, to lower the maximum premium of employers for unemployment compensation insurance from 7.5 per cent to 6 per cent, passed without discussion and on a lopsided vote.

Also without discussion but with a reverse result was defeat of a bill to eliminate the present one week of waiting before a laid-off employe could claim unemployment compensation. The vote defeating the measure was 55-86.

The House sent to the Senate a bill to set up a permanent commission on the aging, to consider ways of making the sunset days of older Missourians more comfortable and productive.

Tuesday night a capacity crowd heard pleas for enactment of a medicaid bill for welfare recipients.

Mayor A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis, Mayor Ilus W. Davis of Kansas City and Mayor John G. Ghristy of Jefferson City, former president of the Missouri Municipal League, said enactment of the bill sponsored by Rep. Thomas A. Walsh, D-St. Louis, is a must if the sick and needy are to be cared for.

Cervantes said St. Louis will have a $14 million deficit in its hospital costs for the needy and Davis said the Kansas City bill would amount to more than $6 million.

Opponents of the plan will be heard next week.

Another House committee heard Dr. Edward C. Lambert of the University of Missouri urge establishment of a statewide educational television system that would cost $16 million over a 10-year period. The starting cost would be $1.5 million.

The plan, similar to one defeated two years ago, calls for establishment of a central transmitter, probably near Jefferson City, and 17 relay towers to cover 95 per cent of the state's population.

Another House committee heard Rep. George Parker, R-Columbia, advocate his bill to limit the salaries of all third class county officials to $15,000 a year.

Parker described it as a stopgap measure until the whole complicated fee system for county officials can be studied.

He said the Boone County collector reported compensation of $28,376 in 1965, the Franklin County collector $27,783 and a number of others well over $15,000.

The committee decided to study the proposal further.

The same decision was reached by the Senate Agricultural Committee on the perennial bill to abolish open range. Only about 896,000 acres are left where livestock are allowed to roam at large, more than half of it privately owned and the rest owned by the State Conservation Commission or the U.S. Forest Service.

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved two bills.

One, already passed by the House, would require state agencies to inform the legislature and the budget officer of their requests for federal funds.

The other would set up an emergency fund to keep money short state agencies operating between legislative sessions.

Judge Drops Rape Charge

A charge of forcible rape filed Saturday against Charles Howard Lambert, 17, 225 Young, was dismissed Tuesday in Magistrate court, following a change in the girl's story, assistant prosecuting attorney Tom Gilmore reported today.

The case is still under investigation.

Lambert, a Negro, was charged with the rape of a 17 year old Negro girl from Sikeston, Friday night on Brown Spur Road.

Christmas Spirit Sought in February

Give to the Scott County Tuberculosis Association in February?

It may sound odd but Executive Secretary Thelma Stacy hopes that many residents will do it.

She annually mails reminders to approximately 1,000 residents who fail to respond to the annual Christmas seal fund drive. The seals are mailed in mid-November.

The reminders encourage residents to contribute before the association's fiscal year ends in March.

Seal sales have been good. They have brought in $2,132, which exceeds the $2,127 return of a year ago.

Agencies Encouraged CIA to Invest Privately

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency sought to curtail its financing of private organizations in the past but ran into objections from other arms of the government, says Sen. Milton R. Young.

The North Dakota Republican said every investment the CIA made in an organization outside the government was undertaken on written instructions, apparently from the National Security Council.

He said the spy agency's checks were subject to scrutiny in the Bureau of the Budget, like the Security Council, a White House agency.

Young said in some instances CIA financial support originally was promoted by the State Department.

Young, senior Republican on the Senate panel which oversees CIA financing and operation, said the intelligence agency was trying to get some of its instructions changed prior to the public storm that broke last week with disclosure it had been subsidizing the National Student Association.

Young said secrecy restrictions barred his giving a more detailed description. He talked after CIA Director Richard Helms briefed the Senate panel for three hours Tuesday. Helms also met with the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate subcommittee, said Helms reported the agency is withdrawing financial support of some private organizations.

He would not quote Helms further. Russell did not make clear whether the Helms report involved a halt in aid to groups still secretly receiving CIA funds. Helms would not answer newsmen's questions after the hearing.

In other developments:

— Sources close to President Johnson said he will make no statement about CIA subsidies until a panel of three government officials completes its review of the situation.

— Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he flatly opposes secret government investment in private organizations.

— The student body president of the University of California at Berkeley, Dan McIntosh, said the National Student Association's "international program is dead. The credibility of United States students abroad is greatly damaged." He is on the NSA board.

— Peter O'Donnell Jr., Texas Republican chairman, said the Jones - O'Donnell Foundation which he heads has served as a conduit for CIA funds.

— Republican Reps. Donald E. Lukens of Ohio and John E. Hunt of New Jersey demanded a congressional investigation to determine "how much of the millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money the CIA channelled to private organizations was used for leftist purposes."

The presidential sources said Johnson does not want to prejudge the case, wants solid facts before speaking publicly and wants the benefit of judgment and recommendations of the investigating panel of Helms, Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner.

Morehouse To Vote on Bond Issue

MOREHOUSE - A bond issue of approximately $190,000 for construction of a new elementary school building will be on the ballot of the annual C-12 school election April 4, Thad B. Ryan, superintendent of schools, reports.

Plans call for a building that contains 12 classrooms and office space for grades 1-8.

C-12 patrons will also vote for candidates to fill two school board vacancies. Norman Crumpecker and Charles Menees, incumbent board members, have filed for re-election.

The closing date for filing as a school board candidate is March 4. Anyone wishing to file as a candidate should contact Paul Sherrard, secretary of the board, Ryan said.

Policing of Atomic Sites Disputed

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have told the European Common Market nations they can't police their own compliance with the proposed treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Qualified sources at the 17-nation disarmament conference said this has emerged as one of the main obstacles to a treaty.

West Germany and Italy — supported behind the scenes by France — want supervision on their soil to be carried out by the six-nation European Atomic Energy Association-Euratom.

The Soviet Union has denounced this as an attempt at "self inspection". American negotiators seem to have accepted the Soviet view.

In Soviet-American talks in New York over the past three months, the two nuclear superpowers agreed that the only acceptable controlling body was the 95-nation International Atomic Energy Agency —IAEA —based in Vienna.

When the disarmament talks resumed Tuesday following a six-month recess, U.S. delegate William C. Foster told newsmen "controls should be carried out by a wholly international agency able to look at safeguards throughout the world."

Foster said such an agency already exists in the IAEA "and we believe it should have the job of ensuring that peaceful (nuclear) products are not diverted to military purposes."

France, which boycotts the disarmament conference, has given notice it will not sign any nonproliferation treaty negotiated here.

As a nuclear military power, France would not be subject to controls in any case.

Despite the objections from West Germany, Italy and other countries, American officials are confident the treaty will be signed this summer.

West Germany and Italy object to IAEA controls on two main grounds:

They fear that IAEA inspectors could conduct industrial espionage on behalf of the Russians, who are members of the agency, and they argue that the treaty setting up Euratom does not allow its members to submit to controls from any other body.

In a speech to the conference, Soviet delegate Alexei Roshchin said such objections were attempts to disrupt the negotiations.

Foster said some compromise would have to be worked out with the Euratom members to permit IAEA inspection. He stressed that this would still leave plenty of work for Euratom to do, such as distributing and supervising plutonium provided by the United States for the Common Market countries.

"We participated in the formation of Euratom," he said. "We have encouraged it and made a treaty with it. We are not attacking Euratom. Euratom does a number of things besides applying safeguards."

Production Halted At Fisher Plant

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Production at the Fisher Body plant in St. Louis was suspended today because of a strike at General Motors' Fisher plant in Mansfield, Ohio.

Work on the car assembly line at the St. Louis Chevrolet plant also was halted because of the strike. The shutdown at St. Louis will affect 2,200 Fisher workers and an additional 1,200 men on the Chevrolet passenger car line.

Spokesmen said work is continuing on the Chevrolet truck and Corvette assembly lines.

The reason for the shutdown at St. Louis was given as a lack of passenger car panel caused by the Ohio strike.

School Bonds Rejected

BENTON - A $495,000 bond issue for constructions of a school building to house all elementary pupils in the Scott County R-4 district was defeated Tuesday.

Although the vote was 351-324 in favor of the issue, it failed to pass because it lacked the necessary two-thirds majority.

Voting by townships:
Benton, 120-139.
Blodgett, 17-136.
Diehlstadt, 101-13.
Lusk Chapel, 52-5.
Commerce, 51-31.

There were 10 absentee votes cast. All favored the issue.

If passed, the new building would have been built on the Kelly high school site. Plans called for 13 classrooms, kindergarten and special education facilities, speech correction, remedial workrooms, elementary library program, health facilities and a multi-purpose room to serve as a cafeteria, play area, community group meeting room and grade school athletic center.

Proponents of the issue argued that the new facility would have attracted and encouraged the tenure of teachers and would have been more economical to run as a centralized plant.

Bi-State Toll Roads Discussed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri have sounded each other out on bi-state projects, particularly a stateline toll road from Kansas City south.

In a news conference held after their 1½-hour private discussion Tuesday in Kansas City, Docking held out little hope for a jointly built turnpike, and Hearnes declined to comment on its possibilities.

"It would be very beneficial," said Hearnes, "but we would have to pass legislation first."

Toll road bills are under consideration in both state legislatures. Kansas has completed a feasibility study of a projected turnpike on its side of the line, and Missouri has talked about another on its side.

Docking and Hearnes also said they discussed plans to set up a bi-state air pollution compact, largely for the Kansas City area which sprawls across both sides of the state line.

"Missouri has offered to Kansas a suggested draft on air pollution," Hearnes said.

"It is speculative at this time," Docking told newsmen.

Hearnes added, "I think this is something the states can handle without federal intervention. It is one place the states can work out a solution. If they can't, then the federal government will step in."

Docking said he and Hearnes brought up the possibility of a joint new bridge for U.S. 36 across the Missouri River at St. Joseph.

Legislative leaders of both states took part in the governors' conference. Rex Whitton, retired federal highway administrator, also attended. Others present were John Montgomery, Junction City, Kan., chairman of the Kansas Highway Commission, and Jack Stapleton of Stanberry, Mo., chairman of the Missouri Highway Commission.

Home Rule Plan Wins First Test

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- A proposed constitutional amendment to give St. Louis County full home rule powers won its first big battle in the Missouri Legislature Tuesday.

The Senate advanced it to position for passage without change on a unanimous voice vote.

The vote came, however, only after the Senate beat down a substitute offered by Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, which would have limited the county's power to change only certain fields. It lost 4-23.

Young said a number of mayors in northern St. Louis County feared the proposal would destroy municipalities and create a centralized county government.

But his opponents said the only issue was full county home rule.

As advanced, and if approved by both the Senate and the House, the proposal would go on the 1968 general election ballot.

Also moved ahead was a bill to give St. Louis County control over air pollution on a county-wide basis and another to permit Kansas City to levy a 2-cent tax to support its city museum. The tax would raise an estimated $220,000 a year.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
HIS GREATNESS ENDURES

Time is the severest judge of greatness. Though the debunking school of historians performs a useful service by cutting folk heroes down to human size occasionally, the men that a nation reveres for generation after generation are usually deserving of that honor.

It is 235 years since the birth of George Washington. In our kindergartens, walls are decorated with cutouts of hatchets and cherry trees, mythical symbols of Washington's unswerving rectitude. Older students learn that he commanded the Continental Army during the War of Independence, that he later became first president of the United States. American history majors in college may make more detailed study of his military campaigns, his contribution to the writing of the Constitution, the actual crises he faced as chief executive.

But for most of us, Washington was the man who won the Revolution, the wealthy but democratic aristocrat who lived at Mount Vernon and became the Father of His Country, the man whose birthday is an excuse for a holiday. We are content to let it go at that.

If that were all there was to it, why then should Washington be as equally respected by professional students of history? Because his greatness holds up even under the most critical examination of his life and works.

There have been abler generals in American history, more successful businessmen, more energetic and innovative presidents. The simple fact remains, however, that without Washington there would have been no Revolution, no Constitution, probably no United States as we know it today.

Washington's leadership alone virtually held together the tiny ragtag American army during the long years of the war. He was the only man respected enough by all factions to preside over the Constitutional Convention of 1787. He was the only man who towered above partisanship, the only possible choice for president of a new federal government that no one was at all sure could work.

We venerate him not only because of his place in history, however. His memory is a continuing inspiration to living men, who must face the crises and changes of their own times. Because of this, Americans 235 years from now will honor George Washington.

REUTHER'S REVOLT

The AFL-CIO Executive Council met at Bal Harbour, Fla., on Monday, (Feb. 20).

The Florida climate notwithstanding, the atmosphere at Bal Harbour in mid-February is likely to be chilly. Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers, former chairman of the AFL-CIO economic policy and organizing committees, and member of the AFL-CIO Executive Council, has resigned all three of these latter posts. He has taken with him three other UAW leaders, Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the union, and Leonard Woodcook and Pat Greathouse, vice presidents. These four on Feb. 3 withdrew from most of their posts in the larger union amalgam.

In a 6,000 word letter to the auto union's 1,500 locals, Reuther on Feb. 9 said that UAW's disagreements with AFL-CIO were "basic and fundamental" and membership in their old offices for the UAW people would be "merely an exercise in futility." The resignations and the letter are sure to cool the deliberations at the winter meeting of the AFL-CIO Executive Council.

Reuther's personal disagreements with AFL-CIO President George Meany have long been a matter of public record. He has threatened in the past to quit the Executive Council. When the AFL and CIO merged in 1955, Reuther was persuaded to take second place in the combine on the ground that he would eventually succeed Meany.

Now Meany, though 72 years old and obliged by a hip ailment to walk with a cane, has made it quite clear that he has no intention of retiring in Reuther's favor. And Reuther, nearing 60, appears to see that time is no longer on his side.

Meany, once known as "The Honest Plumber," is one of the labor movement's great conservatives. Reuther would like labor to take more leadership in the civil rights movement and build bridges of "international understanding" for disarmament and peaceful co-existence of different social economic systems. An open break came last June when Meany decided to have American labor boycott the International Labor Organization conference in Geneva after a Communist Polish government official had been elected president.

Reuther in his letter of Feb. 9 was careful not to take the UAW completely out of the AFL-CIO. The logistics of the labor movement are interesting. The AFL-CIO has 13.5 million members, of which the UAW represents 1.5 million. The labor movement's biggest membership is that of the 1.7 million-member International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Ironically, Meany and Reuther were most in agreement when they cooperated in 1957 to dump the Teamsters after Senate rackets investigators had uncovered the transactions of Dave Beck, James R. Hoffa, and other Teamsters officials. Now there is some speculation that the Teamsters and the UAW might drift together.

The surest loser from disaffection in Big Labor is the Democratic Party. President Johnson in his economic report of Jan. 26 made a big concession to labor in letting go of the so-called wage-price guideposts in a year of much labor-management negotiation.

Meany a year ago had said: "I do not buy the idea that we have to toady along behind any political party." Reuther has long been identified with the left Democratic spectrum. But last November in Michigan, once a UAW fief, his union could not summon enough political moxie to elect G. Mennen Williams, once the state's most consistent vote-getter, to the U.S. Senate.

New York state is hard pressed for sources of revenue. Costs are staggering. Unions have a strangle hold on the state and New York City. Consumers groan under a staggering tax burden. Industries are moving out daily.

So the legislature has approved a lottery to raise money for education.

Tickets will sell for $2. Prizes will range up to $100,000 and awards will be based on a combination of horse races and drawings of slips from a drum.

The amount of tax money this tax on gambling will produce is not known.

Tax benefits will pyramid. Prizes will be subject to federal and state income tax and to a New York city income tax if the winner lives there.

The state lottery recalls the levy that Mississippi once applied to liquor sales during prohibition known as the blackmarket tax.

Now that New York state has broken the ice and decided to condone gambling by taxing it, the possibilities of meeting future revenue needs there almost are unlimited.

Just for example, why not enact the following tax laws:

A 20 per cent tax on the proceeds from the numbers racket.

A 10 per cent tax on LSD.

A 25 per cent tax on narcotic sales.

A 35 per cent levy on all revenue from prostitution.

A 20 per cent tax on all proceeds from burglaries with a 40 per cent surtax if burglars commit murder before they escape.

A 10 per cent levy on all revenue obtained from bank holdups.

A 10 per cent levy on all union dues.

A 20 per cent tax on all financial operations from the underworld, including revenue from loan shark operations and protection rackets.

A $25 per head tax on all visitors coming into New York City.

Keep the faith, Baby!

"No," said the conductor dryly. "We had to chase it across a field."

COMPUTER GOES ON TRAFFIC JAM 'DIET'

Motorists in Toronto, Canada, are enjoying a preview of a system which will eventually come to all big cities.

Conscious that the economic loss from traffic tie-ups and accidents was costing the metropolitan area some $111 million annually, and realizing that there was one vehicle for every 20 feet of paved road in the city, with the ration shrinking, Toronto decided to do something about it.

It brought in a Univac 1107 electronic computer to control traffic. This fast-acting brain has the capacity to examine and analyze as many as 1,000 intersections in one second. In the one-thousandth of a second which it devotes to each intersection, the computer:

. Reads the volume and speed of traffic as reported by 2,- detection devices scattered along the streets.

. Calculates the density of traffic flow by dividing the number of vehicles by the time to detect them.

. Reads the traffic signal and notes how long it has been red or green.

. Computes the correct length of time the signal should remain green in a certain direction.

. Compares this computed time with the time the signal has already been green. If the two items are equal, it sends a signal to change the light. If the actual "green" time is less than the computed "green time, it goes on to examine the next intersection, returning to this one a second later.

. Finally, when the computer orders a signal change, it checks to see if the change actually takes place. If not, it repeats the order. If the light still doesn't change, the computer notifies a human operator and turns the problem over to him.

Because of the computer, says one writer, it is as if Toronto had added an extra lane to each of the city's four-lane streets - without turning a shovelful of dirt.

"Certainly not," replied the collector. "Hop right in."

ENEMY OF FREEDOM

Once again, a bill has been introduced in Congress to create a Federal Office of Consumers. Its announced purpose is to "secure within the Federal Government effective representation of the economic interests of consumers."

The same measure has been offered twice before, without result. And one can hope that the same thing will happen this time.

The trouble with all such proposals, well-meant as they may be, is that they are based on the premise that a faceless bureaucracy can be trusted to do what is good for us, and that the average consumer is something of a nitwit who is endlessly entrapped and exploited by conscienceless manufacturers, processors, packagers, retailers and all others involved. The also proposed federal packaging and labeling laws are examples of this thinking. They ignore the fact that existing legislation of long standing, state and local as well as federal, provides adequate and effective protection from the buyer-beware element. They also ignore the more important fact that the housewife is the canniest of buyers who, once misled, does not return to the same well again. As the burnt child dreads the fire, she goes to another product or another store -- and those who attempt to exploit her are not long for the economic world.

Beyond that, these proposed laws have their roots in the worst of all philosophies -- that there must be a Big Brother who watches over and controls every aspect of life. This is the philosophy that is the enemy of human freedom.

A Guiding Hand from the Past

H.L. Hunt Says

"I TOLD YOU SO!"

The Soviet Union and USA were a team supplying planes, ships, armaments and ammunition in preventing a 90% Moslem populace from overcoming Communism. In addition, Sen. Frank Graham extracted hundreds of millions of dollars from American taxpayers for Sukarno. I was often quoted as saying, "This alleged neutralist is the second most dangerous man in the world to the cause of Freedom", when Khrushchev was first worst.

The U. N. stripped the Netherlands of their possession, New Guinea, declaring the natives would decide who would govern them. Sukarno saved the people, including the tiny Papuans, of the chore of deciding. He provided the natives with such a "friendly" dictatorship as only he could supply.

October, 1965, Sukarno enlisted the aid of Communist China to overrun Malaysia. The long-distance letter writers who persuaded the Dominicans not to restore Juan Bosch, formerly ousted for subversion, to the Presidency, turned their attention to ousting Sukarno, hoping if successful there, to pay their respects to Fidel Castro.

Indonesian students, encouraged by "Red" Raborn's rejuvenated CIA, staged an uprising, slaying 600,000 plus Communists. This required General Suharto and other generals to strip Sukarno of his "President for life" title and the misrule of the third-ranking nation in the world in natural resources.

Attempting a comeback, Sukarno waved a copy of PLAYBOY Magazine containing an H. L. Hunt interview as evidence that the USA was robbing him of his reign.

His celebrated Christmas gift to Indonesians failed of welcome. The Indonesian Parliament decreed Sukarno must face trial for treason and expropriating the country's finances.

Confronted with Sukarno's charge at Christmas time, I was proud to admit I had been trying to oust Sukarno since 1959. Today I enjoy the luxury of "I told you so." HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

President Sends Word to Labor Leaders He'll Not Push Strike-Curbing Bills

Washington, D.C. -- A labor leader reporting from the warm air front in Bal Harbour, Fla., revealed that "regardless of what you hear, we're all happy now that we've heard that President Johnson will not recommend any tough anti - strike laws."

By "everybody," the union chief referred to that august body, the AFL-CIO's Executive Council. Most of the 29 members of the high command had been worried, but now that they've heard directly from Presidential couriers that he will not urge any new drastic collective bargaining legislation, the tropical sun seems much brighter.

But not for Lyndon Johnson it doesn't. His is a melancholy position.

He is a crisis counter. Some of those close to him recall that after settling the 1965 national steel strike threat, he mused aloud and it sounded like "why couldn't that contract expire in his year, not mine?"

By "his year," the President meant that of the solid, laconic, imperturbable, ever itinerant I.W. (Abe) Abel, president of the United Steelworkers, who now will replace Walter Reuther as CIO spokesman inside the merged movement.

Abel's presidential term expires in 1969. But the national steel industry pact runs out in mid-1968 -- the year Mr. Johnson does battle again. Thus he will face a Presidential campaign right at the height of a threatened national steel strike --which he could not permit to run on and on as they have in the past.

Yet "Abe" is a determined man. He is known to have told the AFL-CIO Executive Council not too long ago he is tired of having the government tell the steelworkers they cannot strike. This has been going on too long and he doubts the White House will prevail next time around.

All this will develop in the midst of the second session of the 90th Congress. The public will howl. And it will ask why there is no strike-curbing legislation on the books.

But insiders know that President Johnson will not need to wait until mid-'68 for other labor crisis to anger the public. Even now the Transport Workers Union (TWU) is beginning to schedule the series of section by section, yard by yard, garage by garage talks which precede presentation of formal demands on the famed New York City Transit Authority.

The Authority has not yet recovered from the billion dollar 1966 stoppage. But it has a contrast bargain date this fall. And the truly tough veteran of labor wars Douglas MacMahon, TWU Secretary-Treasurer, who held the fort when the dying Mike Quill was jailed and hospitalized, said about a year ago when talking of the $60 million victory:

"This is only the first bite. We'll soon be coming back for a second."

New York City, vortex and financial center of the world, may well be struck again.

It was the TWU's 13-day subway and bus paralysis which forced President Johnson to pledge in his 1966 State of the Union message that he would present proposals for the handling of emergency strikes which threaten the nation's security and welfare.

To prepare such legislation he named a task force headed by Under Secretary of State Katzenbach. But whatever it produced was stillborn.

He knows the Republicans have him there and will not let him forget his public pledge. What disturbs him is that the Republicans who have taken after him are the liberals -- Senators Javits, Morse, Kuchel, Percy, Hatfield and Monroney. He cannot do passionate battle with these moderates as easily as he could assault the conservatives.

The President is not too much concerned over the threatened truck strike. It can be handled.

And he still has some time on the "Reuther-auto thing."

What disturbs the White House is the threatened April 12 national railroad strike. Roy Siemiller's machinists are in this one. They are the ones who hit the airlines last summer.

They simply don't believe the railroads are any more sacred than the airlines. They will strike if they don't get the big wage increase they seek.

And that's closer than you think, but not closer than the President thinks. What can he do?

Propose compulsory legislation? Labor and industry would fight that.

Accept a proposal for seizure of vital installations or transport facilities which are struck? That puts the government into the railroading business and on everybody's blacklist.

Ask for extension of anti-trust laws to cover labor in the event of a crippling, nationwide strike?

But that would mean the end of his alliance with the members of the powerful AFL-CIO Executive Council.

Yet nothing embitters the public like an inconveniencing strike on airlines or railroads. If a mass industry is struck, the public is real casual. Hit a trolley or rail line or food supply trucking firm and the cultural revolution is on.

Mr. Johnson knows this. So he is not happy, though he made it a gay stay in Florida for the labor leaders by sending word he'll play it by ear.

It's an experienced ear -- so he well knows the sound he hears on the home front is not mere thunder.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

MRS. POWELL'S REBUFF

On Sept. 1, Drew Pearson reported that Mrs. Adam Clayton Powell had come to Washington with their 3 - year-old son to see her husband. She had not seen Powell for a year. In Washington she had telephoned her husband's office, been rebuffed, and returned to Puerto Rico.

Pearson reported that Mrs. Powell had not at that date received any of the $20,578.39 in salary she was supposed to be paid. "Inquiry at the House of Representatives by this column ascertained that the monthly checks are mailed not to Mrs. Powell in Puerto Rico but to Powell's office in Washington," Pearson reported.

On Feb. 16 Mrs. Powell testified before the special House Investigating Committee that she had not seen her husband for a year, that she had come to Washington in August with their son to see him, and that she had received no salary checks up until that time.

"Did you see Mr. Powell then?" Mrs. Powell was asked.

"I tried to, but I couldn't".

WASHINGTON -- On Jan. 24, 1966, the U. S. Senate in the second closed - door session since World War II voted 61 to 28 not to permit other senators except the Armed Services Committee to ride herd on the secret activities of the Central Intelligence Agency.

If that vote had been different, the country might not have been so surprised by recent disclosures that some $3 million of the taxpayers money had been spent by CIA to subsidize various student organizations represented to the public as spontaneous youth movements organized in the spirit of American free enterprise. Investigation by other senators besides the pro-military armed services committee would have disclosed this subsidy.

During the secret debate, Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., contended that the CIA played a more influential role in foreign policy than the state department; therefore his Senate Foreign Relations Committee members should be informed of the CIA's activities.

Standing near Fulbright and striking his right first into his left palm with a loud crack, Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, blasted the Foreign Relations Committee as "self - serving, self-seeking."

Russell demanded that the resolution to permit the Foreign Relations Committee to participate in supervision of CIA be referred to his committee, where of course it was certain to be killed.

Vice President Humphrey, usually a liberal, ruled against his liberal colleagues. He won the day for Russell and his conservatives.

Ten years before, the senate had also voted, 59 to 27, to defeat a proposal by Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., now senate leader, to create a joint congressional committee to oversee the CIA. The then - senate leader from Texas, now President of the United States, voted against this checkrein on central intelligence.

PUBLIC DOESN'T KNOW

Since other members of the senate and the public have been denied access to the operations of the central intelligence, this column will undertake to report on some of them -- without disclosing the more delicate operations which might involve national security.

Unquestionably the CIA has some notable accomplishments to its credit, such as spotting the arrival of Russian missiles in Cuba, preventing the pro-Communist take - over of the Congo, predicting the Chinese development of nuclear weapons, predicting the fall of Premier Ben Fella of Algeria (and possibly arranging it); and the campaign to elect pro-American President Magsaysay in the Philippines.

But here are some of the lesser known incidents, now history, which might have been prevented if the CIA had been answerable to congressional scrutiny, as is every other U.S. agency under our traditional system of government by checks and balances.

In September, 1965, Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore charged that a CIA agent was caught trying to buy intelligence information from a Singapore official and that, in order to hush up the matter, Premier Lee had been offered $3 million by central intelligence. State department officials denied Lee's charge, whereupon he produced a letter from Secretary of State Rusk, written in 1961, apologizing for the attempted bribe.

-- In Cambodia, CIA agents got involved in an attempt to overthrow Prince Sihanouk's government. Ever since that time the Prince has been vigorously anti- American.

-- In Costa Rica, in the fall of 1953, Jose Figueres, married to a Brooklyn woman but considered liberal by CIA standards, was campaigning for President. Figueres was critical of the United Fruit Company, which has cooperated closely with central intelligence. A CIA agent put a tap on Figueres's phone. It was detected and the CIA agent caught.

Figueres was elected President of Costa Rica on Nov. 8. He continued to be friendly to the United States despite central intelligence and despite the fact that he always suspected the CIA agents had conspired with Nicaraguan conservative exiles to invade Costa Rica on January 11, 1955. The invaders were forced to withdraw by the Organization of American States.

These are just a few of the subterranean operations of central intelligence, which the American people have paid for but have not known about. They are operations which have damaged American prestige aboard. More of these incidents will be reported in a future column.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the problems everyone has to solve today is whether the world is getting balmier—or you are.

The best way is to make a periodic checkup on yourself. To determine whether you have retained or lost your marbles, figure out your own sanity quotient periodically.

For example, here is a sample quiz by which you can rate yourself:

Are you able to sit down and reason with your own children intelligently, thus helping them to improve their ways?

If you had it to do all over again, would you be perfectly willing to relieve you life exactly as you have up until now?

Can you smile tolerantly when one of the guys you are playing golf with starts jabbering just as you try a game-winning putt on the 18th hole?

When your neighbor buys a new car more expensive than the one you own, does it make you feel warm all over because someone you know is getting ahead?

Are you pleased if, while preparing a backyard cookout, one of the guests steps forward with a suggestion on how to make the charcoal fire burn better?

Should someone offer to fix a traffic ticket for you, would you become righteously indignant because you feel the law ought to take its course in such matters?

After filling out your income tax forms each year, do you have the quiet satisfaction of someone who has done a good hard honest job?

Do you make it a policy to pay up all your bills at least a week ahead of time to avoid any possible confusion?

Are you the kind of fellow who refuses to bet on a sure thing because you think it's unfair to take money from suckers?

Are you the type of husband about whom other wives say to their own mates, "Why can't you be more like him?"

Do you make it a point never to lose your temper, no matter what the provocation?

When you decide to give up a bad habit, such as smoking too much or cussing out the government, can you do it easily and without a single relapse?

Well, now let's look at the box score.

If the answer to all the foregoing questions was "yes," there is no doubt that you are an unusual case. You are theoretically 100 per cent normal.

That means you are abnormally normal, the kind of a smug bore who drives everyone else around him out of their minds.

You are also probably so dully perfect and perfectly dull that your wife is planning to run off with the laundryman just to get away from you.

Elks Boxers Send Five to Nationals

Sikeston has five boxers entered in the National Golden Gloves tournament.

Five boxers, trained by Mike Blacker, assisted by Ray Hart, are sponsored by the Elks club.

They will be represented in five classes by virtue of winning the Illinois state championship at Springfield Saturday and Sunday.

The boxers entered the Illinois tournament under the Cairo Junior Chamber of Commerce banner. They are now eligible for the national tournament in Milwaukee, which opens Saturday and runs through March 3, and will represent the city of Springfield.

The five golden glovers and the boxing class they won at Springfield over the weekend were:

Emory McCauley, 126-pound open championship, by decision.

Eugene Richards, open heavyweight championship by a knockout.

James Harrington, light heavyweight novice championship, chosen light heavyweight fighter.

Sylvester Murphy, fought three bouts in the 160-pound novice division, winning two bouts by knock outs, but lost the third bout by a split decision.

He registered the fastest knock out in the tournament, when he eliminated his opponent in 38 seconds of the first round.

Class S At Lesterville

Quarterfinals Set at Both Couch and Lesterville

LESTERVILLE -- In class M regional basketball last night Eminence, second-seeded at Lesterville, downed Centerville in the opening game 76-47. St. Joseph of Farmington came out on top in the second game beating the Ellington Whippets 65-46.

The winless Centerville quintet was no match for the second seeded Eminence squad. Eminence bounded to a 14-point lead in the first quarter and raced to a 19-point lead at the half. Eminence's Jim Piatt and Dale Thorton led the scoring for them cramming in 15 points apiece. Jim Campbell and Junior Goodson led the Centerville five with 21 and 16 respectively.

In the second game St. Joseph's height put a damper on Ellington's speedsters in capturing their victory. The Hornets led the whole route up to the third quarter. Ellington raced to a two-point lead but couldn't maintain it and trailed at the end of three 42-39. Al Morgan paved the way for the Hornets getting 20 points while Ellington failed to put a man in double figures.

Tonight's action will see Lesterville and South Iron tangling in the first game and Eminence and St. Joseph fighting it out at 8:30 p.m.

At Couch last night, first round play also continued. The first seeded Van Buren Bulldogs failed to live up to expectations and collapsed, losing to the Ellsinore Redbirds 57-50. Ellsinore jumped to a 12-7 lead in the first and maintained an 8 to 10-point difference throughout the encounter. Copeland and Myers hit 14 apiece for the winners. Nelson netted 17 for the Dogs.

In the second game the Naylor Eagles defeated the Koshkonong Bluejays 66-37. Naylor is seeded number 3. Naylor had little trouble in winning, behind the shooting of Abernathy and Lunsford, who swished 19 and 14 points respectively. Moss collected 17 for the losers.

Tonight Ellsinore will battle Birch Tree in the first game and Couch will play Naylor in the nightcap for the quarterfinals at Couch.

At Lesterville, South Iron will challenge Lesterville in the 7 p.m. game and Eminence will face the tournament defending champ, St. Joseph at 8:30 p.m.

INTRODUCING — The Firebird, Pontiac Motor Division's new personal sports car, is shown above in the convertible model. The Firebird 400 features Pontiac's famed 400 cubic-inch V-8 engine, special hood with dual air scoops and wide oval red line tires. The Firebird is also available in a hardtop coupe and other engines offered include the overhead camshaft six-cylinder standard and the 326 cubic-inch V-8 optional. The Firebird is named after a legendary Indian symbol which promised action, power, beauty and youth. It was first used in 1954 on General Motors' dramatic gas turbine powered car, Firebird I, shown in the background.

Pontiac Introduces Firebird

The addition of a completely new Pontiac sports car series -- the Firebird -- was announced today by John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and general manager of Pontiac Motor Division.

Built to sports car proportions with a new approach to "long hood-short deck" styling, the Firebird will go on sale February 23.

It will be available in two styles -- a hardtop coupe and convertible.

Adding a new dimension to the personal sports car field, Firebird will offer a choice of five engines, including the Pontiac overhead camshaft six-cylinder engine as standard and up to the optional 400 cubic-inch V-8.

Standard equipment are bucket seats, three-spaced manual transmission (with four-speed manual and two-speed and three-speed automatic optional), all-vinyl interior trims and the safety items previously announced on the 1967 Pontiacs.

"The personal sports car field is probably the most rapidly growing in the industry. With the introduction of the Firebird we hope to attract new car buyers who want to step up to something extra in styling as well as performance in this segment of the market," DeLorean said.

Built on a 108.1 - inch wheelbase, the Firebird has an overall length of 188.8 inches, is 72.6 inches wide and 51.5 inches high.

The Firebird is named after a legendary Indian symbol which promised action, power, beauty and youth. It was first used in 1954 on GM's dramatic gas-turbine-powered car, Firebird I.

EXTERIOR STYLING

Exclusive styling features set the Firebird apart into a class of its own, earning new status for Pontiac's trend-setting stylists.

The distinctive Pontiac identity is maintained with a wide peripheral front bumper and strong vertical center accent framing two deep grille openings.

Horizontally mounted dual headlamps are set in the outboard ends of the grille opening and chrome framed parking lamps are on the lower valance panel. Pontiac block lettering appears on the left grille face.

The side appearance includes a full width rocker moulding and six vertical louvers on the front of the rear quarter, rear of the door opening. All models have an identification name and Firebird crest on the front fender in front of the wheel opening. An engine designation emblem is on each side of the hood plateau.

Firebird rear end treatment features a protective wrap-around bumper, wide louver style tail lamps with integral back-up lamps consisting of two long chrome edged slits on either side set in the painted rear end panel. Individual Pontiac letters appear on the deck lid.

A distinctive Firebird emblem appears on the fuel filler door located at the center of the rear end panel and models with the 400 option will have the 400 designation numerals on the right side of the deck lid.

The Custom trim option will add front and rear wheelopening mouldings and will replace the hub caps with deluxe wheel discs.

ENGINES

A total of 17 engine-transmission combinations make it possible for each buyer to custom-tailor the Firebird to his own performance requirements.

In addition to the standard 230 cubic-inch overhead cam engine rated at 165 horsepower, the Firebrid is available with the Sprint OHC 6 engine rated at 215 horsepower with four-barrel carburetion.

The 326 cubic-inch V-8 engine is offered with two-barrel carburetion with 250 horsepower and a four-barrel carburetor H. O. version with 285 horsepower. Special body side striping including H. O. designation is included with this option.

An optional "400" performance package offers the 400 cubic-inch V-8 with 325 horsepower and includes wide oval red line tires, and twin air scoops on a special hood as standard equipment.

CHASSIS

The Firebird features the time-proven, extensively rated structural elements of a separate frame and integrated body-frame combination. This offers the advantages of isolating the passenger compartment from the power plant and providing excellent handling and roadability characteristics.

The front chassis is a unitized sub-assembly consisting of the engine-transmission combination, front suspension, brakes, and steering gear with linkage all mounted on separate forward portion "ladder" frame design.

This is bolted to the body through four rubber-isolated mounts.

A heavy ribbed reinforced underbody forms a sturdy foundation platform for the all steer body. At the rear, framing elements are integrated into the underbody to provide firm mounting for the rear suspension and axle.

Single leaf springs and solid Salisbury rear axle contribute to the quality characteristics of the Firebird. The Firebird rear axle has separate axle shaft tubes pressed and welded into a central cast differential carrier housing.

A single tubular propeller shaft connects the transmission to the rear axle through yoke and trunion universal joints.

Standard gear ratios are designed for general use with optional economy, performance and special purpose ratios also offered.

Wide oval tires are standard as well as Pontiac's exclusive Space Saver Spare, a specially-constructed spare tire deflated until needed.

Other standard equipment includes a dual circuit hydraulic brake system with a malfunction warning system, an energy-absorbing steering column, a traffic warning flasher and provision in the turn signal to indicate freeway lane changes.

INTERIORS

The Firebird assures comfort and luxury for both front and rear passengers with curved side glass contributing increased shoulder room.

In addition to the "thin-line" front bucket seats there is a bench-type front seat option on hardtop coupes with folding center armrest and individual backrest to suit individual preference.

Also there is an optional folding rear seat back, carpet trimmed on the back, to provide added luggage space.

A center floor console with rear seat courtesy lights, ashtray, stowage compartment and floor shift controls is available for all transmissions.

Interiors are all expanded Morrokide and are color-keyed to the exterior paint colors.

The floors are covered in quality nylon blend deep loop pile carpeting.

The Firebird sports styled padded instrument panel conveniently recesses all instruments and tell-tale lights in two round bezels. Control knobs, located high on the instrument cluster, feature easy grip styling.

Among the standard equipment items are dual, front and rear seat belts with push-button release, front seat shoulder harness attaching provisions, front seat backrest latches, freewheeling door locks and two-speed electric windshield wipers and washers.

For the luxury-minded, the Custom trim option provides an instrument panel assist grip, deluxe steering wheel, custom seat and side trim, bright roof side rail and windshield mouldings.

ACCESSORIES

A full selection of options and accessories are offered including power steering, power brakes and manual or power front disc with drum rear brakes, AM-FM radio, rear window defogger, air conditioning, stereo tape player and Pontiac's cruise control system.

Seeded Teams Move Into Quarterfinal Round Play

ADVANCE -- First round action will be completed tonight along with one of the quarterfinal round games in the class S regional basketball tournament.

In last night's play Advance, Delta and Bell City won as expected and advanced into the quarterfinal round play, where they will return to action Thursday night. Advance swept past Cooter 85-56, Delta crushed Marquand 88-40, and Bell City beat Parma, 64-47.

Tonight's first two games will be in first round play as Patton meets Cape Girardeau College high at 6 p.m. and Howardville takes on Zalma in the 7:30 p.m. clash. The 9 p.m. game will pit top-seeded Scott Central against the sometimes surprising Morehouse Tigers in quarterfinal round action.

ADVANCE BLOWS

Coach Carroll Cookson's fighting Hornets blew the Cooter Wildcats out of the gymnasium and the class S regional tournament with a deadly attack.

Advance, somewhat surprised with the outcourt shooting of the Cooter quintet in the first period, held only a five-point edge, 25-20. It continued to surge and made its way into the half time break with a 40-27 edge, scoring 15 points the second period and holding the Cooter quintet to seven.

After the break the Hornets never let up and made its way into a comfortable lead, using substitutes in the final minutes.

Ken Garner took scoring honors for the Hornets with 23 points. Jerry Shirrell, and Bill Morgan added 18 and 17 points respectively and Steve Daniels contributed 11 for the Hornets cause.

Dan Jernigan and Bill Flowers led the Wildcats in scoring with 24 and 17 points respectively.

WATCH OUT FOR BOBCATS

Delta's reserve units ran up a 58-point second half as the Delta quintet's championship bound Bobcats made its way past the Marquand Tibers, 88-40.

Delta shot into a 16-4 first period lead and held a 30-14 lead at intermission before Coach Pete Townsend put his reserves to work in the second half.

Thirteen men got into the scoring column for the Delta Bobcats. Jim Below and Carl Eakins paced the attack with 19 and 16 points respectively.

PARMA FALLS

For the first time in nine years the name of the Parma Pirates will fail to appear in the finals of the class S tournament. Bell City put the Pirates down in its opening game, 64-47.

The Pirates, who appeared in the regional finals for the past eight seasons under the coaching of Doyle Denbow, who has retired, played a hard fought game but was outmanned on the boards and in experience.

Denbow, who retired after leading his Pirate squad to the regional championship last season, won six second place trophies and one third place in his reign of the tournament finals.

Bell City, with a fine defense and good shooting opened an 15-11 first quarter lead and made its way into a 32-19 half time edge and a quarterfinal round berth.

Parma closed to with eight points of the Cubs late in the period on the shooting of James Gibson and rebounding of six-foot David Newell who pulled 22 rebounds in the contest, Parma collected 34 in all.

James Gibson, the Pirates big center, netted 17 points in three periods, failing to score in the final. Henry Lutes added 12 to the Pirates losing cause.

Matthews Stumbles Past Lilbourn

SCOTT CITY - Quarterfinal action in the Illmo-Scott City class M regional basketball tournament last night saw Matthews fight off Lilbourn and take a 60-51 win and Illmo-Scott City waltz past St. Vincents of Perryville 70-48.

Tournament action will resume Thursday after a lay off tonight. Thursday night will mark the end of quarter final round action and New Madrid will go against Oran at 7 p.m. followed by the East Prairie-Notre Dame game at 8:30 p.m.

Last night's winners will meet Friday night at 7 p.m. in the first semi-final round game. Matthews is seeded number one and Illmo-Scott City the tournament darkhorse, is seeded fourth.

LILBOURN PUTS ON

GALLANT FIGHT

Matthews' top seeded Pirates had to fight for 32 minutes in last night's first quarter final round game as rival New Madrid countian Lilbourn stayed in the game with its slow pattern type ball, slowing the Pirates down from their usual fast pace and almost upsetting them.

Matthews managed to fall into an 8-6 first quarter lead after trailing most of the period and held a slim three-point lead at intermission, 24-21.

Early in the third period with the Pirates holding a slim one-point lead the Lilbourn Panthers lost the services of star Forward Russell Lacewell and seemed doomed. Lacewell was the Panters bread and butter on the boards and second highest scorer but the Panthers' Coach Ted Mauk put up a gallant fight and went ahead in the final period only to fall after a five-point play by the Pirates.

Early in the final period with the Pirates trailing by two points a technical foul on the Lilbourn bench gave the Pirates three free throws. When the ball went out of bounds it proved to be the turning point of the game. The Panthers lost their momentum and fell back, dropping their final game of the season.

Coach Jim Hart's struggling Pirates won this contest from the free throw line. Both teams hit 18 field goals but Matthews connected on 26 of 37 charity shots while Lilbourn hit on only 15 of 22.

Lilbourn's pressure type defense kept the usually hot shooting Pirates off guard and slowed its game down almost to a walk before falling back after losing two starters via the foul route.

Tom Hicks, who was held scoreless most of the first half, led the Pirates in scoring with 16 points. Hardin and Bishop added 11 each.

Bishop and Hardin hit key free pitches late in the game to keep the Pirates in the game.

Chuck Brooks, Matthews quintet's leading scorer, was held to nine points by the defensive efforts of the Panthers.

Baughman netted 17 points in leading the Lilbourn quintet's scoring.

ISC WALTZES TO VICTORY

Mike Crabtree's 25 points and team leadership led the ISC Rams to its first tournament victory of the week.

Crabtree ignited a 14-8 first quarter lead that grew into a 29-15 halftime buldge and a ISC win.

Coach Leon Cookson's Rams hit a blistering 63 per cent from the field while St. Vincents connected on 10 of 22 shots for 46 per cent.

Stan Whistler netted 19 points in the Indians' losing cause.

PRE - FAB ENTREES

Modern homemakers, who rate convenience almost as highly as economy, are making more and more use of those pre - fab items for dinner--frozen (and sometimes, precooked) fish sticks and portions.

Fish sticks and portions are pieces, cut in uniform size and shape, from a fish fillet or steak. Prepared from many different kinds of large fish, these convenient products of the sea provide variety of flavor. To identify the species of fish, look for the manufacturer's description of the product on the package.

For an original presentation of fish sticks to your family next time you prepare fish sticks, why not try serving them in this hearty, hot sandwich.

FISH STICK WESTERNS

12 frozen fried fish sticks
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion
3 tablespoons butter, melted
6 eggs, beaten
1-3 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
6 hamburger rolls
1-3 cup Russian dressing

Place frozen fish sticks in a single layer in a well-greased baking pan. Bake at 400 degrees F., until heated through and crisp, about 15 to 20 minutes. Cook green pepper and onion in butter until tender. Combine eggs, milk, salt and pepper. Add to green pepper and onion mixture and cook until eggs are firm, stirring occasionally. Place egg mixture on bottom half of rolls; top with fish sticks and Russian dressing. Cover with top half of roll. Serves 6.

Bride Shoots Groom At Wedding Reception

COLUMBUS, Ohio AP -- Newlywed James Davis, 37, was shot at his wedding reception.

Police said reception guests told them the bride, Effie, 29, did the shooting after an argument interrupted the couple's brief period of marital bliss.

Davis, in satisfactory condition at a hospital with wounds in the abdomen and left hand, said he would not press charges, according to the police.

Created Command

Gen. H. H. Arnold's recommendation, in 1939, for the establishment of a unit to study U.S. needs for air defenses resulted in creation of the Air Defense Command. Today, ADC is an organization of almost 100,000 personnel stationed at over 300 locations, ranging from Thule, Greenland, to the Gulf of Mexico.

Indians and Mustangs Move To Semi-Finals

STEELE -- First round action continued last night in the class S basketball regionals at South Pemiscot. In the first game North Pemiscot slipped past the Delta C-7 Chargers in a close battle 52-51.

FINAL EDITION

They have all gone from the city room.
Down the long hall the last footsteps have died away
The teletypes are quiet.
But in the distance is the rumble
Of the fresh-inked last news.
The sweeper has come and gone.
A green eyeshade lies on the desk --
And there's no one to answer to telephone.

The number one seeded team in the tourney, Hayti North, continued its winning ways taking the 22nd game of the year by beating the Senath-Hornersville Hornets 58-35 in the nightcap.

Tonight's action will pit Hayti Central against the Holcomb Hornets at 7 p.m. and Campbell will play Southland in the quarter finals. Semi-finals will be held Friday night. The finals will be Saturday.

Trailing by 6 points at the end of the first quarter, Senath-Hornersville couldn't manage to get going in the remainder of the game. The Hornets hit only 5 of 15 from the free toss line. Bob Hart was high point man for the Hornets, netting 12 points. Ben Johnson and Ben Watkins took home the scoring crown for the Indians popping 18 points apiece.

The number four ranked team, North Pemiscot, came close to getting upset. Delta darted to an early 16-7 lead in the first quarter and held a five-point lead at intermission, 30-25. Cape Closes Season Thursday

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Southeast Missouri State closes its basketball season Thursday against Arkansas State in an 8 p.m. game here at Houck Field House.

Coach Charles Parsley and his cagers are assured of a winning season whatever the outcome of their final game. Currently 14-6 for the season, the Indians could do no worse than a .750 14-7.

Cape closed out its MIAA schedule earlier this week with a loss to champion Springfield, winding up in second place with a 7-3 mark.

Downed earlier by Arkansas State at Jonesboro 99-and Dave Velander (6-4).

Official statistics in the earlier game showed the Arkansans outrebounding the Indians by a 68-31 margin.

Parsley hopes that the return of 6-6 center Kermit Meystedt to his lineup may make up part of the difference. Meystedt, who has taken an unusual number of lumps in 85, the Indians were unable to cope with the height and rebounding strength of the tall A-Staters, who are led by 6-11 John Dickson. Dickson, the team's leading scorer and rebounder, is solidly backed by forwards Mike Burk (607) and Milton Sullivan (6-4), and guards Harold Sciffres (6-5) recent games, missed the Arkansas State game entirely with an injured elbow.

Meystedt currently leads the squad in both scoring and rebounding with 19 points and 14 rebounds per game. Close behind is 5-11 guard Curt Williams with 18 per game. The two are the only seniors on the squad, and will be playing their final game.

Rounding out the starting Indian five are forwards Dan Milligan (6-3) with a 14-point average and John Body (6-5) with a 10-point average, and guard Charlie Bertrand (5-11), the team's top all-around player, with 14.

Class M At Bloomfield

Upset Bug Hits M Tourney At BHS

BLOOMFIELD - Two upsets were scored last night as first round basketball tournament play opened with the first game and quarterfinal round play started with the second contest.

Broseley and Richland, the third and fourth seeded teams respectively, were defeated. Broseley fell to Bernie 63-59 in quarterfinal round action and Richland was eliminated from the tournament in first round play by Neelyville 58-41.

Top-seeded Dexter had to fight for its victory. Malden gave the Bearcats a scare for three quarters but won out 60-54.

Tonight's contests will pit Qulin against the Bloomfield Wildcats at 7 p.m. followed by the Fisk-Neelyville clash at 8:30 p.m.

REBS OUTHUSTLED

Richland, after jumping out into an early eight-point lead midway through the first period, seemed to fall flat and allowed the Neelyville Tigers to control the rebounds and roam free on offense.

Richland took a 12-10 first quarter lead and held a slim 25-22 lead at intermission only to let that go and the game in the third period as Neelyville netted 17 points and held Richland to 13.

The Tigers continued to dominate the rebounding, moved the ball for good shots, played good defense and shut the Rebels offense down in the fourth period. They outscored them 19-3.

Parker with 22 points and Clay with 15 led the Neelyville quintet to victory. Cornley and Fowler each had 10 points to take game honors for the Rebels.

Richland was hampered by an injury to star Forward Dean Williamson, who sat out most of the second period and the third period. His squad was ahead when he left the game.

DEXTER ESCAPES UPSET

Malden tried hard to make it the second upset in succession last night but ran out of gas in the fourth period and fell back being outscored by Dexter 24-12.

Malden held a 13-12 lead at the end of one quarter and took a 29-20 lead at intermission.

Dexter made its move in the third period and closed the lead to 42-36 going into the final period. It won the game on the hot shooting of the Guethle brothers.

David and Harlen Guethle led the Bearcats in scoring with totals of 17 and 15 points respectively.

Johnny Downing was the Green Waves leading scorer for the contest. He pumped in 15 points. The Waves leading scorer, Mike Houchins, was held to 11 points.

Malden held the Bearcats David Guehtle down until the final period with their net like defense which seemed to collapse in the final period.

BERNIE GETS BROSELEY

Gary Craft led his Bernie Mules to a quarterfinal round victory over third seeded Broseley last night, 63-59.

Noel and Don Botsch controlled the rebounding for Bernie and contributed 14 and 10 points respectively in the scoring column.

Bernie's tight defense held the Tigers high scoring Floyd Page to 10 points. Jim Yarbro took high scoring honors for Broseley with 11 points.

Baseball Rolls Around

From Headaches To Holdouts, Signings To Retirement

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

From headaches to holdouts, signings to retiring, baseball ran the gamut Tuesday as spring training rolled around.

Pitcher Milt Pappas, the man Baltimore traded to Cincinnati for Frank Robinson, tried to clear up the headaches by refuting a blast Monday by teammate Joe Nuxhall, who claimed Pappas did not "give the ball club an honest effort."

Nuxhall said Pappas twice declined his starting turn last season because of headaches.

"I was bothered the whole season with sinus," retorted Pappas, who finished with a 12-11 mark. "I figured what's the use of jeopardizing a ball game with a sinus headache."

Pappas, a 10-year veteran with a 122-85 record, passed on part of those headaches to the Reds by adding he would not be on hand when Cincinnati opens spring training in Tampa Friday.

"They offered me the same salary, and they haven't asked me yet what I want," he said. "I guess they don't plan on giving me a raise."

Pappas received about $35,000 last year.

The Reds also got some painful news from all-star second baseman Pete Rose, who led the team with a .313 average. He thinks he should be paid extra for a proposed switch to the outfield this year.

"I'm willing to try the outfield, but I think that having been chosen the best second baseman in the league I should get more money for being pulled off that job," he said.

However, new General Manager Bob Howsam insisted he anticipates little trouble signing Rose and other regulars Vada Pinson, Deron Johnson and Tommy Helms, along with top reserve Art Shamsky.

The Atlanta Braves might not have it so easy with all-star catcher Joe Torre, who sits with Hank Aaron and Ken Johnson among those Braves unsigned.

Torre was missing when the pitchers and catchers opened training Tuesday, but he won't be an official holdout until March 1. The problem, as usual, is money. Torre wants $70,000, about a $30,000 boost from last year, the Braves reportedly are offering $60,000.

World champion Baltimore, Cleveland and Washington also were having signings troubles.

With Oriole batterymen scheduled to report today, still unsigned were pitchers Steve Barber, Jim Palmer, Dave McNally, Eddie Fisher, Eddie Watt and Tom Phoebus. Infielders Boog Powell, Dave Johnson and Bob Johnson and outfielder Curt Blefary, scheduled to report March 1, also were unsigned.

The Indians worried about Rocky Colavito and Sonny Siebert while the Senators were missing pitchers Camilo Pascual, Bob Humphreys and Bob Priddy.

There were some signings, too.

St. Louis penned Lou Brock, who led the majors in stolen bases with 74 last season; pitchers Larry Jaster and Joe Hoerner and infielder Steve Huntz. The New York Yankees signed pitcher Fritz Peterson and outfielder Roy White.

Moe Drabowsky, the World Series bullpen hero, and pitcher Gene Brabender signed with the Orioles.

One pitcher, Jim Duckworth of Washington, decided to chuck the whole thing.

"I'm entering a new line of work," he said in California, "due to a personal matter with Selkirk (General Manager George Selkirk)."

The 27-year-old 10-year veteran said he had taken an examination for a California Highway Patrol job.

FISHING FOR FINE MEALS

"Fishing around" for fine meal ideas? Why not literally try fish?

"Meat" from the sea and inland waters is versatility personified. Not only are there countless kinds of fish and shellfish, but each one lends itself to dozens of methods of preparation.

You could eat fish three times a day for a whole year, it has been said, and never eat the same meal twice. Baked, broiled, fried . . . in salads, chowders, appetizers, dips, sandwiches, canapes . . . for breakfast, brunch, lunch, dinner or supper . . . protein-rich seafoods make tasty meals.

But fish have seasons of plentiful supply, just as do meats, fruits and vegetables. And thrifty shoppers may want to look for seafood offerings which are more readily available than others.

During the current Lenten season, according to the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, shoppers should find sizable amounts of ocean perch, cod and sole available in food stores.

Catfish, halibut, fish sticks and portions are considered in moderate supply.

Shellfish are reported in somewhat limited supply overall. But shoppers may find shrimp, lobster tails, oysters and scallops in moderate supply.

You can always count on conveniently canned salmon, of course. Both pink and red salmon, in fact, are currently on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Plentiful Foods List.

COFFEE CORNER by Cherie

This weather is TOO much!! Everybody, but everybody, is a picture of poor health. I've never seen so many red runny eyes and red runny noses in all my life -- no wonder southeast Missouri has such a high humidity count, what with all this moisture everyone constantly oozes, how could it help but. short conversation with anyone now-a-days, without inserting at least two sneezes, five coughs, eight blows, and one good throat rumble. I swear, if the people in this community were wise, they'd invest all their savings in stocks belonging to a good tissue paper, cough syrup, or nose drop company, they'd be bound to get a little bit back on their investment all year round. I bet we are the tops in the nation for producers of influenza bugs, and the sad thing is that we also seem to unfortunately be the consumers as well as producers. I can hardly wait for summer to come so I can stop wiping noses, and washing handkerchiefs and shirt sleeves that little boys have used as such. Why is it a napkin or a handkerchief is never as effective for a fellow as his sleeve? It's so bad around our house that we blow in four different keys, and if I had sense enough to figure out a clever tune we could probably record that crazy sound and run the Beatles right off the top. Oh my, my stopped up head, what I wouldn't give for just one beautiful clean breath of air. No wonder it's so hard for me to think -- my brain is drowning!! I don't know which is sorer, my throat from the constant drip, or my nose from the constant wipe, either way I'm miserable, and if and when you see me coming, quickly avert your heads and stop breathing, or you'll be sorry!!

Missouri Press Report Sen. Edward Long

The President's Crime Commission has just issued its 308 page report with approximately 200 recommendations for combatting crime in the United States.

This is a very welcome report and will be of great help to those of us on the Senate Judiciary Committee where the President's crime bill will be considered this year.

Among the Commission's recommendations are:

-- The creation of a Youth Services Bureau in every local community to help youths referred by the police, juvenile court parents, and schools. FBI statistics for 1965 show that of all persons arrested, 30 percent were under 21 years old and 20 percent were under 18. The Commission urges more effort on all levels to spot and help juvenile delinquents before they become hardened criminals.

-- More effort to attract college trained men and women into police and prison service through increased salaries and recruiting programs on college campuses.

-- Police laboratory facilities for crime detection research should be easily available to all local police forces.

-- Increased research by colleges and universities into the root - causes of crime and ways to prevent crime on a community - wide basis.

-- To combat organized crime, more attention should be given to the need to provide extended prison terms where the convicted felon was a leader or manager of a continuing major illegal business.

-- Increased public education on the effects of drugs, and an increase in the staff of the Bureau of Narcotics and the Bureau of Customs to help cut down on the flow of drugs in the United States.

-- Short term treatment of chronic drunks who are arrested. The Commission recommends local communities consider adopting a program similar to one already launched in St. Louis.

Am in full agreement with the Commission's suggestions that Congress should pass legislation to clear up our laws dealing with wiretapping and bugging. Have introduced the Right of Private Act to achieve this goal.

Firmly believe that by combining the best ideas of the Commission and the President's recommended Safe Streets and Crime Control Act, we can meet the challenge of crime without sacrificing the freedoms guaranteed to us by the Bill of Rights.

NO SUMMIT ENTHUSIASM

U.S. delegates to the Buenos Aires Foreign Ministers' conference are finding that the proposed "Summit" meeting of American Presidents is not much more popular with their Latin colleagues than the idea of an inter - American police force.

Washington dropped the police force project last year, after trying ever since the 1964 Dominican crisis to get backing for it. Only the military regime now running Brazil was solidly behind that scheme. Six countries were vigorously opposed.

Today, as Secretary of State Rusk and his aides confer with their opposite numbers from 19 other republics in the Argentine capital, they are confronted by a less open but almost equally unenthusiastic attitude toward the Presidential get - together.

The Latins will, of course, go along this time, since President Johnson has publicly expressed his personal interest in the meeting. Refusal to join would constitute an unthinkable affront to him.

But this doesn't mean that anyone is very happy about it or expects anything of great significance to emerge. More than one Latin - American official has expressed private concern over the possible reaction in his homeland if the Vietnam war is still going on then.

"Just because Mr. Johnson went to Mexico and encountered no hostile demonstrations," said one veteran South American diplomat, "he seems to be convinced that this whole area is generally friendly to him, his administration and its policies.

"There could be no greater mistake. The fighting in Southeast Asia -- the U. S. part in it -- is unpopular among student, labor and professional groups all over Latin American.

"I'm very much afraid that this conference of Presidents is going to be accompanied by big protest marches in at least half a dozen of our capitals -- perhaps worse."

The diplomat named Montevido as one of the likely trouble spots. The Foreign Ministers are expected to pick Punta Del Este, less than 60 miles up the coast from Montevideo, as the site for the meeting.

ALLIANCE MARKS TIME

Another reason why most Latins doubt that concrete results can be obtained at this high - level conclave is that they are sure the United States will feel obliged to defend the Alliance for Progress -- and no one else thinks it is very defensible as now functioning.

"The Alliance has turned out to be nothing but a more grandiose name for the same kinds of economic and technical aid programs that have been going on for a generation," commented the Foreign Minister of a Central American republic whose government is regarded as pro-U.S.

"The broad, new approach that John Kennedy talked about just never got infused into the thing."

Another proposal, not ostensibly of U.S. manufacture but in fact dreamed up by the state department as a trial balloon, was promptly shot down at Buenos Aires.

This was a suggestion, formally put forward by Panama, that member governments of the Organization of American States recognize a Cuban government - in - exile.

Foreign Secretary Antonio Carrillo Flores of Mexico, the only Western Hemisphere country which still recognizes the Castro Regime, was the first to reject that feeler.

"We have normal relations with the present Cuban government," he snapped. "It would be absurd for us to recognize two governments."

The idea was also given the cold shoulder by representatives of several outspokenly anti - Castro regimes, including the Brazilian, Chilean, Colombian and Peruvian.

Their negative position was based on two considerations:

1. Fear that approval of the government - in-exile principle might set a tricky precedent which could boomerang against them later.

2. Knowledge that Cuban refugee colonies everywhere are still split into so many rival factions that there is no hope of putting together a broadly representative government - in-exile.

Rules for Personal Deductions Greatest Puzzle for Taxpayers

EDITOR'S NOTE — There are complicated rules about what you can deduct in figuring your federal income tax. This article, the last of five, discusses deductions.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — In making out your 1966 income tax return you may find your deductible personal expenses were greater than allowed for in the standard deduction which anyone can take without listing expenses.

In that case, claim your expenses in full. But you'll have to itemize them, to prove you had them, and you'll have to figure your own tax, using form 1040.

The details and kinds of deductible and nondeductible expenses are vast, too vast for a story like this which can only hit the highlights.

You will find some details in the instruction pamplet which the Internal Revenue Service sends all taxpayers, and infinitely more in the government's 160-page booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax." It costs 50 cents.

Here are some examples of expenses you can deduct:

State and city income taxes, real estate and state gasoline taxes but not federal gasoline taxes; state and city sales taxes — the instruction sheet has a list of the states with sales taxes and how much you can reasonably deduct in keeping with your income and family size; personal property taxes; interest on a personal loan; on a house mortgage; on delinquent taxes; and on personal property bought on the installment plan, like an automobile.

You can also deduct for union dues and dues in a professional society; fees to employment agencies; alimony payments by the one making them; books and newspapers bought for use in your job; and expenses for your education, provided it is to help you keep up with your job. You cannot deduct if the education was for personal reasons, like trying to help you get a better job.

If you use your car for business, you can deduct 10 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles and seven cents a mile after that.

You can deduct contributions to charitable, religious or education organizations like the Community Chest, United Fund, Salvation Army, churches, Red Cross, heart, cancer and tuberculosis associations, nonprofit schools and hospitals; and gifts but no dues to the YMCA, YWCA, YMHA, YWHA, and organizations such as the American legion, and to states and cities for public purposes.

You'd better read the 1040 instructions or the booklet if you want to exclude from income some of the pay you got while home on sick leave or for medical and drug expenses.

For example: Depending on how much salary you got while home sick, you may be able to exclude after the first full week of sick leave or you may not be able to exclude until you have been out sick 30 days.

If you were under 65 and are filing a return, you may deduct medical expenses for yourself, your wife, or a dependent but only that part for which you have not been reimbursed by an insurance company and only that part of your unreimbursed expenses which exceed 3 per cent of your income.

Costs of medicines and drugs are included in medical expense to the extent they exceed 1 per cent of your income.

A person 65 before the end of the year — you were considered 65 for the whole year if your birthday was as late as Jan. 1, 1967 — in making out his return can deduct his entire unreimbursed medical and drug expenses without worrying about what percentage of his income they were.

If you were under 65 and paid the medical and drug expenses of your over-65 parents — or your wife's over-65 parents — you can deduct them in full on your return but only if you also provide more than half the 1966 support of the one for whom you claim the deduction.

Here's another detail: You may claim a medical expense deduction for the premiums you paid on accident and health insurance policies which provide reimbursement for hospitalization, surgery fees and other medical expenses.

You can deduct transportation costs for going to get medical care — like bus, train, taxi or plane fare — only if you use your own car, can deduct five cents a mile for such a trip.

You can exclude the first $100 of your stock dividends from domestic corporations — $200 if it is a joint return and the husband and wife each owned stock, either jointly or individually, from which they received at least $100 each. But the husband can't use part of his wife's dividends to make the total $200 and the wife can't use part of her husband's dividends for the same purpose.

You can also deduct what is above the first $100 for each personal loss from vandalism or from theft or casualty, like a storm that damaged your house or an accident that damaged your car, if it wasn't covered by insurance. But if your auto accident was caused by your willfulness, you can't deduct at all.

You can deduct five cents a mile if you work free for a qualified charitable organization and use your car in doing so.

But here are things for which you cannot deduct:

Federal income taxes; federal Society Security taxes withheld from your pay; Social Security payments you make for someone working in your home, like a maid; auto licenses, unless based on the value of the car; a driver's license; auto inspection or parking meter fees; taxes you pay for someone else although you can claim them as part of your support for a dependent; poll taxes, inheritance, gift, cigarette, tobacco or alcoholic beverage taxes; fees for dog tags, hunting or fishing licenses or marriage licenses; tolls for roads and bridges; water bills; sewerage and other service charges.

You cannot deduct gifts to political candidates, political organizations, relatives, friends or other individuals, labor unions or social clubs; you cannot deduct federal excise taxes on automobiles, telephones or airline tickets.

Vacation Safety In Your Car

The thought of all those miles of road stretching to the horizon and beyond has troubled many a vacationer on the eve of his departure.

If you pause before a vacation to contemplate the uncertainties of long - distance driving, you're just being sensible. Such concern can be the basis for a thoroughly enjoyable vacation that might otherwise be marred by an auto accident.

It's wise, for example, to be concerned about becoming too tired to drive safely. Fatigue may well be the number one nemesis of the vacation driver who views those miles of highway as an obstacle between himself and his hard-earned vacation.

Surveys indicate that a driver's efficiency improves during the first three or four hours on the road. By the time six hours have passed, however, his efficiency has reverted to its original level. The decline becomes rapid after six hours.

When your eyes are tired, they don't see as well, particularly at night. If you overuse them on a long drive, they become "disgusted" with the difficulty of picking a focal point on a monotonous ribbon unwinding slowly out of the darkness ahead. After a few hours, many drivers experience "hallucinations," or what is known as "highway hypnosis."

This Lorelei of the freeway causes drivers to veer off the road to avoid objects that aren't there. Others plow into solid objects such as a bridge abutment that blends into the roadway because of its lack of contrast with the road. Such crashes were a particular problem on the New Jersey Turnpike but since reflectors were installed on upright posts, the accident rate in this area has declined sharply.

Fatigue is one of the significant causes of night accidents, according to a study recently reported to the President's Highway Safety Conference.

For the vacationer, this means that his fatigue "screens out" the value of highway safety devices that prevent even higher night death tolls. He might as well be wearing dark glasses.

Take reflective signs, which are used by most states to make night motoring safer. Light from headlights is bounced from the reflective surfaces back to the vehicles, making the signs much brighter than their backgrounds.

But, a driver with the sandman sitting on his shoulder is likely to cruise, without even slightly slackening his speed, past a brilliant reflective sign that says "Curve". He may recall seeing the sign only after he revives in the hospital bed to which he was taken following a collision with a utility pole.

Reflective signs and other devices that reduce the number of night accidents depend upon driver alertness for their effectiveness. Herein lies the hazard in driving while fatigued.

The Arizona Highway Patrol has released some startling statistics that reveal the foolhardiness of some drivers. For five years, the highway patrol intercepted motorists entering and leaving the state via U.S. 66, almost all were tourists.

The patrol motorists admitted driving more than 1,000 miles without an overnight rest. Hundreds said they'd driven more than 2,000 miles without stopping overnight. One man had been driving for three days without stopping. Drivers frequently boasted of their marathon performances.

The highway patrol reported that thousands of drivers passed only long enough to catnap along the road, or they slept while other members of the family drove. One driver pulled onto the shoulder and slept for two hours, then resumed his trip. A few miles down the road, the highway patrol found his demolished car. He had lost his battle of the drooping eyelids and fallen asleep at 60 m.p.h.

Historic St. Charles Hotel to Be Razed

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. 0 The St. Charles hotel, where Mark Twain and Charles Dickens stayed, and the birthsite of Southeast Missouri State College is being razed.

Someplace between 123 and 129 years old, the old building on Main street, a block from the Mississippi River, will give way to a modern business building.

Throughout its lifetime the building has been used for the purpose intended. Up to almost the very last it housed the traveling public, although its latter years were a distant echo of its brilliance in the 19th Century.

Built by Joseph Lansmon, a native of Alsace-Lorraine, the structure immediately was a success. There the traveler, getting off a packet boat, had but a block to go for rest and comfort.

Its cuisine drew the traveler and the Cape Girardeau resident as well, and in its ballroom many fancy balls were held.

Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, commanding the Union's western armies, stopped there in the summer of 1862, enroute to Cairo, Ill. from Ironton.

Mark Twain, during his days as a pilot on riverboats, stopped at the St. Charles. Charles Dickens, the famous British author, was reported to have spent the night there after a lecture in Cape Girardeau.

There are no registers available but it is probable that the number of famous who stopped at the St. Charles is considerable.

The hotel was the center of social gatherings until after the turn of the century.

When the nation was a century old, in 1876, and it was leap year, the Cape Girardeau News described one of the events.

"The St. Charles Hotel, on last Friday evening, was crowded with a brilliant party, gotten up by the leading young ladies of our city for the purpose of entertaining the young gentlemen, and to treat them to one of the finest balls that ever came off in the magnificent hotel," read the article.

It continued, "Supper came off about one o'clock and was served in that style and taste which so characterizes that excellent landlord, Mr. Z. Block and his accomplished lady of this splendid hotel, the St. Charles."

Earlier accounts described how the hotel was the scene of another outstanding ball during the Civil War, when Federal troops occupied Cape Girardeau.

It was in the parlor of the hotel on Oct. 28, 1873, that a state board met and tentatively decided that the Third District Normal School, now Southeast Missouri State College, would be located in Cape Girardeau.

Kites Can Be Dangerous

Kite flying can be dangerous warned E. R. Inman, manager of the board of public works today.

One of the most common accidents in kite flying is entangling a kite in power lines.

The board of public works offered these suggestions for kite flying safety:

Fly kites in an open area, away from power lines, or electric power transmission towers.

Use dry string and never wire or metallic string.

Do not attempt to remove a kite entangled in power lines.

Avoid the use of any metal in making a kite.

Keep kites away from highways.

Do not fly kites in wet or stormy weather.

A booklet, "Kite Flight," published by the American Public Power association, gives safety hints on kite flying and also includes instructions on how to make these different types of kites.

The booklet is available free at the board of public works office.

Branson Pushes for Fountain Recognition

BRANSON (AP) - Branson, in the southwestern Missouri Ozark Mountains, wants to become a "city of fountains."

Lyn Trask, chairman of the Community Betterment Committee, said Mother Nature "did an awfully good job in placing the hills around the city." Man added Lake Taneycomo, which flows through the city.

"What with the city flower basket program, the spring redbud and dogwood planting, and now the fountain program, Branson ought to be the prettiest city in the Midwest," Trask said.

The School of the Ozarks, business establishments and several home owners have built fountains of various sizes.

Trask said the committee will make a motion picture of existing fountains for use in its campaign. Emphasis will be placed on making Highways 65 and 76, which run through Branson "the fountain drive."

Now, from American Motors, the car that wasn't there.

This may well be the most important news to come out of Detroit this year.

A major gap has developed in today's automobile market—a gap that no American-built car is filling.

Because this gap exists, over 1,000,000 car buyers a year have not been able to get the car they wanted: a car for the American motorist at a list price competitive to foreign imports.

Today, American Motors' new management and nearly 2,500 American Motors/Rambler Dealers are filling that gap.

As of today, we are limiting future changes in our Rambler American line to essential changes that will further enhance the safety and reliability of these cars.

This will save us millions of dollars—and we and our dealers are passing the savings along to you now. This means that the Rambler American 220 two-door sedan that yesterday listed at $2,073 now lists at $1,839.[a] It means that today, your American Motors/Rambler Dealer has put new price stickers on all nine Rambler American models.

For years, Rambler American has been the best value in an American automobile. Today, priced competitive to imported cars, it is the best automobile value in the world.

This week on television, we promised you exciting news from American Motors.

This is only the beginning.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE WELL-FORTIFIED STUDENT

The United States Army moved in to protect a Negro who was getting an education at a Southern university. The Army, as it turned out, got an education also -- in high finance. The university subsequently submitted a bill to it for the Army's occupation of its campus -- sort of like reparations.

"That's absurd," was the Army's initial reaction. "We were ordered to move in by federal order to insure the student's safety. We weren't there because we wanted to be there."

"Our premise is very simple," retorted a university official. "Since you occupied our premises, a landlord and tenant relationship was created. You were the tenant and we were the landlord. And, like any other person who occupies the land of another, you've got to pay a fair and reasonable rental value for that occupation."

And so, without firing a shot, the Army surrendered. It consented to pay the bill. But, further approval had to be obtained before the bill could be paid.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you consider the university entitled to the "reparations" sought?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that there was never any intention on the part of the Army to pay rent or to establish a landlord-tenant relationship. What's more, the judge added, the reasons and circumstances of the occupation did not support an intention to establish a landlord-tenant relationship.

The Prayer From The Upper Room

You should not get into the habit of admitting your sins to one another, and praying for one another. (James 5:15, Phillips)

PRAYER: Dear Father, help us to listen to Thee as well as to petition Thee. Teach us the art of listening creatively to our brothers so that confession and communion can bring us closer to them and to Thee. Teach us to quit passing judgment but to grow in grace. For Jesus' sake. . . . . Amen.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding the letter from the wife who felt "left out" because her husband refused to let her see him without his partial plate:

Our wonderful father used a hair-darkener for years. He kept the bottle hidden in his tackle box on the closet shelf. Mother knew it and so did us kids, but we wouldn't have let on for anything in the world. We allowed Father to keep his "secret" because to have done otherwise would have been cruel.

Part of successful living is the ability to make allowances for the harmless personality quirks of others. It cost us nothing to let Father think he had us fooled. To the day he died he believed he had "put it over," and I'm sure he felt good about it. --- FOUR CHILDREN WHO LOVED HIM

Dear Children: Somebody put some solid ideas into your heads and I'll bet it was your mother.

One of the most admirable of all traits is to be in the know and not have to advertise it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 23 and have been going with an attractive girl who is 20. A few weeks ago she threw a half-eaten ice cream cone out of the car into the street. I pulled over to the curb, got out, scooped up the mess and put it in the nearest trash container. She said I must be some kind of a nut.

On our next date she threw a candy wrapper out the car window. Again I stopped, picked it up and kept it in the glove compartment. She called me a "prissy old maid."

Last night she threw a malted milk container into the street. I told her THIS time SHE was going to pick it up. She got mad, said I was a jerk and refused. I picked up the container and drove her home. She got out of the car, and slammed the door in my face.

This morning I received a telegram saying that unless I sent a wire of apology she would never speak to me again. Am I petty and domineering as she insists? ---MR. CLEAN

Dear Mr.: The girl sounds immature and plenty sloppy. Some cities fine litterbugs as much as $50 for such antics.

You owe her no apology. And think twice before you accept hers. She sounds like bad news.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is 48 years old and we have been married for 23 years. I am telling you this at the beginning so you won't get the idea that we are teen-age newlyweds.

Before my husband goes to work he stops off at his mother's house for coffee and a bagel. If he isn't there by 8:45 she calls up and says, "Is Irving sick?"

On his way home from work he stops at his mother's again. She gives him a bowl of chicken soup or some chopped herring --- just enough to spoil his appetite for my supper.

Before he goes to bed he telephones his mother to say good night. If he doesn't call her by 11:00 she calls and asks, "Is Irving all right?"

This has been going on for 23 years and I am fed up. Am I unreasonable? Tell me what to do. ---IRVING'S WIFE

Dear Wife: If this has been going on for 23 years you should be used to it. Irving is not going to change, so accept, with grace, his attachment to his mother because it will last as long as she lives.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect from Marriage," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

REA BANKS

I have joined 18 other Senators, including Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Mo.), in co-sponsoring a bill to provide supplemental financing for rural electrification and rural telephone programs in order to meet the growing needs of their customers. Hearings were held on a similar bill in the last session, but it was not acted on by the Congress.

Two Federal banks would be created, a Federal Electric Bank and a Federal Telephone Bank, following the proven pattern of the Farm Credit banks. Originally capital would be supplied by the government, but as soon as possible, the Banks would be owned and operated by the electric and telephone systems.

A.I.D. SAVINGS

The first procurement of steel for Vietnam by the Agency for International Development under an amendment to the Foreign Assistance Act which I supported last year indicates that from $3 to $5 million dollars will be saved on steel purchases during this fiscal year.

The amendment requires A.I.D. purchases of iron and steel products for Vietnam to be on a 90 per cent U.S. component basis. The first purchase by A.I.D. under the amendment resulted in a savings of $15.00 per ton of galvanized steel as compared with prices paid last year for similar products to Korean-Japanese sources.

LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

A recent visitor to the Nation's capital was Tom Feeback, a senior at Raytown South High School, Raytown, Missouri, and Missouri representative to the Leadership Conference for Vocational and Industrial Groups of America. Accompanying him was Leonard Stumpff, Raytown High School coordinator for the program and a State adviser.

The Vocational and Industrial program, in which many Missouri schools participate, provides for a student in his junior or senior year of high school to attend regular classes three to four hours a day, but to receive work experience and training during the afternoon.

Beneath the Sea

If he could work freely on the continental shelves, man could increase his domain by an area nearly the size of Africa. The shelves hold known reservoirs of oil, tin and diamonds, but to exploit these riches divers would have to conquer the ocean to a depth of 600 feet.

WILLIE JONES

A midnight grave, and a hundred seekers since--
What matters the burial place,
Or was it the final twisted grin
Of the broadcloth man
Asserting his identify?

That time in Hillsborough
When he held back till
The words were put down,
Garlands of guarantees for every man --
They would remember that.

The burial pair held their tongue
And the rains of Raleigh soon conspired
With falling leaves and wind to hide
The final home and haven. . .
But there are seekers still.

Sukarno Steps Aside

JAKARTA, Indonesia AP – President Sukarno tonight surrendered his presidential powers to Indonesian strongman Gen. Suharto and thus ended 21 years of one - man rule.

By his own statement, he remains president in name only and even this title may be taken away from him. Informed sources said Congress at its meeting next month may take a final disposition of his future.

There was speculation whether Sukarno would leave Indonesia. But his Japanese Wife, Ratna Sari Dewi, said in Tokyo she did not believe he will leave the country. She is in Tokyo to await the birth of her first child.

Sukarno had surrendered most of his powers to Suharto last March but he remained a symbol to millions of Indonesians as the father of Indonesia's independence.

A signed statement by Sukarno said he gave all power to Suharto "for the sake of the people and the country."

Sukarno's stepdown was not a full resignation but was a surrender of executive powers.

The 65 - year -old president, who led this huge Southeast Asian nation from Dutch colonial rule to independence will remain president in name only.

His decision came following two weeks of intensive pressure from Suharto and his military followers.

Sukarno had been warned that if he did not hand over powers he would be investigated by Congress and possibly brought to trial.

There were no indications what compromises were made with Sukarno. However, political and military sources said Suharto agreed to insure that Sukarno would not be brought to trial.

Sukarno's statement said Suharto would have to report to him regularly on how he was using the presidential powers. But this was probably a face-saving gesture.

Following an attempt by Indonesian Communists to seize power Oct. 1, 1965, many of the coup leaders were brought to trial and some implicated Sukarno in the attempt.

Sukarno's handover of powers leaves Suharto as the sole leader of this nation of 109 million people. He faces a complex array of problems brought on by years of mismanagement and corruption under Sukarno.

Suharto, 45, a four-star general faces an immediate task of bringing about some form of economic stability. The country is still divided politically over loyalty to Sukarno.

Suharto also faces a problem of maintaining unity within his own military ranks.

Although he will be nominally in command, Foreign Minister Malik will take the brunt of organizing Indonesia's foreign policy.

Political sources said Congress will go ahead with its special session on Sukarno and that the possibility still remains that it will strip away Sukarno's last vestiges of power.

These sources said Sukarno was not completely ousted at this point for fear of creating greater disunity in this troubled country. They added that further decisions on Sukarno's future are expected when Congress meets March 7.

Robbery Report Is Hoax

A service station attendant and a friend tried to stage a hoax armed robbery Tuesday night at the Flying G Shell Service Station, Highway 61 South, police reported today.

Donnie W. Shoptaw, 17, Louisville, Ky., and Carl E. Rowe, 19, Melvin, Ky., were taken into police custody at about 9:30 p.m. After questioning by the State Highway patrol, Scott County authorities and Sikeston police, both men admitted to the theft of $83.03 from the station, police said.

Rowe was employed as an attendant at the station for a little more than a week, police said. He was found tied with an electrical cord and gagged with a shop towel in the restroom of the station at about 8:15 p.m. by Fred Spencer of Elkton, Md., a customer, police stated.

Rowe first told investigating officer Sgt. Richard Wallace that a man wearing a black topcoat stuck a gun in his ribs, took about $80 from the cash register, bound and gagged him and forced him into the restroom.

Rowe also said that the robbery took place about 10 minutes after a customer identified as Clarence Rafferty, 610 Carroll, left the station. Rowe showed Rafferty's ticket to police.

Chief Arthur Bruce said he was suspicious from the start and became more so when Rowe told conflicting stories.

After questioning by Chief Bruce and Sheiff John Dennis both Rowe and Shoptaw admitted the robbery was a contrivance.

Shoptaw had tied Rowe and waited on a customer as he was leaving the station. The customer was not identified, police said.

Shoptaw took police to the Dunn Hotel, where he had rented a room, and returned the stolen money. The change was hidden above the door in the room and the bills were hidden between the wallpaper and the wall, police said.

Both men will be turned over to New Madrid county authorities today and probably will be charged with grand larceny for a theft of more than $50, police reported.

House Passes Bill to Hike Jobless Benefits

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House today passed a bill to increase the maximum weekly unemployment benefit from $45 a week to $55.50.

The bill was introduced by Rep. Richard Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, majority floor leader. It sets up a new formula for determining the amount of unemployment based on 50 per cent of the average weekly income in Missouri. The average now is computed by the Department of Labor and is $111 a week.

In debate before final passage Rep. Robert O. Snyder, R-Kirkwood, questioned raising unemployment benefits 24 per cent. He said they should not increase faster than the cost of living. Unemployment benefits have gotten out of balance in the cost of living, he said.

The unemployment compensation fund has a surplus at this time and the new bill would not increase unemployment payments by employers, Rabbitt said.

A companion bill, to lower the maximum premium of employers for unemployment compensation insurance from 7.5 per cent to 6 per cent, passed without discussion and on a lopsided vote.

Also without discussion but with a reverse result was defeat of a bill to eliminate the present one week of waiting before a laid-off employe could claim unemployment compensation. The vote defeating the measure was 55-86.

The House sent to the Senate a bill to set up a permanent commission on the aging, to consider ways of making the sunset days of older Missourians more comfortable and productive.

Tuesday night a capacity crowd heard pleas for enactment of a medicaid bill for welfare recipients.

Mayor A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis, Mayor Ilus W. Davis of Kansas City and Mayor John G. Ghristy of Jefferson City, former president of the Missouri Municipal League, said enactment of the bill sponsored by Rep. Thomas A. Walsh, D-St. Louis, is a must if the sick and needy are to be cared for.

Cervantes said St. Louis will have a $14 million deficit in its hospital costs for the needy and Davis said the Kansas City bill would amount to more than $6 million.

Opponents of the plan will be heard next week.

Another House committee heard Dr. Edward C. Lambert of the University of Missouri urge establishment of a statewide educational television system that would cost $16 million over a 10-year period. The starting cost would be $1.5 million.

The plan, similar to one defeated two years ago, calls for establishment of a central transmitter, probably near Jefferson City, and 17 relay towers to cover 95 per cent of the state's population.

Another House committee heard Rep. George Parker, R-Columbia, advocate his bill to limit the salaries of all third class county officials to $15,000 a year.

Parker described it as a stopgap measure until the whole complicated fee system for county officials can be studied.

He said the Boone County collector reported compensation of $28,376 in 1965, the Franklin County collector $27,783 and a number of others well over $15,000.

The committee decided to study the proposal further.

The same decision was reached by the Senate Agricultural Committee on the perennial bill to abolish open range. Only about 896,000 acres are left where livestock are allowed to roam at large, more than half of it privately owned and the rest owned by the State Conservation Commission or the U.S. Forest Service.

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved two bills.

One, already passed by the House, would require state agencies to inform the legislature and the budget officer of their requests for federal funds.

The other would set up an emergency fund to keep money short state agencies operating between legislative sessions.

Morehouse To Vote on Bond Issue

MOREHOUSE - A bond issue of approximately $190,000 for construction of a new elementary school building will be on the ballot of the annual C-12 school election April 4, Thad B. Ryan, superintendent of schools, reports.

Plans call for a building that contains 12 classrooms and office space for grades 1-8.

C-12 patrons will also vote for candidates to fill two school board vacancies. Norman Crumpecker and Charles Menees, incumbent board members, have filed for re-election.

The closing date for filing as a school board candidate is March 4. Anyone wishing to file as a candidate should contact Paul Sherrard, secretary of the board, Ryan said.

School Bonds Rejected

BENTON - A $495,000 bond issue for constructions of a school building to house all elementary pupils in the Scott County R-4 district was defeated Tuesday.

Although the vote was 351-324 in favor of the issue, it failed to pass because it lacked the necessary two-thirds majority.

Voting by townships:

Benton, 120-139.
Blodgett, 17-136.
Diehlstadt, 101-13.
Lusk Chapel, 52-5.
Commerce, 51-31.

There were 10 absentee votes cast. All favored the issue.

If passed, the new building would have been built on the Kelly high school site. Plans called for 13 classrooms, kindergarten and special education facilities, speech correction, remedial workrooms, elementary library program, health facilities and a multi-purpose room to serve as a cafeteria, play area, community group meeting room and grade school athletic center.

Proponents of the issue argued that the new facility would have attracted and encouraged the tenure of teachers and would have been more economical to run as a centralized plant.

Man Dies in Beauty Shop

Charlie P. Shumpert, 150la Osage, was found dead in a beauty shop in Sunset Addition owned and operated by his wife, Mrs. Sue Ella Shumpert, this morning at 7:30 a.m., Coroner Gene Nunnelee reported.

The beauty shop is usually closed on Mondays and Tuesdays.

The family became concerned and started looking for Shumpert. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Mattie Riggs, passed by the beauty shop this morning and noticed the gas heater had been turned on. Shumpert was found lying on the couch dead.

Nunnelee ruled the death as accidental asphyxiation and said there was no evidence of foul play. The body was taken to Dotson Funeral Home.

House Advances Shared Time Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The Missouri House Tuesday advanced the "shared time" bill into position for final passage.

It would allow students from private and parochial schools to attend special courses in public schools that would be at least partially financed by state funds.

But by a 78-77 vote the House refused to extend the bill to cover so-called "educationally deprived" students because there was no clear interpretation of what that meant.

The vote for advancement was 94-64, giving the measure far more than the 82 needed for final House passage.

Christmas Spirit Sought in February

Give to the Scott County Tuberculosis Association in February?

It may sound odd but Executive Secretary Thelma Stacy hopes that many residents will do it.

She annually mails reminders to approximately 1,000 residents who fail to respond to the annual Christmas seal fund drive. The seals are mailed in mid-November.

The reminders encourage residents to contribute before the association's fiscal year ends in March.

Seal sales have been good. They have brought in $2,132, which exceeds the $2,127 return of a year ago.

Policing of Atomic Sites Disputed

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have told the European Common Market nations they can't police their own compliance with the proposed treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Qualified sources at the 17-nation disarmament conference said this has emerged as one of the main obstacles to a treaty.

West Germany and Italy — supported behind the scenes by France — want supervision on their soil to be carried out by the six-nation European Atomic Energy Association-Euratom.

The Soviet Union has denounced this as an attempt at "self inspection". American negotiators seem to have accepted the Soviet view.

In Soviet-American talks in New York over the past three months, the two nuclear superpowers agreed that the only acceptable controlling body was the 95-nation International Atomic Energy Agency —IAEA — based in Vienna.

When the disarmament talks resumed Tuesday following a six-month recess, U.S. delegate William C. Foster told newsmen "controls should be carried out by a wholly international agency able to look at safeguards throughout the world."

Foster said such an agency already exists in the IAEA "and we believe it should have the job of ensuring that peaceful (nuclear) products are not diverted to military purposes."

France, which boycotts the disarmament conference, has given notice it will not sign any nonproliferation treaty negotiated here.

As a nuclear military power, France would not be subject to controls in any case.

Despite the objections from West Germany, Italy and other countries, American officials are confident the treaty will be signed this summer.

West Germany and Italy object to IAEA controls on two main grounds:

They fear that IAEA inspectors could conduct industrial espionage on behalf of the Russians, who are members of the agency, and they argue that the treaty setting up Euratom does not allow its members to submit to controls from any other body.

In a speech to the conference, Soviet delegate Alexei Roshchin said such objections were attempts to disrupt the negotiations.

Foster said some compromise would have to be worked out with the Euratom members to permit IAEA inspection. He stressed that this would still leave plenty of work for Euratom to do, such as distributing and supervising plutonium provided by the United States for the Common Market countries.

"We participated in the formation of Euratom," he said. "We have encouraged it and made a treaty with it. We are not attacking Euratom. Euratom does a number of things besides applying safeguards."

Bi-State Toll Roads Discussed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri have sounded each other out on bi-state projects, particularly a stateline toll road from Kansas City south.

In a news conference held after their 1½-hour private discussion Tuesday in Kansas City, Docking held out little hope for a jointly built turnpike, and Hearnes declined to comment on its possibilities.

"It would be very beneficial," said Hearnes, "but we would have to pass legislation first."

Toll road bills are under consideration in both state legislatures. Kansas has completed a feasibility study of a projected turnpike on its side of the line, and Missouri has talked about another on its side.

Docking and Hearnes also said they discussed plans to set up a bi-state air pollution compact, largely for the Kansas City area which sprawls across both sides of the state line.

"Missouri has offered to Kansas a suggested draft on air pollution," Hearnes said.

"It is speculative at this time," Docking told newsmen.

Hearnes added, "I think this is something the states can handle without federal intervention. It is one place the states can work out a solution. If they can't, then the federal government will step in."

Docking said he and Hearnes brought up the possibility of a joint new bridge for U.S. 36 across the Missouri River at St. Joseph.

Legislative leaders of both states took part in the governors' conference. Rex Whitton, retired federal highway administrator, also attended. Others present were John Montgomery, Junction City, Kan., chairman of the Kansas Highway Commission, and Jack Stapleton of Stanberry, Mo., chairman of the Missouri Highway Commission.

Agencies Encouraged CIA to Invest Privately

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency sought to curtail its financing of private organizations in the past but ran into objections from other arms of the government, says Sen. Milton R. Young.

The North Dakota Republican said every investment the CIA made in an organization outside the government was undertaken on written instructions, apparently from the National Security Council.

He said the spy agency's checks were subject to scrutiny in the Bureau of the Budget, like the Security Council, a White House agency.

Young said in some instances CIA financial support originally was promoted by the State Department.

Young, senior Republican on the Senate panel which oversees CIA financing and operation, said the intelligence agency was trying to get some of its instructions changed prior to the public storm that broke last week with disclosure it had been subsidizing the National Student Association.

Young said secrecy restrictions barred his giving a more detailed description. He talked after CIA Director Richard Helms briefed the Senate panel for three hours Tuesday. Helms also met with the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate subcommittee, said Helms reported the agency is withdrawing financial support of some private organizations.

He would not quote Helms further. Russell did not make clear whether the Helms report involved a halt in aid to groups still secretly receiving CIA funds. Helms would not answer newsmen's questions after the hearing.

In other developments:

— Sources close to President Johnson said he will make no statement about CIA subsidies until a panel of three government officials completes its review of the situation.

— Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he flatly opposes secret government investment in private organizations.

— The student body president of the University of California at Berkeley, Dan McIntosh, said the National Student Association's "international program is dead. The credibility of United States students abroad is greatly damaged." He is on the NSA board.

— Peter O'Donnell Jr., Texas Republican chairman, said the Jones - O'Donnell Foundation which he heads has served as a conduit for CIA funds.

— Republican Reps. Donald E. Lukens of Ohio and John E. Hunt of New Jersey demanded a congressional investigation to determine "how much of the millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money the CIA channelled to private organizations was used for leftist purposes."

The presidential sources said Johnson does not want to prejudge the case, wants solid facts before speaking publicly and wants the benefit of judgment and recommendations of the investigating panel of Helms, Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner.

Home Rule Plan Wins First Test

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- A proposed constitutional amendment to give St. Louis County full home rule powers won its first big battle in the Missouri Legislature Tuesday.

The Senate advanced it to position for passage without change on a unanimous voice vote.

The vote came, however, only after the Senate beat down a substitute offered by Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, which would have limited the county's power to change only certain fields. It lost 4-23.

Young said a number of mayors in northern St. Louis County feared the proposal would destroy municipalities and create a centralized county government.

But his opponents said the only issue was full county home rule.

As advanced, and if approved by both the Senate and the House, the proposal would go on the 1968 general election ballot.

Also moved ahead was a bill to give St. Louis County control over air pollution on a county-wide basis and another to permit Kansas City to levy a 2-cent tax to support its city museum. The tax would raise an estimated $220,000 a year.

Production Halted At Fisher Plant

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Production at the Fisher Body plant in St. Louis was suspended today because of a strike at General Motors' Fisher plant in Mansfield, Ohio.

Work on the car assembly line at the St. Louis Chevrolet plant also was halted because of the strike. The shutdown at St. Louis will affect 2,200 Fisher workers and an additional 1,200 men on the Chevrolet passenger car line.

Spokesmen said work is continuing on the Chevrolet truck and Corvette assembly lines.

The reason for the shutdown at St. Louis was given as a lack of passenger car panel caused by the Ohio strike.

Sukarno Steps Aside

JAKARTA, Indonesia AP -- President Sukarno tonight surrendered his presidential powers to Indonesian strongman Gen. Suharto and thus ended 21 years of one - man rule.

By his own statement, he remains president in name only and even this title may be taken away from him. Informed sources said Congress at its meeting next month may take a final disposition of his future.

There was speculation whether Sukarno would leave Indonesia. But his Japanese Wife, Ratna Sari Dewi, said in Tokyo she did not believe he will leave the country. She is in Tokyo to await the birth of her first child.

Sukarno had surrendered most of his powers to Suharto last March but he remained a symbol to millions of Indonesians as the father of Indonesia's independence.

A signed statement by Sukarno said he gave all power to Suharto "for the sake of the people and the country."

Sukarno's stepdown was not a full resignation but was a surrender of executive powers.

The 65 - year -old president, who led this huge Southeast Asian nation from Dutch colonial rule to independence will remain president in name only.

His decision came following two weeks of intensive pressure from Suharto and his military followers.

Sukarno had been warned that if he did not hand over powers he would be investigated by Congress and possibly brought to trial.

There were no indications what compromises were made with Sukarno. However, political and military sources said Suharto agreed to insure that Sukarno would not be brought to trial.

Sukarno's statement said Suharto would have to report to him regularly on how he was using the presidential powers. But this was probably a face-saving gesture.

Following an attempt by Indonesian Communists to seize power Oct. 1, 1965, many of the coup leaders were brought to trial and some implicated Sukarno in the attempt.

Sukarno's handover of powers leaves Suharto as the sole leader of this nation of 109 million people. He faces a complex array of problems brought on by years of mismanagement and corruption under Sukarno.

Suharto, 45, a four-star general faces an immediate task of bringing about some form of economic stability. The country is still divided politically over loyalty to Sukarno.

Suharto also faces a problem of maintaining unity within his own military ranks.

Although he will be nominally in command, Foreign Minister Malik will take the brunt of organizaing Indonesia's foreign policy.

Political sources said Congress will go ahead with its special session on Sukarno and that the possibility still remains that it will strip away Sukarno's last vestiges of power.

These sources said Sukarno was not completely ousted at this point for fear of creating greater disunity in this troubled country. They added that further decisions on Sukarno's future are expected when Congress meets March 7.

Robbery Report Is Hoax

A service station attendant and a friend tried to stage a hoax armed robbery Tuesday night at the Flying G Shell Service Station, Highway 61 South, police reported today.

Donnie W. Shoptaw, 17, Louisville, Ky., and Carl E. Rowe, 19, Melvin, Ky., were taken into police custody at about 9:30 p.m. After questioning by the State Highway patrol, Scott County authorities and Sikeston police, both men admitted to the theft of $83.03 from the station, police said.

Rowe was employed as an attendant at the station for a little more than a week, police said. He was found tied with an electrical cord and gagged with a shop towel in the restroom of the station at about 8:15 p.m. by Fred Spencer of Elkton, Md., a customer, police stated.

Rowe first told investigating officer Sgt. Richard Wallace that a man wearing a black topcoat stuck a gun in his ribs, took about $80 from the cash register, bound and gagged him and forced him into the restroom.

Rowe also said that the robbery took place about 10 minutes after a customer identified as Clarence Rafferty, 610 Carroll, left the station. Rowe showed Rafferty's ticket to police.

Chief Arthur Bruce said he was suspicious from the start and became more so when Rowe told conflicting stories.

After questioning by Chief Bruce and Sheiff John Dennis both Rowe and Shoptaw admitted the robbery was a contrivance.

Shoptaw had tied Rowe and waited on a customer as he was leaving the station. The customer was not identified, police said.

Shoptaw took police to the Dunn Hotel, where he had rented a room, and returned the stolen money. The change was hidden above the door in the room and the bills were hidden between the wallpaper and the wall, police said.

Both men will be turned over to New Madrid county authorities today and probably will be charged with grand larceny for a theft of more than $50, police reported.

Opal Mason, 229 Ruth, was arrested Sunday on South West street and charged with public intoxication and resisting arrest.

Sikeston police were notified Sunday to be on the lookout for Willie E. Williams, 33, formerly of Sikeston, who is reported to have escaped from a state hospital at Fulton. He is described as a Negro male, 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighing about 160 pounds. He was last seen driving a 1962 white Chevrolet, police reported.

House Passes Bill to Hike Jobless Benefits

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House today passed a bill to increase the maximum weekly unemployment benefit from $45 a week to $55.50.

The bill was introduced by Rep. Richard Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, majority floor leader. It sets up a new formula for determining the amount of unemployment based on 50 per cent of the average weekly income in Missouri. The average now is computed by the Department of Labor and is $111 a week.

In debate before final passage Rep. Robert O. Snyder, R-Kirkwood, questioned raising unemployment benefits 24 per cent. He said they should not increase faster than the cost of living. Unemployment benefits have gotten out of balance in the cost of living, he said.

The unemployment compensation fund has a surplus at this time and the new bill would not increase unemployment payments by employers, Rabbitt said.

A companion bill, to lower the maximum premium of employers for unemployment compensation insurance from 7.5 per cent to 6 per cent, passed without discussion and on a lopsided vote.

Also without discussion but with a reverse result was defeat of a bill to eliminate the present one week of waiting before a laid-off employe could claim unemployment compensation. The vote defeating the measure was 55-86.

The House sent to the Senate a bill to set up a permanent commission on the aging, to consider ways of making the sunset days of older Missourians more comfortable and productive.

Tuesday night a capacity crowd heard pleas for enactment of a medicaid bill for welfare recipients.

Mayor A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis, Mayor Ilus W. Davis of Kansas City and Mayor John G. Ghristy of Jefferson City, former president of the Missouri Municipal League, said enactment of the bill sponsored by Rep. Thomas A. Walsh, D-St. Louis, is a must if the sick and needy are to be cared for.

Cervantes said St. Louis will have a $14 million deficit in its hospital costs for the needy and Davis said the Kansas City bill would amount to more than $6 million.

Opponents of the plan will be heard next week.

Another House committee heard Dr. Edward C. Lambert of the University of Missouri urge establishment of a statewide educational television system that would cost $16 million over a 10-year period. The starting cost would be $1.5 million.

The plan, similar to one defeated two years ago, calls for establishment of a central transmitter, probably near Jefferson City, and 17 relay towers to cover 95 per cent of the state's population.

Another House committee heard Rep. George Parker, R-Columbia, advocate his bill to limit the salaries of all third class county officials to $15,000 a year.

Parker described it as a stopgap measure until the whole complicated fee system for county officials can be studied.

He said the Boone County collector reported compensation of $28,376 in 1965, the Franklin County collector $27,783 and a number of others well over $15,000.

The committee decided to study the proposal further.

The same decision was reached by the Senate Agricultural Committee on the perennial bill to abolish open range. Only about 896,000 acres are left where livestock are allowed to roam at large, more than half of it privately owned and the rest owned by the State Conservation Commission or the U.S. Forest Service.

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved two bills.

One, already passed by the House, would require state agencies to inform the legislature and the budget officer of their requests for federal funds.

The other would set up an emergency fund to keep money short state agencies operating between legislative sessions.

Christmas Spirit Sought in February

Give to the Scott County Tuberculosis Association in February?

It may sound odd but Executive Secretary Thelma Stacy hopes that many residents will do it.

She annually mails reminders to approximately 1,000 residents who fail to respond to the annual Christmas seal fund drive. The seals are mailed in mid-November.

The reminders encourage residents to contribute before the association's fiscal year ends in March.

Seal sales have been good. They have brought in $2,132, which exceeds the $2,127 return of a year ago.

Agencies Encouraged CIA to Invest Privately

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency sought to curtail its financing of private organizations in the past but ran into objections from other arms of the government, says Sen. Milton R. Young.

The North Dakota Republican said every investment the CIA made in an organization outside the government was undertaken on written instructions, apparently from the National Security Council.

He said the spy agency's checks were subject to scrutiny in the Bureau of the Budget, like the Security Council, a White House agency.

Young said in some instances CIA financial support originally was promoted by the State Department.

Young, senior Republican on the Senate panel which oversees CIA financing and operation, said the intelligence agency was trying to get some of its instructions changed prior to the public storm that broke last week with disclosure it had been subsidizing the National Student Association.

Young said secrecy restrictions barred his giving a more detailed description. He talked after CIA Director Richard Helms briefed the Senate panel for three hours Tuesday. Helms also met with the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate subcommittee, said Helms reported the agency is withdrawing financial support of some private organizations.

He would not quote Helms further. Russell did not make clear whether the Helms report involved a halt in aid to groups still secretly receiving CIA funds. Helms would not answer newsmen's questions after the hearing.

In other developments:

— Sources close to President Johnson said he will make no statement about CIA subsidies until a panel of three government officials completes its review of the situation.

— Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he flatly opposes secret government investment in private organizations.

— The student body president of the University of California at Berkeley, Dan McIntosh, said the National Student Association's "international program is dead. The credibility of United States students abroad is greatly damaged." He is on the NSA board.

— Peter O'Donnell Jr., Texas Republican chairman, said the Jones - O'Donnell Foundation which he heads has served as a conduit for CIA funds.

— Republican Reps. Donald E. Lukens of Ohio and John E. Hunt of New Jersey demanded a congressional investigation to determine "how much of the millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money the CIA channelled to private organizations was used for leftist purposes."

The presidential sources said Johnson does not want to prejudge the case, wants solid facts before speaking publicly and wants the benefit of judgment and recommendations of the investigating panel of Helms, Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner.

Morehouse To Vote on Bond Issue

MOREHOUSE - A bond issue of approximately $190,000 for construction of a new elementary school building will be on the ballot of the annual C-12 school election April 4, Thad B. Ryan, superintendent of schools, reports.

Plans call for a building that contains 12 classrooms and office space for grades 1-8.

C-12 patrons will also vote for candidates to fill two school board vacancies. Norman Crumpecker and Charles Menees, incumbent board members, have filed for re-election.

The closing date for filing as a school board candidate is March 4. Anyone wishing to file as a candidate should contact Paul Sherrard, secretary of the board, Ryan said.

Policing of Atomic Sites Disputed

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have told the European Common Market nations they can't police their own compliance with the proposed treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Qualified sources at the 17-nation disarmament conference said this has emerged as one of the main obstacles to a treaty.

West Germany and Italy — supported behind the scenes by France — want supervision on their soil to be carried out by the six-nation European Atomic Energy Association-Euratom.

The Soviet Union has denounced this as an attempt at "self inspection". American negotiators seem to have accepted the Soviet view.

In Soviet-American talks in New York over the past three months, the two nuclear superpowers agreed that the only acceptable controlling body was the 95-nation International Atomic Energy Agency —IAEA — based in Vienna.

When the disarmament talks resumed Tuesday following a six-month recess, U.S. delegate William C. Foster told newsmen "controls should be carried out by a wholly international agency able to look at safeguards throughout the world."

Foster said such an agency already exists in the IAEA "and we believe it should have the job of ensuring that peaceful (nuclear) products are not diverted to military purposes."

France, which boycotts the disarmament conference, has given notice it will not sign any nonproliferation treaty negotiated here.

As a nuclear military power, France would not be subject to controls in any case.

Despite the objections from West Germany, Italy and other countries, American officials are confident the treaty will be signed this summer.

West Germany and Italy object to IAEA controls on two main grounds:

They fear that IAEA inspectors could conduct industrial espionage on behalf of the Russians, who are members of the agency, and they argue that the treaty setting up Euratom does not allow its members to submit to controls from any other body.

In a speech to the conference, Soviet delegate Alexei Roshchin said such objections were attempts to disrupt the negotiations.

Foster said some compromise would have to be worked out with the Euratom members to permit IAEA inspection. He stressed that this would still leave plenty of work for Euratom to do, such as distributing and supervising plutonium provided by the United States for the Common Market countries.

"We participated in the formation of Euratom," he said. "We have encouraged it and made a treaty with it. We are not attacking Euratom. Euratom does a number of things besides applying safeguards."

Production Halted At Fisher Plant

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Production at the Fisher Body plant in St. Louis was suspended today because of a strike at General Motors' Fisher plant in Mansfield, Ohio.

Work on the car assembly line at the St. Louis Chevrolet plant also was halted because of the strike. The shutdown at St. Louis will affect 2,200 Fisher workers and an additional 1,200 men on the Chevrolet passenger car line.

Spokesmen said work is continuing on the Chevrolet truck and Corvette assembly lines.

The reason for the shutdown at St. Louis was given as a lack of passenger car panel caused by the Ohio strike.

School Bonds Rejected

BENTON - A $495,000 bond issue for constructions of a school building to house all elementary pupils in the Scott County R-4 district was defeated Tuesday.

Although the vote was 351-324 in favor of the issue, it failed to pass because it lacked the necessary two-thirds majority.

Voting by townships:
Benton, 120-139.
Blodgett, 17-136.
Diehlstadt, 101-13.
Lusk Chapel, 52-5.
Commerce, 51-31.

There were 10 absentee votes cast. All favored the issue.

If passed, the new building would have been built on the Kelly high school site. Plans called for 13 classrooms, kindergarten and special education facilities, speech correction, remedial workrooms, elementary library program, health facilities and a multi-purpose room to serve as a cafeteria, play area, community group meeting room and grade school athletic center.

Proponents of the issue argued that the new facility would have attracted and encouraged the tenure of teachers and would have been more economical to run as a centralized plant.

Bi-State Toll Roads Discussed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri have sounded each other out on bi-state projects, particularly a stateline toll road from Kansas City south.

In a news conference held after their 1½-hour private discussion Tuesday in Kansas City, Docking held out little hope for a jointly built turnpike, and Hearnes declined to comment on its possibilities.

"It would be very beneficial," said Hearnes, "but we would have to pass legislation first."

Toll road bills are under consideration in both state legislatures. Kansas has completed a feasibility study of a projected turnpike on its side of the line, and Missouri has talked about another on its side.

Docking and Hearnes also said they discussed plans to set up a bi-state air pollution compact, largely for the Kansas City area which sprawls across both sides of the state line.

"Missouri has offered to Kansas a suggested draft on air pollution," Hearnes said.

"It is speculative at this time," Docking told newsmen.

Hearnes added, "I think this is something the states can handle without federal intervention. It is one place the states can work out a solution. If they can't, then the federal government will step in."

Docking said he and Hearnes brought up the possibility of a joint new bridge for U.S. 36 across the Missouri River at St. Joseph.

Legislative leaders of both states took part in the governors' conference. Rex Whitton, retired federal highway administrator, also attended. Others present were John Montgomery, Junction City, Kan., chairman of the Kansas Highway Commission, and Jack Stapleton of Stanberry, Mo., chairman of the Missouri Highway Commission.

Home Rule Plan Wins First Test

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- A proposed constitutional amendment to give St. Louis County full home rule powers won its first big battle in the Missouri Legislature Tuesday.

The Senate advanced it to position for passage without change on a unanimous voice vote.

The vote came, however, only after the Senate beat down a substitute offered by Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, which would have limited the county's power to change only certain fields. It lost 4-23.

Young said a number of mayors in northern St. Louis County feared the proposal would destroy municipalities and create a centralized county government.

But his opponents said the only issue was full county home rule.

As advanced, and if approved by both the Senate and the House, the proposal would go on the 1968 general election ballot.

Also moved ahead was a bill to give St. Louis County control over air pollution on a county-wide basis and another to permit Kansas City to levy a 2-cent tax to support its city museum. The tax would raise an estimated $220,000 a year.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
HIS GREATNESS ENDURES

Time is the severest judge of greatness. Though the debunking school of historians performs a useful service by cutting folk heroes down to human size occasionally, the men that a nation reveres for generation after generation are usually deserving of that honor.

It is 235 years since the birth of George Washington. In our kindergartens, walls are decorated with cutouts of hatchets and cherry trees, mythical symbols of Washington's unswerving rectitude. Older students learn that he commanded the Continental Army during the War of Independence, that he later became first president of the United States. American history majors in college may make more detailed study of his military campaigns, his contribution to the writing of the Constitution, the actual crises he faced as chief executive.

But for most of us, Washington was the man who won the Revolution, the wealthy but democratic aristocrat who lived at Mount Vernon and became the Father of His Country, the man whose birthday is an excuse for a holiday. We are content to let it go at that.

If that were all there was to it, why then should Washington be as equally respected by professional students of history? Because his greatness holds up even under the most critical examination of his life and works.

There have been abler generals in American history, more successful businessmen, more energetic and innovative presidents. The simple fact remains, however, that without Washington there would have been no Revolution, no Constitution, probably no United States as we know it today.

Washington's leadership alone virtually held together the tiny ragtag American army during the long years of the war. He was the only man respected enough by all factions to preside over the Constitutional Convention of 1787. He was the only man who towered above partisanship, the only possible choice for president of a new federal government that no one was at all sure could work.

We venerate him not only because of his place in history, however. His memory is a continuing inspiration to living men, who must face the crises and changes of their own times. Because of this, Americans 235 years from now will honor George Washington.

REUTHER'S REVOLT

The AFL-CIO Executive Council met at Bal Harbour, Fla., on Monday, (Feb. 20).

The Florida climate notwithstanding, the atmosphere at Bal Harbour in mid-February is likely to be chilly. Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers, former chairman of the AFL-CIO economic policy and organizing committees, and member of the AFL-CIO Executive Council, has resigned all three of these latter posts. He has taken with him three other UAW leaders, Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the union, and Leonard Woodcook and Pat Greathouse, vice presidents. These four on Feb. 3 withdrew from most of their posts in the larger union amalgam.

In a 6,000 word letter to the auto union's 1,500 locals, Reuther on Feb. 9 said that UAW's disagreements with AFL-CIO were "basic and fundamental" and membership in their old offices for the UAW people would be "merely an exercise in futility." The resignations and the letter are sure to cool the deliberations at the winter meeting of the AFL-CIO Executive Council.

Reuther's personal disagreements with AFL-CIO President George Meany have long been a matter of public record. He has threatened in the past to quit the Executive Council. When the AFL and CIO merged in 1955, Reuther was persuaded to take second place in the combine on the ground that he would eventually succeed Meany.

Now Meany, though 72 years old and obliged by a hip ailment to walk with a cane, has made it quite clear that he has no intention of retiring in Reuther's favor. And Reuther, nearing 60, appears to see that time is no longer on his side.

Meany, once known as "The Honest Plumber," is one of the labor movement's great conservatives. Reuther would like labor to take more leadership in the civil rights movement and build bridges of "international understanding" for disarmament and peaceful co-existence of different social economic systems. An open break came last June when Meany decided to have American labor boycott the International Labor Organization conference in Geneva after a Communist Polish government official had been elected president.

Reuther in his letter of Feb. 9 was careful not to take the UAW completely out of the AFL-CIO. The logistics of the labor movement are interesting. The AFL-CIO has 13.5 million members, of which the UAW represents 1.5 million. The labor movement's biggest membership is that of the 1.7 million-member International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Ironically, Meany and Reuther were most in agreement when they cooperated in 1957 to dump the Teamsters after Senate rackets investigators had uncovered the transactions of Dave Beck, James R. Hoffa, and other Teamsters officials. Now there is some speculation that the Teamsters and the UAW might drift together.

The surest loser from disaffection in Big Labor is the Democratic Party. President Johnson in his economic report of Jan. 26 made a big concession to labor in letting go of the so-called wage-price guideposts in a year of much labor-management negotiation.

Meany a year ago had said: "I do not buy the idea that we have to toady along behind any political party." Reuther has long been identified with the left Democratic spectrum. But last November in Michigan, once a UAW fief, his union could not summon enough political moxie to elect G. Mennen Williams, once the state's most consistent vote-getter, to the U.S. Senate.

New York state is hard pressed for sources of revenue. Costs are staggering. Unions have a strangle hold on the state and New York City. Consumers groan under a staggering tax burden. Industries are moving out daily.

So the legislature has approved a lottery to raise money for education.

Tickets will sell for $2. Prizes will range up to $100,000 and awards will be based on a combination of horse races and drawings of slips from a drum.

The amount of tax money this tax on gambling will produce is not known.

Tax benefits will pyramid. Prizes will be subject to federal and state income tax and to a New York city income tax if the winner lives there.

The state lottery recalls the levy that Mississippi once applied to liquor sales during prohibition known as the blackmarket tax.

Now that New York state has broken the ice and decided to condone gambling by taxing it, the possibilities of meeting future revenue needs there almost are unlimited.

Just for example, why not enact the following tax laws:

A 20 per cent tax on the proceeds from the numbers racket.

A 10 per cent tax on LSD.

A 25 per cent tax on narcotic sales.

A 35 per cent levy on all revenue from prostitution.

A 20 per cent tax on all proceeds from burglaries with a 40 per cent surtax if burglars commit murder before they escape.

A 10 per cent levy on all revenue obtained from bank holdups.

A 10 per cent levy on all union dues.

A 20 per cent tax on all financial operations from the underworld, including revenue from loan shark operations and protection rackets.

A $25 per head tax on all visitors coming into New York City.

Keep the faith, Baby!

COMPUTER GOES ON TRAFFIC JAM 'DIET'

Motorists in Toronto, Canada, are enjoying a preview of a system which will eventually come to all big cities.

Conscious that the economic loss from traffic tie-ups and accidents was costing the metropolitan area some $111 million annually, and realizing that there was one vehicle for every 20 feet of paved road in the city, with the ration shrinking, Toronto decided to do something about it.

It brought in a Univac 1107 electronic computer to control traffic. This fast-acting brain has the capacity to examine and analyze as many as 1,000 intersections in one second. In the one-thousandth of a second which it devotes to each intersection, the computer:

. Reads the volume and speed of traffic as reported by 2,- detection devices scattered along the streets.

. Calculates the density of traffic flow by dividing the number of vehicles by the time to detect them.

. Reads the traffic signal and notes how long it has been red or green.

. Computes the correct length of time the signal should remain green in a certain direction.

. Compares this computed time with the time the signal has already been green. If the two items are equal, it sends a signal to change the light. If the actual "green" time is less than the computed "green time, it goes on to examine the next intersection, returning to this one a second later.

. Finally, when the computer orders a signal change, it checks to see if the change actually takes place. If not, it repeats the order. If the light still doesn't change, the computer notifies a human operator and turns the problem over to him.

Because of the computer, says one writer, it is as if Toronto had added an extra lane to each of the city's four-lane streets - without turning a shovelful of dirt.

ENEMY OF FREEDOM

Once again, a bill has been introduced in Congress to create a Federal Office of Consumers. Its announced purpose is to "secure within the Federal Government effective representation of the economic interests of consumers."

The same measure has been offered twice before, without result. And one can hope that the same thing will happen this time.

The trouble with all such proposals, well-meant as they may be, is that they are based on the premise that a faceless bureaucracy can be trusted to do what is good for us, and that the average consumer is something of a nitwit who is endlessly entrapped and exploited by conscienceless manufacturers, processors, packagers, retailers and all others involved. The also proposed federal packaging and labeling laws are examples of this thinking. They ignore the fact that existing legislation of long standing, state and local as well as federal, provides adequate and effective protection from the buyer-beware element. They also ignore the more important fact that the housewife is the canniest of buyers who, once misled, does not return to the same well again. As the burnt child dreads the fire, she goes to another product or another store -- and those who attempt to exploit her are not long for the economic world.

Beyond that, these proposed laws have their roots in the worst of all philosophies -- that there must be a Big Brother who watches over and controls every aspect of life. This is the philosophy that is the enemy of human freedom.

H.L. Hunt Says

"I TOLD YOU SO!"

The Soviet Union and USA were a team supplying planes, ships, armaments and ammunition in preventing a 90% Moslem populace from overcoming Communism. In addition, Sen. Frank Graham extracted hundreds of millions of dollars from American taxpayers for Sukarno. I was often quoted as saying, "This alleged neutralist is the second most dangerous man in the world to the cause of Freedom", when Khrushchev was first worst.

The U. N. stripped the Netherlands of their possession, New Guinea, declaring the natives would decide who would govern them. Sukarno saved the people, including the tiny Papuans, of the chore of deciding. He provided the natives with such a "friendly" dictatorship as only he could supply.

October, 1965, Sukarno enlisted the aid of Communist China to overrun Malaysia. The long-distance letter writers who persuaded the Dominicans not to restore Juan Bosch, formerly ousted for subversion, to the Presidency, turned their attention to ousting Sukarno, hoping if successful there, to pay their respects to Fidel Castro.

Indonesian students, encouraged by "Red" Raborn's rejuvenated CIA, staged an uprising, slaying 600,000 plus Communists. This required General Suharto and other generals to strip Sukarno of his "President for life" title and the misrule of the third-ranking nation in the world in natural resources.

Attempting a comeback, Sukarno waved a copy of PLAYBOY Magazine containing an H. L. Hunt interview as evidence that the USA was robbing him of his reign.

His celebrated Christmas gift to Indonesians failed of welcome. The Indonesian Parliament decreed Sukarno must face trial for treason and expropriating the country's finances.

Confronted with Sukarno's charge at Christmas time, I was proud to admit I had been trying to oust Sukarno since 1959. Today I enjoy the luxury of "I told you so." HLH.

Inside Labor

President Sends Word to Labor Leaders He'll Not Push Strike-Curbing Bills

Washington, D.C. -- A labor leader reporting from the warm air front in Bal Harbour, Fla., revealed that "regardless of what you hear, we're all happy now that we've heard that President Johnson will not recommend any tough anti - strike laws."

By "everybody," the union chief referred to that august body, the AFL-CIO's Executive Council. Most of the 29 members of the high command had been worried, but now that they've heard directly from Presidential couriers that he will not urge any new drastic collective bargaining legislation, the tropical sun seems much brighter.

But not for Lyndon Johnson it doesn't. His is a melancholy position.

He is a crisis counter. Some of those close to him recall that after settling the 1965 national steel strike threat, he mused aloud and it sounded like "why couldn't that contract expire in his year, not mine?"

By "his year," the President meant that of the solid, laconic, imperturbable, ever itinerant I.W. (Abe) Abel, president of the United Steelworkers, who now will replace Walter Reuther as CIO spokesman inside the merged movement.

Abel's presidential term expires in 1969. But the national steel industry pact runs out in mid-1968 -- the year Mr. Johnson does battle again. Thus he will face a Presidential campaign right at the height of a threatened national steel strike --which he could not permit to run on and on as they have in the past.

Yet "Abe" is a determined man. He is known to have told the AFL-CIO Executive Council not too long ago he is tired of having the government tell the steelworkers they cannot strike. This has been going on too long and he doubts the White House will prevail next time around.

All this will develop in the midst of the second session of the 90th Congress. The public will howl. And it will ask why there is no strike-curbing legislation on the books.

But insiders know that President Johnson will not need to wait until mid-'68 for other labor crisis to anger the public. Even now the Transport Workers Union (TWU) is beginning to schedule the series of section by section, yard by yard, garage by garage talks which precede presentation of formal demands on the famed New York City Transit Authority.

The Authority has not yet recovered from the billion dollar 1966 stoppage. But it has a contrast bargain date this fall. And the truly tough veteran of labor wars Douglas MacMahon, TWU Secretary-Treasurer, who held the fort when the dying Mike Quill was jailed and hospitalized, said about a year ago when talking of the $60 million victory:

"This is only the first bite. We'll soon be coming back for a second."

New York City, vortex and financial center of the world, may well be struck again.

It was the TWU's 13-day subway and bus paralysis which forced President Johnson to pledge in his 1966 State of the Union message that he would present proposals for the handling of emergency strikes which threaten the nation's security and welfare.

To prepare such legislation he named a task force headed by Under Secretary of State Katzenbach. But whatever it produced was stillborn.

He knows the Republicans have him there and will not let him forget his public pledge. What disturbs him is that the Republicans who have taken after him are the liberals -- Senators Javits, Morse, Kuchel, Percy, Hatfield and Monroney. He cannot do passionate battle with these moderates as easily as he could assault the conservatives.

The President is not too much concerned over the threatened truck strike. It can be handled.

And he still has some time on the "Reuther-auto thing."

What disturbs the White House is the threatened April 12 national railroad strike. Roy Siemiller's machinists are in this one. They are the ones who hit the airlines last summer.

They simply don't believe the railroads are any more sacred than the airlines. They will strike if they don't get the big wage increase they seek.

And that's closer than you think, but not closer than the President thinks. What can he do?

Propose compulsory legislation? Labor and industry would fight that.

Accept a proposal for seizure of vital installations or transport facilities which are struck? That puts the government into the railroading business and on everybody's blacklist.

Ask for extension of anti-trust laws to cover labor in the event of a crippling, nationwide strike?

But that would mean the end of his alliance with the members of the powerful AFL-CIO Executive Council.

Yet nothing embitters the public like an inconveniencing strike on airlines or railroads. If a mass industry is struck, the public is real casual. Hit a trolley or rail line or food supply trucking firm and the cultural revolution is on.

Mr. Johnson knows this. So he is not happy, though he made it a gay stay in Florida for the labor leaders by sending word he'll play it by ear.

It's an experienced ear -- so he well knows the sound he hears on the home front is not mere thunder.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the problems everyone has to solve today is whether the world is getting balmier—or you are.

The best way is to make a periodic checkup on yourself. To determine whether you have retained or lost your marbles, figure out your own sanity quotient periodically.

For example, here is a sample quiz by which you can rate yourself:

Are you able to sit down and reason with your own children intelligently, thus helping them to improve their ways?

If you had it to do all over again, would you be perfectly willing to relieve you life exactly as you have up until now?

Can you smile tolerantly when one of the guys you are playing golf with starts jabbering just as you try a game-winning putt on the 18th hole?

When your neighbor buys a new car more expensive than the one you own, does it make you feel warm all over because someone you know is getting ahead?

Are you pleased if, while preparing a backyard cookout, one of the guests steps forward with a suggestion on how to make the charcoal fire burn better?

Should someone offer to fix a traffic ticket for you, would you become righteously indignant because you feel the law ought to take its course in such matters?

After filling out your income tax forms each year, do you have the quiet satisfaction of someone who has done a good hard honest job?

Do you make it a policy to pay up all your bills at least a week ahead of time to avoid any possible confusion?

Are you the kind of fellow who refuses to bet on a sure thing because you think it's unfair to take money from suckers?

Are you the type of husband about whom other wives say to their own mates, "Why can't you be more like him?"

Do you make it a point never to lose your temper, no matter what the provocation?

When you decide to give up a bad habit, such as smoking too much or cussing out the government, can you do it easily and without a single relapse?

Well, now let's look at the box score.

If the answer to all the foregoing questions was "yes," there is no doubt that you are an unusual case. You are theoretically 100 per cent normal.

That means you are abnormally normal, the kind of a smug bore who drives everyone else around him out of their minds.

You are also probably so dully perfect and perfectly dull that your wife is planning to run off with the laundryman just to get away from you.

MRS. POWELL'S REBUFF

On Sept. 1, Drew Pearson reported that Mrs. Adam Clayton Powell had come to Washington with their 3 - year-old son to see her husband. She had not seen Powell for a year. In Washington she had telephoned her husband's office, been rebuffed, and returned to Puerto Rico.

Pearson reported that Mrs. Powell had not at that date received any of the $20,578.39 in salary she was supposed to be paid. "Inquiry at the House of Representatives by this column ascertained that the monthly checks are mailed not to Mrs. Powell in Puerto Rico but to Powell's office in Washington," Pearson reported.

On Feb. 16 Mrs. Powell testified before the special House Investigating Committee that she had not seen her husband for a year, that she had come to Washington in August with their son to see him, and that she had received no salary checks up until that time.

"Did you see Mr. Powell then?" Mrs. Powell was asked.

"I tried to, but I couldn't".

WASHINGTON -- On Jan. 24, 1966, the U. S. Senate in the second closed - door session since World War II voted 61 to 28 not to permit other senators except the Armed Services Committee to ride herd on the secret activities of the Central Intelligence Agency.

If that vote had been different, the country might not have been so surprised by recent disclosures that some $3 million of the taxpayers money had been spent by CIA to subsidize various student organizations represented to the public as spontaneous youth movements organized in the spirit of American free enterprise. Investigation by other senators besides the pro-military armed services committee would have disclosed this subsidy.

During the secret debate, Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., contended that the CIA played a more influential role in foreign policy than the state department; therefore his Senate Foreign Relations Committee members should be informed of the CIA's activities.

Standing near Fulbright and striking his right first into his left palm with a loud crack, Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, blasted the Foreign Relations Committee as "self - serving, self-seeking."

Russell demanded that the resolution to permit the Foreign Relations Committee to participate in supervision of CIA be referred to his committee, where of course it was certain to be killed.

Vice President Humphrey, usually a liberal, ruled against his liberal colleagues. He won the day for Russell and his conservatives.

Ten years before, the senate had also voted, 59 to 27, to defeat a proposal by Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., now senate leader, to create a joint congressional committee to oversee the CIA. The then - senate leader from Texas, now President of the United States, voted against this checkrein on central intelligence.

PUBLIC DOESN'T KNOW

Since other members of the senate and the public have been denied access to the operations of the central intelligence, this column will undertake to report on some of them -- without disclosing the more delicate operations which might involve national security.

Unquestionably the CIA has some notable accomplishments to its credit, such as spotting the arrival of Russian missiles in Cuba, preventing the pro-Communist take - over of the Congo, predicting the Chinese development of nuclear weapons, predicting the fall of Premier Ben Fella of Algeria (and possibly arranging it); and the campaign to elect pro-American President Magsaysay in the Philippines.

But here are some of the lesser known incidents, now history, which might have been prevented if the CIA had been answerable to congressional scrutiny, as is every other U.S. agency under our traditional system of government by checks and balances.

In September, 1965, Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore charged that a CIA agent was caught trying to buy intelligence information from a Singapore official and that, in order to hush up the matter, Premier Lee had been offered $3 million by central intelligence. State department officials denied Lee's charge, whereupon he produced a letter from Secretary of State Rusk, written in 1961, apologizing for the attempted bribe.

-- In Cambodia, CIA agents got involved in an attempt to overthrow Prince Sihanouk's government. Ever since that time the Prince has been vigorously anti- American.

-- In Costa Rica, in the fall of 1953, Jose Figueres, married to a Brooklyn woman but considered liberal by CIA standards, was campaigning for President. Figueres was critical of the United Fruit Company, which has cooperated closely with central intelligence. A CIA agent put a tap on Figueres's phone. It was detected and the CIA agent caught.

Figueres was elected President of Costa Rica on Nov. 8. He continued to be friendly to the United States despite central intelligence and despite the fact that he always suspected the CIA agents had conspired with Nicaraguan conservative exiles to invade Costa Rica on January 11, 1955. The invaders were forced to withdraw by the Organization of American States.

These are just a few of the subterranean operations of central intelligence, which the American people have paid for but have not known about. They are operations which have damaged American prestige aboard. More of these incidents will be reported in a future column.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
HIS GREATNESS ENDURES

Time is the severest judge of greatness. Though the debunking school of historians performs a useful service by cutting folk heroes down to human size occasionally, the men that a nation reveres for generation after generation are usually deserving of that honor.

It is 235 years since the birth of George Washington. In our kindergartens, walls are decorated with cutouts of hatchets and cherry trees, mythical symbols of Washington's unswerving rectitude. Older students learn that he commanded the Continental Army during the War of Independence, that he later became first president of the United States. American history majors in college may make more detailed study of his military campaigns, his contribution to the writing of the Constitution, the actual crises he faced as chief executive.

But for most of us, Washington was the man who won the Revolution, the wealthy but democratic aristocrat who lived at Mount Vernon and became the Father of His Country, the man whose birthday is an excuse for a holiday. We are content to let it go at that.

If that were all there was to it, why then should Washington be as equally respected by professional students of history? Because his greatness holds up even under the most critical examination of his life and works.

There have been abler generals in American history, more successful businessmen, more energetic and innovative presidents. The simple fact remains, however, that without Washington there would have been no Revolution, no Constitution, probably no United States as we know it today.

Washington's leadership alone virtually held together the tiny ragtag American army during the long years of the war. He was the only man respected enough by all factions to preside over the Constitutional Convention of 1787. He was the only man who towered above partisanship, the only possible choice for president of a new federal government that no one was at all sure could work.

We venerate him not only because of his place in history, however. His memory is a continuing inspiration to living men, who must face the crises and changes of their own times. Because of this, Americans 235 years from now will honor George Washington.

REUTHER'S REVOLT

The AFL-CIO Executive Council met at Bal Harbour, Fla., on Monday, (Feb. 20).

The Florida climate notwithstanding, the atmosphere at Bal Harbour in mid-February is likely to be chilly. Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers, former chairman of the AFL-CIO economic policy and organizing committees, and member of the AFL-CIO Executive Council, has resigned all three of these latter posts. He has taken with him three other UAW leaders, Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the union, and Leonard Woodcook and Pat Greathouse, vice presidents. These four on Feb. 3 withdrew from most of their posts in the larger union amalgam.

In a 6,000 word letter to the auto union's 1,500 locals, Reuther on Feb. 9 said that UAW's disagreements with AFL-CIO were "basic and fundamental" and membership in their old offices for the UAW people would be "merely an exercise in futility." The resignations and the letter are sure to cool the deliberations at the winter meeting of the AFL-CIO Executive Council.

Reuther's personal disagreements with AFL-CIO President George Meany have long been a matter of public record. He has threatened in the past to quit the Executive Council. When the AFL and CIO merged in 1955, Reuther was persuaded to take second place in the combine on the ground that he would eventually succeed Meany.

Now Meany, though 72 years old and obliged by a hip ailment to walk with a cane, has made it quite clear that he has no intention of retiring in Reuther's favor. And Reuther, nearing 60, appears to see that time is no longer on his side.

Meany, once known as "The Honest Plumber," is one of the labor movement's great conservatives. Reuther would like labor to take more leadership in the civil rights movement and build bridges of "international understanding" for disarmament and peaceful co-existence of different social economic systems. An open break came last June when Meany decided to have American labor boycott the International Labor Organization conference in Geneva after a Communist Polish government official had been elected president.

Reuther in his letter of Feb. 9 was careful not to take the UAW completely out of the AFL-CIO. The logistics of the labor movement are interesting. The AFL-CIO has 13.5 million members, of which the UAW represents 1.5 million. The labor movement's biggest membership is that of the 1.7 million-member International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Ironically, Meany and Reuther were most in agreement when they cooperated in 1957 to dump the Teamsters after Senate rackets investigators had uncovered the transactions of Dave Beck, James R. Hoffa, and other Teamsters officials. Now there is some speculation that the Teamsters and the UAW might drift together.

The surest loser from disaffection in Big Labor is the Democratic Party. President Johnson in his economic report of Jan. 26 made a big concession to labor in letting go of the so-called wage-price guideposts in a year of much labor-management negotiation.

Meany a year ago had said: "I do not buy the idea that we have to toady along behind any political party." Reuther has long been identified with the left Democratic spectrum. But last November in Michigan, once a UAW fief, his union could not summon enough political moxie to elect G. Mennen Williams, once the state's most consistent vote-getter, to the U.S. Senate.

New York state is hard pressed for sources of revenue. Costs are staggering. Unions have a strangle hold on the state and New York City. Consumers groan under a staggering tax burden. Industries are moving out daily.

So the legislature has approved a lottery to raise money for education.

Tickets will sell for $2. Prizes will range up to $100,000 and awards will be based on a combination of horse races and drawings of slips from a drum.

The amount of tax money this tax on gambling will produce is not known.

Tax benefits will pyramid. Prizes will be subject to federal and state income tax and to a New York city income tax if the winner lives there.

The state lottery recalls the levy that Mississippi once applied to liquor sales during prohibition known as the blackmarket tax.

Now that New York state has broken the ice and decided to condone gambling by taxing it, the possibilities of meeting future revenue needs there almost are unlimited.

Just for example, why not enact the following tax laws:

A 20 per cent tax on the proceeds from the numbers racket.

A 10 per cent tax on LSD.

A 25 per cent tax on narcotic sales.

A 35 per cent levy on all revenue from prostitution.

A 20 per cent tax on all proceeds from burglaries with a 40 per cent surtax if burglars commit murder before they escape.

A 10 per cent levy on all revenue obtained from bank holdups.

A 10 per cent levy on all union dues.

A 20 per cent tax on all financial operations from the underworld, including revenue from loan shark operations and protection rackets.

A $25 per head tax on all visitors coming into New York City.

Keep the faith, Baby!

COMPUTER GOES ON TRAFFIC JAM 'DIET'

Motorists in Toronto, Canada, are enjoying a preview of a system which will eventually come to all big cities.

Conscious that the economic loss from traffic tie-ups and accidents was costing the metropolitan area some $111 million annually, and realizing that there was one vehicle for every 20 feet of paved road in the city, with the ration shrinking, Toronto decided to do something about it.

It brought in a Univac 1107 electronic computer to control traffic. This fast-acting brain has the capacity to examine and analyze as many as 1,000 intersections in one second. In the one-thousandth of a second which it devotes to each intersection, the computer:

. Reads the volume and speed of traffic as reported by 2,- detection devices scattered along the streets.

. Calculates the density of traffic flow by dividing the number of vehicles by the time to detect them.

. Reads the traffic signal and notes how long it has been red or green.

. Computes the correct length of time the signal should remain green in a certain direction.

. Compares this computed time with the time the signal has already been green. If the two items are equal, it sends a signal to change the light. If the actual "green" time is less than the computed "green time, it goes on to examine the next intersection, returning to this one a second later.

. Finally, when the computer orders a signal change, it checks to see if the change actually takes place. If not, it repeats the order. If the light still doesn't change, the computer notifies a human operator and turns the problem over to him.

Because of the computer, says one writer, it is as if Toronto had added an extra lane to each of the city's four-lane streets - without turning a shovelful of dirt.

ENEMY OF FREEDOM

Once again, a bill has been introduced in Congress to create a Federal Office of Consumers. Its announced purpose is to "secure within the Federal Government effective representation of the economic interests of consumers."

The same measure has been offered twice before, without result. And one can hope that the same thing will happen this time.

The trouble with all such proposals, well-meant as they may be, is that they are based on the premise that a faceless bureaucracy can be trusted to do what is good for us, and that the average consumer is something of a nitwit who is endlessly entrapped and exploited by conscienceless manufacturers, processors, packagers, retailers and all others involved. The also proposed federal packaging and labeling laws are examples of this thinking. They ignore the fact that existing legislation of long standing, state and local as well as federal, provides adequate and effective protection from the buyer-beware element. They also ignore the more important fact that the housewife is the canniest of buyers who, once misled, does not return to the same well again. As the burnt child dreads the fire, she goes to another product or another store -- and those who attempt to exploit her are not long for the economic world.

Beyond that, these proposed laws have their roots in the worst of all philosophies -- that there must be a Big Brother who watches over and controls every aspect of life. This is the philosophy that is the enemy of human freedom.

Standing near Fulbright and striking his right first into his left palm with a loud crack, Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, blasted the Foreign Relations Committee as "self - serving, self-seeking."

Russell demanded that the resolution to permit the Foreign Relations Committee to participate in supervision of CIA be referred to his committee, where of course it was certain to be killed.

Vice President Humphrey, usually a liberal, ruled against his liberal colleagues. He won the day for Russell and his conservatives.

Ten years before, the senate had also voted, 59 to 27, to defeat a proposal by Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., now senate leader, to create a joint congressional committee to oversee the CIA. The then - senate leader from Texas, now President of the United States, voted against this checkrein on central intelligence.

PUBLIC DOESN'T KNOW

Since other members of the senate and the public have been denied access to the operations of the central intelligence, this column will undertake to report on some of them -- without disclosing the more delicate operations which might involve national security.

Unquestionably the CIA has some notable accomplishments to its credit, such as spotting the arrival of Russian missiles in Cuba, preventing the pro-Communist take - over of the Congo, predicting the Chinese development of nuclear weapons, predicting the fall of Premier Ben Fella of Algeria (and possibly arranging it); and the campaign to elect pro-American President Magsaysay in the Philippines.

But here are some of the lesser known incidents, now history, which might have been prevented if the CIA had been answerable to congressional scrutiny, as is every other U.S. agency under our traditional system of government by checks and balances.

In September, 1965, Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore charged that a CIA agent was caught trying to buy intelligence information from a Singapore official and that, in order to hush up the matter, Premier Lee had been offered $3 million by central intelligence. State department officials denied Lee's charge, whereupon he produced a letter from Secretary of State Rusk, written in 1961, apologizing for the attempted bribe.

-- In Cambodia, CIA agents got involved in an attempt to overthrow Prince Sihanouk's government. Ever since that time the Prince has been vigorously anti- American.

-- In Costa Rica, in the fall of 1953, Jose Figueres, married to a Brooklyn woman but considered liberal by CIA standards, was campaigning for President. Figueres was critical of the United Fruit Company, which has cooperated closely with central intelligence. A CIA agent put a tap on Figueres's phone. It was detected and the CIA agent caught.

Figueres was elected President of Costa Rica on Nov. 8. He continued to be friendly to the United States despite central intelligence and despite the fact that he always suspected the CIA agents had conspired with Nicaraguan conservative exiles to invade Costa Rica on January 11, 1955. The invaders were forced to withdraw by the Organization of American States.

These are just a few of the subterranean operations of central intelligence, which the American people have paid for but have not known about. They are operations which have damaged American prestige aboard. More of these incidents will be reported in a future column.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

President Sends Word to Labor Leaders He'll Not Push Strike-Curbing Bills

Washington, D.C. -- A labor leader reporting from the warm air front in Bal Harbour, Fla., revealed that "regardless of what you hear, we're all happy now that we've heard that President Johnson will not recommend any tough anti - strike laws."

By "everybody," the union chief referred to that august body, the AFL-CIO's Executive Council. Most of the 29 members of the high command had been worried, but now that they've heard directly from Presidential couriers that he will not urge any new drastic collective bargaining legislation, the tropical sun seems much brighter.

But not for Lyndon Johnson it doesn't. His is a melancholy position.

He is a crisis counter. Some of those close to him recall that after settling the 1965 national steel strike threat, he mused aloud and it sounded like "why couldn't that contract expire in his year, not mine?"

By "his year," the President meant that of the solid, laconic, imperturbable, ever itinerant I.W. (Abe) Abel, president of the United Steelworkers, who now will replace Walter Reuther as CIO spokesman inside the merged movement.

Abel's presidential term expires in 1969. But the national steel industry pact runs out in mid-1968 -- the year Mr. Johnson does battle again. Thus he will face a Presidential campaign right at the height of a threatened national steel strike --which he could not permit to run on and on as they have in the past.

Yet "Abe" is a determined man. He is known to have told the AFL-CIO Executive Council not too long ago he is tired of having the government tell the steelworkers they cannot strike. This has been going on too long and he doubts the White House will prevail next time around.

All this will develop in the midst of the second session of the 90th Congress. The public will howl. And it will ask why there is no strike-curbing legislation on the books.

But insiders know that President Johnson will not need to wait until mid-'68 for other labor crisis to anger the public. Even now the Transport Workers Union (TWU) is beginning to schedule the series of section by section, yard by yard, garage by garage talks which precede presentation of formal demands on the famed New York City Transit Authority.

The Authority has not yet recovered from the billion dollar 1966 stoppage. But it has a contrast bargain date this fall. And the truly tough veteran of labor wars Douglas MacMahon, TWU Secretary-Treasurer, who held the fort when the dying Mike Quill was jailed and hospitalized, said about a year ago when talking of the $60 million victory:

"This is only the first bite. We'll soon be coming back for a second."

New York City, vortex and financial center of the world, may well be struck again.

It was the TWU's 13-day subway and bus paralysis which forced President Johnson to pledge in his 1966 State of the Union message that he would present proposals for the handling of emergency strikes which threaten the nation's security and welfare.

To prepare such legislation he named a task force headed by Under Secretary of State Katzenbach. But whatever it produced was stillborn.

He knows the Republicans have him there and will not let him forget his public pledge. What disturbs him is that the Republicans who have taken after him are the liberals -- Senators Javits, Morse, Kuchel, Percy, Hatfield and Monroney. He cannot do passionate battle with these moderates as easily as he could assault the conservatives.

The President is not too much concerned over the threatened truck strike. It can be handled.

And he still has some time on the "Reuther-auto thing."

What disturbs the White House is the threatened April 12 national railroad strike. Roy Siemiller's machinists are in this one. They are the ones who hit the airlines last summer.

They simply don't believe the railroads are any more sacred than the airlines. They will strike if they don't get the big wage increase they seek.

And that's closer than you think, but not closer than the President thinks. What can he do?

Propose compulsory legislation? Labor and industry would fight that.

Accept a proposal for seizure of vital installations or transport facilities which are struck? That puts the government into the railroading business and on everybody's blacklist.

Ask for extension of anti-trust laws to cover labor in the event of a crippling, nationwide strike?

But that would mean the end of his alliance with the members of the powerful AFL-CIO Executive Council.

Yet nothing embitters the public like an inconveniencing strike on airlines or railroads. If a mass industry is struck, the public is real casual. Hit a trolley or rail line or food supply trucking firm and the cultural revolution is on.

Mr. Johnson knows this. So he is not happy, though he made it a gay stay in Florida for the labor leaders by sending word he'll play it by ear.

It's an experienced ear -- so he well knows the sound he hears on the home front is not mere thunder.

Class S At Lesterville

Quarterfinals Set at Both Couch and Lesterville

LESTERVILLE -- In class M regional basketball last night Eminence, second-seeded at Lesterville, downed Centerville in the opening game 76-47. St. Joseph of Farmington came out on top in the second game beating the Ellington Whippets 65-46.

The winless Centerville quintet was no match for the second seeded Eminence squad. Eminence bounded to a 14-point lead in the first quarter and raced to a 19-point lead at the half. Eminence's Jim Piatt and Dale Thorton led the scoring for them cramming in 15 points apiece. Jim Campbell and Junior Goodson led the Centerville five with 21 and 16 respectively.

In the second game St. Joseph's height put a damper on Ellington's speedsters in capturing their victory. The Hornets led the whole route up to the third quarter. Ellington raced to a two-point lead but couldn't maintain it and trailed at the end of three 42-39. Al Morgan paved the way for the Hornets getting 20 points while Ellington failed to put a man in double figures.

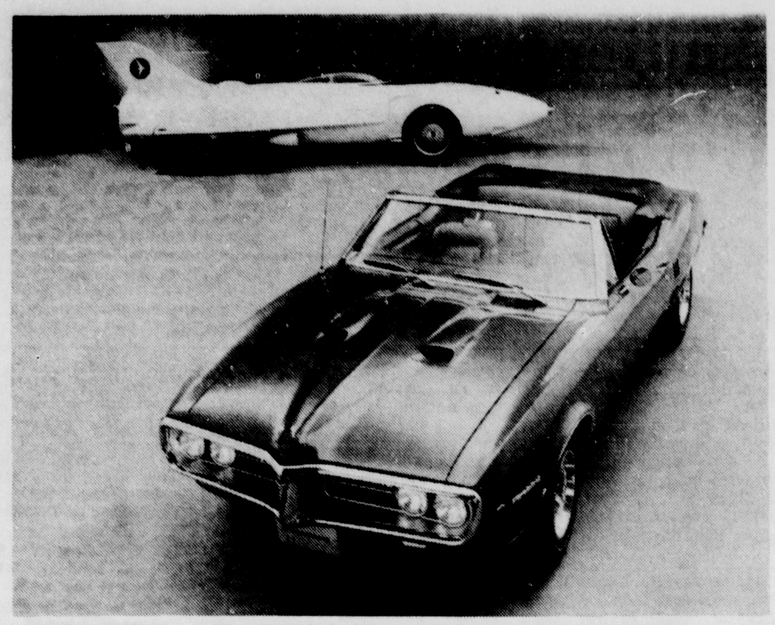
Tonight's action will see Lesterville and South Iron tangling in the first game and Eminence and St. Joseph fighting it out at 8:30 p.m.

At Couch last night, first round play also continued. The first seeded Van Buren Bulldogs failed to live up to expectations and collapsed, losing to the Ellsinore Redbirds 57-50. Ellsinore jumped to a 12-7 lead in the first and maintained an 8 to 10-point difference throughout the encounter. Copeland and Myers hit 14 apiece for the winners. Nelson netted 17 for the Dogs.

In the second game the Naylor Eagles defeated the Koshkonong Bluejays 66-37. Naylor is seeded number 3. Naylor had little trouble in winning, behind the shooting of Abernathy and Lunsford, who swished 19 and 14 points respectively. Moss collected 17 for the losers.

Tonight Ellsinore will battle Birch Tree in the first game and Couch will play Naylor in the nightcap for the quarterfinals at Couch.

At Lesterville, South Iron will challenge Lesterville in the 7 p.m. game and Eminence will face the tournament defending champ, St. Joseph at 8:30 p.m.



INTRODUCING — The Firebird, Pontiac Motor Division's new personal sports car, is shown above in the convertible model. The Firebird 400 features Pontiac's famed 400 cubic-inch V-8 engine, special hood with dual air scoops and wide oval red line tires. The Firebird is also available in a hardtop coupe and other engines offered include the overhead camshaft six-cylinder standard and the 326 cubic-inch V-8 optional. The Firebird is named after a legendary Indian symbol which promised action, power, beauty and youth. It was first used in 1954 on General Motors' dramatic gas turbine powered car, Firebird I, shown in the background.

Pontiac Introduces Firebird

The addition of a completely new Pontiac sports car series -- the Firebird -- was announced today by John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and general manager of Pontiac Motor Division.

Built to sports car proportions with a new approach to "long hood-short deck" styling, the Firebird will go on sale February 23.

It will be available in two styles -- a hardtop coupe and convertible.

Adding a new dimension to the personal sports car field, Firebird will offer a choice of five engines, including the Pontiac overhead camshaft six-cylinder engine as standard and up to the optional 400 cubic-inch V-8.

Standard equipment are bucket seats, three-spaced manual transmission (with four-speed manual and two-speed and three-speed automatic optional), all-vinyl interior trims and the safety items previously announced on the 1967 Pontiacs.

"The personal sports car field is probably the most rapidly growing in the industry. With the introduction of the Firebird we hope to attract new car buyers who want to step up to something extra in styling as well as performance in this segment of the market," DeLorean said.

Built on a 108.1 - inch wheelbase, the Firebird has an overall length of 188.8 inches, is 72.6 inches wide and 51.5 inches high.

The Firebird is named after a legendary Indian symbol which promised action, power, beauty and youth. It was first used in 1954 on GM's dramatic gas-turbine-powered car, Firebird I.

EXTERIOR STYLING

Exclusive styling features set the Firebird apart into a class of its own, earning new status for Pontiac's trend-setting stylists.

The distinctive Pontiac identity is maintained with a wide peripheral front bumper and strong vertical center accent framing two deep grille openings.

Horizontally mounted dual headlamps are set in the outboard ends of the grille opening and chrome framed parking lamps are on the lower valance panel. Pontiac block lettering appears on the left grille face.

The side appearance includes a full width rocker moulding and six vertical louvers on the front of the rear quarter, rear of the door opening. All models have an identification name and Firebird crest on the front fender in front of the wheel opening. An engine designation emblem is on each side of the hood plateau.

Firebird rear end treatment features a protective wrap-around bumper, wide louver style tail lamps with integral back-up lamps consisting of two long chrome edged slits on either side set in the painted rear end panel. Individual Pontiac letters appear on the deck lid.

A distinctive Firebird emblem appears on the fuel filler door located at the center of the rear end panel and models with the 400 option will have the 400 designation numerals on the right side of the deck lid.

The Custom trim option will add front and rear wheel opening mouldings and will replace the hub caps with deluxe wheel discs.

ENGINES

A total of 17 engine-transmission combinations make it possible for each buyer to custom-tailor the Firebird to his own performance requirements.

In addition to the standard 230 cubic-inch overhead cam engine rated at 165 horsepower, the Firebrid is available with the Sprint OHC 6 engine rated at 215 horsepower with four-barrel carburetion.

The 326 cubic-inch V-8 engine is offered with two-barrel carburetion with 250 horsepower and a four-barrel carburetor H. O. version with 285 horsepower. Special body side striping including H. O. designation is included with this option.

An optional "400" performance package offers the 400 cubic-inch V-8 with 325 horsepower and includes wide oval red line tires, and twin air scoops on a special hood as standard equipment.

CHASSIS

The Firebird features the time-proven, extensively rated structural elements of a separate frame and integrated body-frame combination. This offers the advantages of isolating the passenger compartment from the power plant and providing excellent handling and roadability characteristics.

The front chassis is a unitized sub-assembly consisting of the engine-transmission combination, front suspension, brakes, and steering gear with linkage all mounted on separate forward portion "ladder" frame design.

This is bolted to the body through four rubber-isolated mounts.

A heavy ribbed reinforced underbody forms a sturdy foundation platform for the all steer body. At the rear, framing elements are integrated into the underbody to provide firm mounting for the rear suspension and axle.

Single leaf springs and solid Salisbury rear axle contribute to the quality characteristics of the Firebird. The Firebird rear axle has separate axle shaft tubes pressed and welded into a central cast differential carrier housing.

A single tubular propeller shaft connects the transmission to the rear axle through yoke and trunion universal joints.

Standard gear ratios are designed for general use with optional economy, performance and special purpose ratios also offered.

Wide oval tires are standard as well as Pontiac's exclusive Space Saver Spare, a specially-constructed spare tire deflated until needed.

Other standard equipment includes a dual circuit hydraulic brake system with a malfunction warning system, an energy-absorbing steering column, a traffic warning flasher and provision in the turn signal to indicate freeway lane changes.

INTERIORS

The Firebird assures comfort and luxury for both front and rear passengers with curved side glass contributing increased shoulder room.

In addition to the "thin-line" front bucket seats there is a bench-type front seat option on hardtop coupes with folding center armrest and individual backrest to suit individual preference.

Also there is an optional folding rear seat back, carpet trimmed on the back, to provide added luggage space.

A center floor console with rear seat courtesy lights, ashtray, stowage compartment and floor shift controls is available for all transmissions.

Interiors are all expanded Morrokide and are color-keyed to the exterior paint colors.

The floors are covered in quality nylon blend deep loop pile carpeting.

The Firebird sports styled padded instrument panel conveniently recesses all instruments and tell-tale lights in two round bezels. Control knobs, located high on the instrument cluster, feature easy grip styling.

Among the standard equipment items are dual, front and rear seat belts with push-button release, front seat shoulder harness attaching provisions, front seat backrest latches, freewheeling door locks and two-speed electric windshield wipers and washers.

For the luxury-minded, the Custom trim option provides an instrument panel assist grip, deluxe steering wheel, custom seat and side trim, bright roof side rail and windshield mouldings.

ACCESSORIES

A full selection of options and accessories are offered including power steering, power brakes and manual or power front disc with drum rear brakes, AM-FM radio, rear window defogger, air conditioning, stereo tape player and Pontiac's cruise control system.

Seeded Teams Move Into Quarterfinal Round Play

ADVANCE -- First round action will be completed tonight along with one of the quarterfinal round games in the class S regional basketball tournament.

In last night's play Advance, Delta and Bell City won as expected and advanced into the quarterfinal round play, where they will return to action Thursday night. Advance swept past Cooter 85-56, Delta crushed Marquand 88-40, and Bell City beat Parma, 64-47.

Tonight's first two games will be in first round play as Patton meets Cape Girardeau College high at 6 p.m. and Howardville takes on Zalma in the 7:30 p.m. clash. The 9 p.m. game will pit top-seeded Scott Central against the sometimes surprising Morehouse Tigers in quarterfinal round action.

ADVANCE BLOWS

Coach Carroll Cookson's fighting Hornets blew the Cooter Wildcats out of the gymnasium and the class S regional tournament with a deadly attack.

Advance, somewhat surprised with the outcourt shooting of the Cooter quintet in the first period, held only a five-point edge, 25-20. It continued to surge and made its way into the half time break with a 40-27 edge, scoring 15 points the second period and holding the Cooter quintet to seven.

After the break the Hornets never let up and made its way into a comfortable lead, using substitutes in the final minutes.

Ken Garner took scoring honors for the Hornets with 23 points. Jerry Shirrell, and Bill Morgan added 18 and 17 points respectively and Steve Daniels contributed 11 for the Hornets cause.

Dan Jernigan and Bill Flowers led the Wildcats in scoring with 24 and 17 points respectively.

WATCH OUT FOR BOBCATS

Delta's reserve units ran up a 58-point second half as the Delta quintet's championship bound Bobcats made its way past the Marquand Tibers, 88-40.

Delta shot into a 16-4 first period lead and held a 30-14 lead at intermission before Coach Pete Townsend put his reserves to work in the second half.

Thirteen men got into the scoring column for the Delta Bobcats. Jim Below and Carl Eakins paced the attack with 19 and 16 points respectively.

PARMA FALLS

For the first time in nine years the name of the Parma Pirates will fail to appear in the finals of the class S tournament. Bell City put the Pirates down in its opening game, 64-47.

The Pirates, who appeared in the regional finals for the past eight seasons under the coaching of Doyle Denbow, who has retired, played a hard fought game but was outmanned on the boards and in experience.

Denbow, who retired after leading his Pirate squad to the regional championship last season, won six second place trophies and one third place in his reign of the tournament finals.

Bell City, with a fine defense and good shooting opened an 15-11 first quarter lead and made its way into a 32-19 half time edge and a quarterfinal round berth.

Parma closed to with eight points of the Cubs late in the period on the shooting of James Gibson and rebounding of six-foot David Newell who pulled 22 rebounds in the contest, Parma collected 34 in all.

James Gibson, the Pirates big center, netted 17 points in three periods, failing to score in the final. Henry Lutes added 12 to the Pirates losing cause.

Advance, somewhat surprised with the outcourt shooting of the Cooter quintet in the first period, held only a five-point edge, 25-20. It continued to surge and made its way into the half time break with a 40-27 edge, scoring 15 points the second period and holding the Cooter quintet to seven.

After the break the Hornets never let up and made its way into a comfortable lead, using substitutes in the final minutes.

Ken Garner took scoring honors for the Hornets with 23 points. Jerry Shirrell, and Bill Morgan added 18 and 17 points respectively and Steve Daniels contributed 11 for the Hornets cause.

Dan Jernigan and Bill Flowers led the Wildcats in scoring with 24 and 17 points respectively.

WATCH OUT FOR BOBCATS

Delta's reserve units ran up a 58-point second half as the Delta quintet's championship bound Bobcats made its way past the Marquand Tibers, 88-40.

Delta shot into a 16-4 first period lead and held a 30-14 lead at intermission before Coach Pete Townsend put his reserves to work in the second half.

Thirteen men got into the scoring column for the Delta Bobcats. Jim Below and Carl Eakins paced the attack with 19 and 16 points respectively.

PARMA FALLS

For the first time in nine years the name of the Parma Pirates will fail to appear in the finals of the class S tournament. Bell City put the Pirates down in its opening game, 64-47.

The Pirates, who appeared in the regional finals for the past eight seasons under the coaching of Doyle Denbow, who has retired, played a hard fought game but was outmanned on the boards and in experience.

Denbow, who retired after leading his Pirate squad to the regional championship last season, won six second place trophies and one third place in his reign of the tournament finals.

Bell City, with a fine defense and good shooting opened an 15-11 first quarter lead and made its way into a 32-19 half time edge and a quarterfinal round berth.

Parma closed to with eight points of the Cubs late in the period on the shooting of James Gibson and rebounding of six-foot David Newell who pulled 22 rebounds in the contest, Parma collected 34 in all.

James Gibson, the Pirates big center, netted 17 points in three periods, failing to score in the final. Henry Lutes added 12 to the Pirates losing cause.

Matthews Stumbles Past Lilbourn

SCOTT CITY - Quarterfinal action in the Illmo-Scott City class M regional basketball tournament last night saw Matthews fight off Lilbourn and take a 60-51 win and Illmo-Scott City waltz past St. Vincents of Perryville 70-48.

Tournament action will resume Thursday after a lay off tonight. Thursday night will mark the end of quarter final round action and New Madrid will go against Oran at 7 p.m. followed by the East Prairie-Notre Dame game at 8:30 p.m.

Last night's winners will meet Friday night at 7 p.m. in the first semi-final round game. Matthews is seeded-number one and Illmo-Scott City the tournament darkhorse, is seeded fourth.

LILBOURN PUTS ON GALLANT FIGHT

Matthews' top seeded Pirates had to fight for 32 minutes in last night's first quarter final round game as rival New Madrid countian Lilbourn stayed in the game with its slow pattern type ball, slowing the Pirates down from their usual fast pace and almost upsetting them.

Matthews managed to fall into an 8-6 first quarter lead after trailing most of the period and held a slim three-point lead at intermission, 24-21.

Early in the third period with the Pirates holding a slim one-point lead the Lilbourn Panthers lost the services of star Forward Russell Lacewell and seemed doomed. Lacewell was the Panters bread and butter on the boards and second highest scorer but the Panthers' Coach Ted Mauk put up a gallant fight and went ahead in the final period only to fall after a five-point play by the Pirates.

Early in the final period with the Pirates trailing by two points a technical foul on the Lilbourn bench gave the Pirates three free throws. When the ball went out of bounds it proved to be the turning point of the game. The Panthers lost their momentum and fell back, dropping their final game of the season.

Coach Jim Hart's struggling Pirates won this contest from the free throw line. Both teams hit 18 field goals but Matthews connected on 26 of 37 charity shots while Lilbourn hit on only 15 of 22.

Lilbourn's pressure type defense kept the usually hot shooting Pirates off guard and slowed its game down almost to a walk before falling back after losing two starters via the foul route.

Tom Hicks, who was held scoreless most of the first half, led the Pirates in scoring with 16 points. Hardin and Bishop added 11 each.

Bishop and Hardin hit key free pitches late in the game to keep the Pirates in the game.

Chuck Brooks, Matthews quintet's leading scorer, was held to nine points by the defensive efforts of the Panthers.

Baughman netted 17 points in leading the Lilbourn quintet's scoring.

ISC WALTZES TO VICTORY

Mike Crabtree's 25 points and team leadership led the ISC Rams to its first tournament victory of the week.

Crabtree ignited a 14-8 first quarter lead that grew into a 29-15 halftime buldge and a ISC win.

Coach Leon Cookson's Rams hit a blistering 63 per cent from the field while St. Vincents connected on 10 of 22 shots for 46 per cent.

Stan Whistler netted 19 points in the Indians' losing cause.

Livestock Meetings Set for March

BLOOMFIELD -- Two livestock meetings will be held March 3, and March 10, according to Tom Brown, county extension director and agricultural agent. These meetings will be held in the Bank of Bloomfield Community Room at 7:30 p.m.

The first meeting will be devoted to beef cattle and Hog production Practices will be discussed at the last session. David Kelly, extension area livestock Agent from the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville, will discuss recommendation of the college of agriculture.

The first of these meetings originally was scheduled for last Friday night but was postponed because of bad weather.

Legend has it that the blue jay bird was never seen on Fridays, a day when he carried sticks and news of the world to the devil.

FINAL EDITION

They have all gone from the city room.
Down the long hall the last footsteps have died away
The teletypes are quiet.
But in the distance is the rumble
Of the fresh-inked last news.
The sweeper has come and gone.
A green eyeshade lies on the desk --
And there's no one to answer to telephone.

Sam Ragan

Said the sergeant to a bunch of draftees: "Work hard, learn all you can, and who knows, you may even be promoted to colonel and learn how to cook and sell chicken named after your home state.

Cape Closes Season Thursday

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Southeast Missouri State closes its basketball season Thursday against Arkansas State in an 8 p.m. game here at Houck Field House.

Coach Charles Parsley and his cagers are assured of a winning season whatever the outcome of their final game. Currently 14-6 for the season, the Indians could do no worse than a .750 14-7.

Cape closed out its MIAA schedule earlier this week with a loss to champion Springfield, winding up in second place with a 7-3 mark.

Downed earlier by Arkansas State at Jonesboro 99-and Dave Velander (6-4).

Official statistics in the earlier game showed the Arkansans outrebounding the Indians by a 68-31 margin.

Parsley hopes that the return of 6-6 center Kermit Meystedt to his lineup may make up part of the difference. Meystedt, who has taken an unusual number of lumps in 85, the Indians were unable to cope with the height and rebounding strength of the tall A-Staters, who are led by 6-11 John Dickson. Dickson, the team's leading scorer and rebounder, is solidly backed by forwards Mike Burk (607) and Milton Sullivan (6-4), and guards Harold Scifres (6-5) recent games, missed the Arkansas State game entirely with an injured elbow.

Meystedt currently leads the squad in both scoring and rebounding with 19 points and 14 rebounds per game. Close behind is 5-11 guard Curt Williams with 18 per game. The two are the only seniors on the squad, and will be playing their final game.

Rounding out the starting Indian five are forwards Dan Milligan (6-3) with a 14-point average and John Body (6-5) with a 10-point average, and guard Charlie Bertrand (5-11), the team's top all-around player, with 14.

Livestock Meetings Set for March

BLOOMFIELD -- Two livestock meetings will be held March 3, and March 10, according to Tom Brown, county extension director and agricultural agent. These meetings will be held in the Bank of Bloomfield Community Room at 7:30 p.m.

The first meeting will be devoted to beef cattle and Hog production Practices will be discussed at the last session. David Kelly, extension area livestock Agent from the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville, will discuss recommendation of the college of agriculture.

The first of these meetings originally was scheduled for last Friday night but was postponed because of bad weather.

Legend has it that the blue jay bird was never seen on Fridays, a day when he carried sticks and news of the world to the devil.

Indians and Mustangs Move To Semi-Finals

STEELE -- First round action continued last night in the class S basketball regionals at South Pemiscot. In the first game North Pemiscot slipped past the Delta C-7 Chargers in a close battle 52-51.

The number one seeded team in the tourney, Hayti North, continued its winning ways taking the 22nd game of the year by beating the Senath-Hornersville Hornets 58-35 in the nightcap.

Tonight's action will pit Hayti Central against the Holcomb Hornets at 7 p.m. and Campbell will play Southland in the quarter finals. Semi-finals will be held Friday night. The finals will be Saturday.

Trailing by 6 points at the end of the first quarter, Senath-Hornersville couldn't manage to get going in the remainder of the game. The Hornets hit only 5 of 15 from the free toss line. Bob Hart was high point man for the Hornets, netting 12 points. Ben Johnson and Ben Watkins took home the scoring crown for the Indians popping 18 points apiece.

The number four ranked team, North Pemiscot, came close to getting upset. Delta darted to an early 16-7 lead in the first quarter and held a five-point lead at intermission, 30-25. With 19 seconds to play in the game the score held at 51-51. Ed Moroni was fouled and hit one of two free throws to put the icing on the cake for the Mustangs. Moroni led his team in scoring with 19 points while Joe Fox hit 15 for the Chargers.

Tournament action will continue tonight, starting at 6:30 p.m. when Holcomb squares off against Hayti Central followed by the Southland - Campbell game at 8 p.m.

Cape Closes Season Thursday

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Southeast Missouri State closes its basketball season Thursday against Arkansas State in an 8 p.m. game here at Houck Field House.

Coach Charles Parsley and his cagers are assured of a winning season whatever the outcome of their final game. Currently 14-6 for the season, the Indians could do no worse than a .750 14-7.

Cape closed out its MIAA schedule earlier this week with a loss to champion Springfield, winding up in second place with a 7-3 mark.

Downed earlier by Arkansas State at Jonesboro 99-and Dave Velander (6-4).

Official statistics in the earlier game showed the Arkansans outrebounding the Indians by a 68-31 margin.

Parsley hopes that the return of 6-6 center Kermit Meystedt to his lineup may make up part of the difference. Meystedt, who has taken an unusual number of lumps in 85, the Indians were unable to cope with the height and rebounding strength of the tall A-Staters, who are led by 6-11 John Dickson. Dickson, the team's leading scorer and rebounder, is solidly backed by forwards Mike Burk (607) and Milton Sullivan (6-4), and guards Harold Scifres (6-5) recent games, missed the Arkansas State game entirely with an injured elbow.

Meystedt currently leads the squad in both scoring and rebounding with 19 points and 14 rebounds per game. Close behind is 5-11 guard Curt Williams with 18 per game. The two are the only seniors on the squad, and will be playing their final game.

Rounding out the starting Indian five are forwards Dan Milligan (6-3) with a 14-point average and John Body (6-5) with a 10-point average, and guard Charlie Bertrand (5-11), the team's top all-around player, with 14.

FINAL EDITION

They have all gone from the city room.
Down the long hall the last footsteps have died away
The teletypes are quiet.
But in the distance is the rumble
Of the fresh- inked last news.
The sweeper has come and gone.
A green eyeshade lies on the desk --
And there's no one to answer to telephone.

Upset Bug Hits M Tourney At BHS

BLOOMFIELD - Two upsets were scored last night as first round basketball tournament play opened with the first game and quarterfinal round play started with the second contest.

Broseley and Richland, the third and fourth seeded teams respectively, were defeated. Broseley fell to Bernie 63-59 in quarterfinal round action and Richland was eliminated from the tournament in first round play by Neelyville 58-41.

Top-seeded Dexter had to fight for its victory. Malden gave the Bearcats a scare for three quarters but won out 60-54.

Tonight's contests will pit Qulin against the Bloomfield Wildcats at 7 p.m. followed by the Fisk-Neelyville clash at 8:30 p.m.

REBS OUTHUSTLED

Richland, after jumping out into an early eight-point lead midway through the first period, seemed to fall flat and allowed the Neelyville Tigers to control the rebounds and roam free on offense.

Richland took a 12-10 first quarter lead and held a slim 25-22 lead at intermission only to let that go and the game in the third period as Neelyville netted 17 points and held Richland to 13.

The Tigers continued to dominate the rebounding, moved the ball for good shots, played good defense and shut the Rebels offense down in the fourth period. They outscored them 19-3.

Parker with 22 points and Clay with 15 led the Neelyville quintet to victory. Cornley and Fowler each had 10 points to take game honors for the Rebels.

Richland was hampered by an injury to star Forward Dean Williamson, who sat out most of the second period and the third period. His squad was ahead when he left the game.

DEXTER ESCAPES UPSET

Malden tried hard to make it the second upset in succession last night but ran out of gas in the fourth period and fell back being outscored by Dexter 24-12.

Malden held a 13-12 lead at the end of one quarter and took a 29-20 lead at intermission.

Dexter made its move in the third period and closed the lead to 42-36 going into the final period. It won the game on the hot shooting of the Guethle brothers.

David and Harlen Guethle led the Bearcats in scoring with totals of 17 and 15 points respectively.

Johnny Downing was the Green Waves leading scorer for the contest. He pumped in 15 points. The Waves leading scorer, Mike Houchins, was held to 11 points.

Malden held the Bearcats David Guehtle down until the final period with their net like defense which seemed to collapse in the final period.

BERNIE GETS BROSELEY

Gary Craft led his Bernie Mules to a quarterfinal round victory over third seeded Broseley last night, 63-59.

Noel and Don Botsch controlled the rebounding for Bernie and contributed 14 and 10 points respectively in the scoring column.

Bernie's tight defense held the Tigers high scoring Floyd Page to 10 points. Jim Yarbro took high scoring honors for Broseley with 11 points.

Baseball Rolls Around

From Headaches To Holdouts, Signings To Retirement

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

From headaches to holdouts, signings to retiring, baseball ran the gamut Tuesday as spring training rolled around.

Pitcher Milt Pappas, the man Baltimore traded to Cincinnati for Frank Robinson, tried to clear up the headaches by refuting a blast Monday by teammate Joe Nuxhall, who claimed Pappas did not "give the ball club an honest effort."

Nuxhall said Pappas twice declined his starting turn last season because of headaches.

"I was bothered the whole season with sinus," retorted Pappas, who finished with a 12-11 mark. "I figured what's the use of jeopardizing a ball game with a sinus headache."

Pappas, a 10-year veteran with a 122-85 record, passed on part of those headaches to the Reds by adding he would not be on hand when Cincinnati opens spring training in Tampa Friday.

"They offered me the same salary, and they haven't asked me yet what I want," he said. "I guess they don't plan on giving me a raise."

Pappas received about $35,000 last year.

The Reds also got some painful news from all-star second baseman Pete Rose, who led the team with a .313 average. He thinks he should be paid extra for a proposed switch to the outfield this year.

"I'm willing to try the outfield, but I think that having been chosen the best second baseman in the league I should get more money for being pulled off that job," he said.

However, new General Manager Bob Howsam insisted he anticipates little trouble signing Rose and other regulars Vada Pinson, Deron Johnson and Tommy Helms, along with top reserve Art Shamsky.

The Atlanta Braves might not have it so easy with all-star catcher Joe Torre, who sits with Hank Aaron and Ken Johnson among those Braves unsigned.

Torre was missing when the pitchers and catchers opened training Tuesday, but he won't be an official holdout until March 1. The problem, as usual, is money. Torre wants $70,000, about a $30,000 boost from last year, the Braves reportedly are offering $60,000.

World champion Baltimore, Cleveland and Washington also were having signings troubles.

With Oriole batterymen scheduled to report today, still unsigned were pitchers Steve Barber, Jim Palmer, Dave McNally, Eddie Fisher, Eddie Watt and Tom Phoebus. Infielders Boog Powell, Dave Johnson and Bob Johnson and outfielder Curt Blefary, scheduled to report March 1, also were unsigned.

The Indians worried about Rocky Colavito and Sonny Siebert while the Senators were missing pitchers Camilo Pascual, Bob Humphreys and Bob Priddy.

There were some signings, too.

St. Louis penned Lou Brock, who led the majors in stolen bases with 74 last season; pitchers Larry Jaster and Joe Hoerner and infielder Steve Huntz. The New York Yankees signed pitcher Fritz Peterson and outfielder Roy White.

Moe Drabowsky, the World Series bullpen hero, and pitcher Gene Brabender signed with the Orioles.

One pitcher, Jim Duckworth of Washington, decided to chuck the whole thing.

"I'm entering a new line of work," he said in California, "due to a personal matter with Selkirk (General Manager George Selkirk)."

The 27-year-old 10-year veteran said he had taken an examination for a California Highway Patrol job.

Baseball Rolls Around

From Headaches To Holdouts, Signings To Retirement

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

From headaches to holdouts, signings to retiring, baseball ran the gamut Tuesday as spring training rolled around.

Pitcher Milt Pappas, the man Baltimore traded to Cincinnati for Frank Robinson, tried to clear up the headaches by refuting a blast Monday by teammate Joe Nuxhall, who claimed Pappas did not "give the ball club an honest effort."

Nuxhall said Pappas twice declined his starting turn last season because of headaches.

"I was bothered the whole season with sinus," retorted Pappas, who finished with a 12-11 mark. "I figured what's the use of jeopardizing a ball game with a sinus headache."

Pappas, a 10-year veteran with a 122-85 record, passed on part of those headaches to the Reds by adding he would not be on hand when Cincinnati opens spring training in Tampa Friday.

"They offered me the same salary, and they haven't asked me yet what I want," he said. "I guess they don't plan on giving me a raise."

Pappas received about $35,000 last year.

The Reds also got some painful news from all-star second baseman Pete Rose, who led the team with a .313 average. He thinks he should be paid extra for a proposed switch to the outfield this year.

"I'm willing to try the outfield, but I think that having been chosen the best second baseman in the league I should get more money for being pulled off that job," he said.

However, new General Manager Bob Howsam insisted he anticipates little trouble signing Rose and other regulars Vada Pinson, Deron Johnson and Tommy Helms, along with top reserve Art Shamsky.

The Atlanta Braves might not have it so easy with all-star catcher Joe Torre, who sits with Hank Aaron and Ken Johnson among those Braves unsigned.

Torre was missing when the pitchers and catchers opened training Tuesday, but he won't be an official holdout until March 1. The problem, as usual, is money. Torre wants $70,000, about a $30,000 boost from last year, the Braves reportedly are offering $60,000.

World champion Baltimore, Cleveland and Washington also were having signings troubles.

With Oriole batterymen scheduled to report today, still unsigned were pitchers Steve Barber, Jim Palmer, Dave McNally, Eddie Fisher, Eddie Watt and Tom Phoebus. Infielders Boog Powell, Dave Johnson and Bob Johnson and outfielder Curt Blefary, scheduled to report March 1, also were unsigned.

The Indians worried about Rocky Colavito and Sonny Siebert while the Senators were missing pitchers Camilo Pascual, Bob Humphreys and Bob Priddy.

There were some signings, too.

St. Louis penned Lou Brock, who led the majors in stolen bases with 74 last season; pitchers Larry Jaster and Joe Hoerner and infielder Steve Huntz. The New York Yankees signed pitcher Fritz Peterson and outfielder Roy White.

Moe Drabowsky, the World Series bullpen hero, and pitcher Gene Brabender signed with the Orioles.

One pitcher, Jim Duckworth of Washington, decided to chuck the whole thing.

"I'm entering a new line of work," he said in California, "due to a personal matter with Selkirk (General Manager George Selkirk)."

The 27-year-old 10-year veteran said he had taken an examination for a California Highway Patrol job.

FISH-ING FOR FINE MEALS

"Fishing around" for fine meal ideas? Why not literally try fish?

"Meat" from the sea and inland waters is versatility personified. Not only are there countless kinds of fish and shellfish, but each one lends itself to dozens of methods of preparation.

You could eat fish three times a day for a whole year, it has been said, and never eat the same meal twice. Baked, broiled, fried . . . in salads, chowders, appetizers, dips, sandwiches, canapes . . . for breakfast, brunch, lunch, dinner or supper . . . protein-rich seafoods make tasty meals.

But fish have seasons of plentiful supply, just as do meats, fruits and vegetables. And thrifty shoppers may want to look for seafood offerings which are more readily available than others.

During the current Lenten season, according to the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, shoppers should find sizable amounts of ocean perch, cod and sole available in food stores.

Catfish, halibut, fish sticks and portions are considered in moderate supply.

Shellfish are reported in somewhat limited supply overall. But shoppers may find shrimp, lobster tails, oysters and scallops in moderate supply.

You can always count on conveniently canned salmon, of course. Both pink and red salmon, in fact, are currently on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Plentiful Foods List.

COFFEE CORNER by Cherie

This weather is TOO much!! Everybody, but everybody, is a picture of poor health. I've never seen so many red runny eyes and red runny noses in all my life -- no wonder southeast Missouri has such a high humidity count, what with all this moisture everyone constantly oozes, how could it help but. short conversation with anyone now-a-days, without inserting at least two sneezes, five coughs, eight blows, and one good throat rumble. I swear, if the people in this community were wise, they'd invest all their savings in stocks belonging to a good tissue paper, cough syrup, or nose drop company, they'd be bound to get a little bit back on their investment all year round. I bet we are the tops in the nation for producers of influenza bugs, and the sad thing is that we also seem to unfortunately be the consumers as well as producers. I can hardly wait for summer to come so I can stop wiping noses, and washing handkerchiefs and shirt sleeves that little boys have used as such. Why is it a napkin or a handkerchief is never as effective for a fellow as his sleeve? It's so bad around our house that we blow in four different keys, and if I had sense enough to figure out a clever tune we could probably record that crazy sound and run the Beatles right off the top. Oh my, my stopped up head, what I wouldn't give for just one beautiful clean breath of air. No wonder it's so hard for me to think -- my brain is drowning!! I don't know which is sorer, my throat from the constant drip, or my nose from the constant wipe, either way I'm miserable, and if and when you see me coming, quickly avert your heads and stop breathing, or you'll be sorry!!

Missouri Press Report Sen. Edward Long

The President's Crime Commission has just issued its 308 page report with approximately 200 recommendations for combatting crime in the United States.

This is a very welcome report and will be of great help to those of us on the Senate Judiciary Committee where the President's crime bill will be considered this year.

Among the Commission's recommendations are:

-- The creation of a Youth Services Bureau in every local community to help youths referred by the police, juvenile court parents, and schools. FBI statistics for 1965 show that of all persons arrested, 30 percent were under 21 years old and 20 percent were under 18. The Commission urges more effort on all levels to spot and help juvenile delinquents before they become hardened criminals.

-- More effort to attract college trained men and women into police and prison service through increased salaries and recruiting programs on college campuses.

-- Police laboratory facilities for crime detection research should be easily available to all local police forces.

-- Increased research by colleges and universities into the root - causes of crime and ways to prevent crime on a community - wide basis.

-- To combat organized crime, more attention should be given to the need to provide extended prison terms where the convicted felon was a leader or manager of a continuing major illegal business.

-- Increased public education on the effects of drugs, and an increase in the staff of the Bureau of Narcotics and the Bureau of Customs to help cut down on the flow of drugs in the United States.

-- Short term treatment of chronic drunks who are arrested. The Commission recommends local communities consider adopting a program similar to one already launched in St. Louis.

Am in full agreement with the Commission's suggestions that Congress should pass legislation to clear up our laws dealing with wiretapping and bugging. Have introduced the Right of Private Act to achieve this goal.

Firmly believe that by combining the best ideas of the Commission and the President's recommended Safe Streets and Crime Control Act, we can meet the challenge of crime without sacrificing the freedoms guaranteed to us by the Bill of Rights.

NO SUMMIT ENTHUSIASM

U. S. delegates to the Buenos Aires Foreign Ministers' conference are finding that the proposed "Summit" meeting of American Presidents is not much more popular with their Latin colleagues than the idea of an inter - American police force.

Washington dropped the police force project last year, after trying ever since the 1964 Dominican crisis to get backing for it. Only the military regime now running Brazil was solidly behind that scheme. Six countries were vigorously opposed.

Today, as Secretary of State Rusk and his aides confer with their opposite numbers from 19 other republics in the Argentine capital, they are confronted by a less open but almost equally unenthusiastic attitude toward the Presidential get - together.

The Latins will, of course, go along this time, since President Johnson has publicly expressed his personal interest in the meeting. Refusal to join would constitute an unthinkable affront to him.

But this doesn't mean that anyone is very happy about it or expects anything of great significance to emerge. More than one Latin - American official has expressed private concern over the possible reaction in his homeland if the Vietnam war is still going on then.

"Just because Mr. Johnson went to Mexico and encountered no hostile demonstrations," said one veteran South American diplomat, "he seems to be convinced that this whole area is generally friendly to him, his administration and its policies.

"There could be no greater mistake. The fighting in Southeast Asia -- the U. S. part in it -- is unpopular among student, labor and professional groups all over Latin America.

"I'm very much afraid that this conference of Presidents is going to be accompanied by big protest marches in at least half a dozen of our capitals -- perhaps worse."

The diplomat named Montevido as one of the likely trouble spots. The Foreign Ministers are expected to pick Punta Del Este, less than 60 miles up the coast from Montevideo, as the site for the meeting.

ALLIANCE MARKS TIME

Another reason why most Latins doubt that concrete results can be obtained at this high - level conclave is that they are sure the United States will feel obliged to defend the Alliance for Progress -- and no one else thinks it is very defensible as now functioning.

"The Alliance has turned out to be nothing but a more grandiose name for the same kinds of economic and technical aid programs that have been going on for a generation," commented the Foreign Minister of a Central American republic whose government is regarded as pro-U.S.

"The broad, new approach that John Kennedy talked about just never got infused into the thing."

Another proposal, not ostensibly of U.S. manufacture but in fact dreamed up by the state department as a trial balloon, was promptly shot down at Buenos Aires.

This was a suggestion, formally put forward by Panama, that member governments of the Organization of American States recognize a Cuban government - in - exile.

Foreign Secretary Antonio Carrillo Flores of Mexico, the only Western Hemisphere country which still recognizes the Castro Regime, was the first to reject that feeler.

"We have normal relations with the present Cuban government," he snapped. "It would be absurd for us to recognize two governments."

The idea was also given the cold shoulder by representatives of several outspokenly anti - Castro regimes, including the Brazilian, Chilean, Colombian and Peruvian.

Their negative position was based on two considerations:

1. Fear that approval of the government - in-exile principle might set a tricky precedent which could boomerang against them later.

2. Knowledge that Cuban refugee colonies everywhere are still split into so many rival factions that there is no hope of putting together a broadly representative government - in-exile.

Principal Jack Cothern gave the invocation. Secretary Margaret Bizzell read the January minutes and Treasurer Marcia Alley reported on financial transactions.

Chairman Carol Shell gave a progress report on the membership drive.

Cothern announced school will be closed March 16-17, for the district teachers meeting in Cape Girardeau and for the Easter vacation school will be closed March 24-28.

The next executive committee meeting will be March 6 at 7 p.m. with Mrs. Evelyn Barnett, 236 William. Mrs. Jim Baker, hostess, served refreshments.

FISH-ING FOR FINE MEALS

"Fishing around" for fine meal ideas? Why not literally try fish?

"Meat" from the sea and inland waters is versatility personified. Not only are there countless kinds of fish and shellfish, but each one lends itself to dozens of methods of preparation.

You could eat fish three times a day for a whole year, it has been said, and never eat the same meal twice. Baked, broiled, fried . . . in salads, chowders, appetizers, dips, sandwiches, canapes . . . for breakfast, brunch, lunch, dinner or supper . . . protein-rich seafoods make tasty meals.

But fish have seasons of plentiful supply, just as do meats, fruits and vegetables. And thrifty shoppers may want to look for seafood offerings which are more readily available than others.

During the current Lenten season, according to the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, shoppers should find sizable amounts of ocean perch, cod and sole available in food stores.

Catfish, halibut, fish sticks and portions are considered in moderate supply.

Shellfish are reported in somewhat limited supply overall. But shoppers may find shrimp, lobster tails, oysters and scallops in moderate supply.

You can always count on conveniently canned salmon, of course. Both pink and red salmon, in fact, are currently on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Plentiful Foods List.

COFFEE CORNER by Cherie

This weather is TOO much!! Everybody, but everybody, is a picture of poor health. I've never seen so many red runny eyes and red runny noses in all my life -- no wonder southeast Missouri has such a high humidity count, what with all this moisture everyone constantly oozes, how could it help but. short conversation with anyone now-a-days, without inserting at least two sneezes, five coughs, eight blows, and one good throat rumble. I swear, if the people in this community were wise, they'd invest all their savings in stocks belonging to a good tissue paper, cough syrup, or nose drop company, they'd be bound to get a little bit back on their investment all year round. I bet we are the tops in the nation for producers of influenza bugs, and the sad thing is that we also seem to unfortunately be the consumers as well as producers. I can hardly wait for summer to come so I can stop wiping noses, and washing handkerchiefs and shirt sleeves that little boys have used as such. Why is it a napkin or a handkerchief is never as effective for a fellow as his sleeve? It's so bad around our house that we blow in four different keys, and if I had sense enough to figure out a clever tune we could probably record that crazy sound and run the Beatles right off the top. Oh my, my stopped up head, what I wouldn't give for just one beautiful clean breath of air. No wonder it's so hard for me to think -- my brain is drowning!! I don't know which is sorer, my throat from the constant drip, or my nose from the constant wipe, either way I'm miserable, and if and when you see me coming, quickly avert your heads and stop breathing, or you'll be sorry!!

Missouri Press Report
Sen. Edward Long

The President's Crime Commission has just issued its 308 page report with approximately 200 recommendations for combatting crime in the United States.

This is a very welcome report and will be of great help to those of us on the Senate Judiciary Committee where the President's crime bill will be considered this year.

Among the Commission's recommendations are:

-- The creation of a Youth Services Bureau in every local community to help youths referred by the police, juvenile court parents, and schools. FBI statistics for 1965 show that of all persons arrested, 30 percent were under 21 years old and 20 percent were under 18. The Commission urges more effort on all levels to spot and help juvenile delinquents before they become hardened criminals.

-- More effort to attract college trained men and women into police and prison service through increased salaries and recruiting programs on college campuses.

-- Police laboratory facilities for crime detection research should be easily available to all local police forces.

-- Increased research by colleges and universities into the root - causes of crime and ways to prevent crime on a community - wide basis.

-- To combat organized crime, more attention should be given to the need to provide extended prison terms where the convicted felon was a leader or manager of a continuing major illegal business.

-- Increased public education on the effects of drugs, and an increase in the staff of the Bureau of Narcotics and the Bureau of Customs to help cut down on the flow of drugs in the United States.

-- Short term treatment of chronic drunks who are arrested. The Commission recommends local communities consider adopting a program similar to one already launched in St. Louis.

Am in full agreement with the Commission's suggestions that Congress should pass legislation to clear up our laws dealing with wiretapping and bugging. Have introduced the Right of Private Act to achieve this goal.

Firmly believe that by combining the best ideas of the Commission and the President's recommended Safe Streets and Crime Control Act, we can meet the challenge of crime without sacrificing the freedoms guaranteed to us by the Bill of Rights.

NO SUMMIT ENTHUSIASM

U.S. delegates to the Buenos Aires Foreign Ministers' conference are finding that the proposed "Summit" meeting of American Presidents is not much more popular with their Latin colleagues than the idea of an inter - American police force.

Washington dropped the police force project last year, after trying ever since the 1964 Dominican crisis to get backing for it. Only the military regime now running Brazil was solidly behind that scheme. Six countries were vigorously opposed.

Today, as Secretary of State Rusk and his aides confer with their opposite numbers from 19 other republics in the Argentine capital, they are confronted by a less open but almost equally unenthusiastic attitude toward the Presidential get - together.

The Latins will, of course, go along this time, since President Johnson has publicly expressed his personal interest in the meeting. Refusal to join would constitute an unthinkable affront to him.

But this doesn't mean that anyone is very happy about it or expects anything of great significance to emerge. More than one Latin - American official has expressed private concern over the possible reaction in his homeland if the Vietnam war is still going on then.

"Just because Mr. Johnson went to Mexico and encountered no hostile demonstrations," said one veteran South American diplomat, "he seems to be convinced that this whole area is generally friendly to him, his administration and its policies.

"There could be no greater mistake. The fighting in Southeast Asia -- the U. S. part in it -- is unpopular among student, labor and professional groups all over Latin American.

"I'm very much afraid that this conference of Presidents is going to be accompanied by big protest marches in at least half a dozen of our capitals -- perhaps worse."

The diplomat named Montevido as one of the likely trouble spots. The Foreign Ministers are expected to pick Punta Del Este, less than 60 miles up the coast from Montevideo, as the site for the meeting.

ALLIANCE MARKS TIME

Another reason why most Latins doubt that concrete results can be obtained at this high - level conclave is that they are sure the United States will feel obliged to defend the Alliance for Progress -- and no one else thinks it is very defensible as now functioning.

"The Alliance has turned out to be nothing but a more grandiose name for the same kinds of economic and technical aid programs that have been going on for a generation," commented the Foreign Minister of a Central American republic whose government is regarded as pro-U.S.

"The broad, new approach that John Kennedy talked about just never got infused into the thing."

Another proposal, not ostensibly of U.S. manufacture but in fact dreamed up by the state department as a trial balloon, was promptly shot down at Buenos Aires.

This was a suggestion, formally put forward by Panama, that member governments of the Organization of American States recognize a Cuban government - in - exile.

Foreign Secretary Antonio Carrillo Flores of Mexico, the only Western Hemisphere country which still recognizes the Castro Regime, was the first to reject that feeler.

"We have normal relations with the present Cuban government," he snapped. "It would be absurd for us to recognize two governments."

The idea was also given the cold shoulder by representatives of several outspokenly anti - Castro regimes, including the Brazilian, Chilean, Colombian and Peruvian.

Their negative position was based on two considerations:

1. Fear that approval of the government - in-exile principle might set a tricky precedent which could boomerang against them later.

2. Knowledge that Cuban refugee colonies everywhere are still split into so many rival factions that there is no hope of putting together a broadly representative government - in-exile.

Rules for Personal Deductions Greatest Puzzle for Taxpayers

EDITOR'S NOTE — There are complicated rules about what you can deduct in figuring your federal income tax. This article, the last of five, discusses deductions.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — In making out your 1966 income tax return you may find your deductible personal expenses were greater than allowed for in the standard deduction which anyone can take without listing expenses.

In that case, claim your expenses in full. But you'll have to itemize them, to prove you had them, and you'll have to figure your own tax, using form 1040.

The details and kinds of deductible and nondeductible expenses are vast, too vast for a story like this which can only hit the highlights.

You will find some details in the instruction pamphlet which the Internal Revenue Service sends all taxpayers, and infinitely more in the government's 160-page booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax." It costs 50 cents.

Here are some examples of expenses you can deduct:

State and city income taxes, real estate and state gasoline taxes but not federal gasoline taxes; state and city sales taxes — the instruction sheet has a list of the states with sales taxes and how much you can reasonably deduct in keeping with your income and family size; personal property taxes; interest on a personal loan; on a house mortgage; on delinquent taxes; and on personal property bought on the installment plan, like an automobile.

You can also deduct for union dues and dues in a professional society; fees to employment agencies; alimony payments by the one making them; books and newspapers bought for use in your job; and expenses for your education, provided it is to help you keep up with your job. You cannot deduct if the education was for personal reasons, like trying to help you get a better job.

If you use your car for business, you can deduct 10 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles and seven cents a mile after that.

You can deduct contributions to charitable, religious or education organizations like the Community Chest, United Fund, Salvation Army, churches, Red Cross, heart, cancer and tuberculosis associations, nonprofit schools and hospitals; and gifts but no dues to the YMCA, YWCA, YMHA, YWHA, and organizations such as the American legion, and to states and cities for public purposes.

You'd better read the 1040 instructions or the booklet if you want to exclude from income some of the pay you got while home on sick leave or for medical and drug expenses.

For example: Depending on how much salary you got while home sick, you may be able to exclude after the first full week of sick leave or you may not be able to exclude until you have been out sick 30 days.

If you were under 65 and are filing a return, you may deduct medical expenses for yourself, your wife, or a dependent but only that part for which you have not been reimbursed by an insurance company and only that part of your unreimbursed expenses which exceed 3 per cent of your income.

Costs of medicines and drugs are included in medical expense to the extent they exceed 1 per cent of your income.

A person 65 before the end of the year — you were considered 65 for the whole year if your birthday was as late as Jan. 1, 1967 — in making out his return can deduct his entire unreimbursed medical and drug expenses without worrying about what percentage of his income they were.

If you were under 65 and paid the medical and drug expenses of your over-65 parents — or your wife's over-65 parents — you can deduct them in full on your return but only if you also provide more than half the 1966 support of the one for whom you claim the deduction.

Here's another detail: You may claim a medical expense deduction for the premiums you paid on accident and health insurance policies which provide reimbursement for hospitalization, surgery fees and other medical expenses.

You can deduct transportation costs for going to get medical care — like bus, train, taxi or plane fare — or, if you use your own car, can deduct five cents a mile for such a trip.

You can exclude the first $100 of your stock dividends from domestic corporations — $200 if it is a joint return and the husband and wife each owned stock, either jointly or individually, from which they received at least $100 each. But the husband can't use part of his wife's dividends to make the total $200 and the wife can't use part of her husband's dividends for the same purpose.

You can also deduct what is above the first $100 for each casualty or theft loss from vandalism or from theft or casualty, like a storm that damaged your house or an accident that damaged your car, if it wasn't covered by insurance. But if your auto accident was caused by your willfulness, you can't deduct at all.

You can deduct five cents a mile if you work free for a qualified charitable organization and use your car in doing so.

But here are things for which you cannot deduct:

Federal income taxes; federal Society Security taxes withheld from your pay; Social Security payments you make for someone working in your home, like a maid; auto licenses, unless based on the value of the car; a driver's license; auto inspection or parking meter fees; taxes you pay for someone else although you can claim them as part of your support for a dependent; poll taxes, inheritance, gift, cigarette, tobacco or alcoholic beverage taxes; fees for dog tags, hunting or fishing licenses or marriage licenses; tolls for roads and bridges; water bills; sewerage and other service charges.

You cannot deduct gifts to political candidates, political organizations, relatives, friends or other individuals, labor unions or social clubs; you cannot deduct federal excise taxes on automobiles, telephones or airline tickets.

Final Session of Soybean School

BLOOMFIELD — The third and final session of the soybean school being conducted for the benefit of farmers in Stoddard and Scott counties will be held Monday night in the Richland high school cafeteria at 7:30 p.m.

Vacation Safety In Your Car

The thought of all those miles of road stretching to the horizon and beyond has troubled many a vacationer on the eve of his departure.

If you pause before a vacation to contemplate the uncertainties of long-distance driving, you're just being sensible. Such concern can be the basis for a thoroughly enjoyable vacation that might otherwise be marred by an auto accident.

It's wise, for example, to be concerned about becoming too tired to drive safely. Fatigue may well be the number one nemesis of the vacation driver who views those miles of highway as an obstacle between himself and his hard-earned vacation.

Surveys indicate that a driver's efficiency improves during the first three or four hours on the road. By the time six hours have passed, however, his efficiency has reverted to its original level. The decline becomes rapid after six hours.

When your eyes are tired, they don't see as well, particularly at night. If you oversee them on a long drive, they become "disgusted" with the difficulty of picking a focal point on a monotonous ribbon unwinding slowly out of the darkness ahead. After a few hours, many drivers experience "hallucinations," or what is known as "highway hypnosis."

This Lorelei of the freeway causes drivers to veer off the road to avoid objects that aren't there. Others plow into solid objects such as a bridge abutment that blends into the roadway because of its lack of contrast with the road. Such crashes were a particular problem on the New Jersey Turnpike but since reflectors were installed on upright posts, the accident rate in this area has declined sharply.

Fatigue is one of the significant causes of night accidents, according to a study recently reported to the President's Highway Safety Conference.

For the uncautious, this means that his fatigue "screens out" the value of highway safety devices that prevent even higher night death tolls. He might as well be wearing dark glasses.

Take reflective signs, which are used by most states to make night motoring safer. Light from headlights is bounced from the reflective surfaces to the vehicle, making it as if the signs much brighter than their backgrounds.

But, a driver with the sandman sitting on his shoulder is likely to cruise, without even slightly slackening his speed, past a brilliant reflective sign that says "Curve". He may recall seeing the sign only after he revives in the hospital bed to which he was taken following a collision with a utility pole.

Reflective signs and other devices that reduce the number of night accidents depend upon driver alertness for their effectiveness. Herein lies the hazard in driving while fatigued.

The Arizona Highway Patrol has released some startling statistics that reveal the foolhardiness of some drivers. For five years, the highway patrol interviewed drivers entering and leaving the state via U.S. 66, Most of them were tourists.

Thousands of motorists admitted driving more than 1,000 miles without an overnight rest. Hundreds said they'd driven more than 2,000 miles without stopping overnight. One man had been driving for three days without stopping. Drivers frequently boasted of their marathon performances.

The highway patrol reported that thousands of drivers paused only long enough to catnap along the road, or they slept while other members of the family drove. One driver pulled onto the shoulder and slept for two hours, then resumed his trip. A few miles down the road, the highway patrol found his demolished car. He had lost his battle of the drooping eyelids and fallen asleep at 60 m.p.h.

Rules for Personal Deductions Greatest Puzzle for Taxpayers

EDITOR'S NOTE — There are complicated rules about what you can deduct in figuring your federal income tax. This article, the last of five, discusses deductions.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — In making out your 1966 income tax return you may find your deductible personal expenses were greater than allowed for in the standard deduction which anyone can take without listing expenses.

In that case, claim your expenses in full. But you'll have to itemize them, to prove you had them, and you'll have to figure your own tax, using form 1040.

The details and kinds of deductible and nondeductible expenses are vast, too vast for a story like this which can only list the highlights.

You will find some details in the instruction pamphlet which the Internal Revenue Service sends all taxpayers, and infinitely more in the government's 160-page booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax." It costs 50 cents.

Here are some examples of expenses you can deduct:

State and city income taxes, real estate and state gasoline taxes but not federal gasoline taxes; state and city sales taxes — the instruction sheet has a list of the states with sales taxes and how much you can reasonably deduct in keeping with your income and family size; personal property taxes; interest on a personal loan; on a lease mortgage; on delinquent taxes; and on personal property bought on the installment plan, like an automobile.

You can also deduct for union dues and dues in a professional society; fees to employment agencies; alimony payments by the one making them; books and newspapers bought for use in your job; and expenses for your education, provided it is to help you keep up with your job. You cannot deduct if the education was for personal reasons, like trying to help you get a better job.

If you use your car for business, you can deduct 10 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles and seven cents a mile after that.

You can deduct contributions to charitable, religious or education organizations like the Community Chest, United Fund, Salvation Army, churches, Red Cross, heart, cancer and tuberculosis associations, nonprofit schools and hospitals; and gifts but no dues to the YMCA, YWCA, YMHA, YWHA, and organizations such as the American legion, and to states and cities for public purposes.

You'd better read the 1040 instructions or the booklet if you want to exclude from income some of the pay you got while home on sick leave or for medical and drug expenses.

For example: Depending on how much salary you got while home sick, you may be able to exclude after the first full week of sick leave or you may not be able to exclude until you have been out sick 30 days.

If you were under 65 and are filing a return, you may deduct medical expenses for yourself, your wife, or a dependent but only that part for which you have not been reimbursed by an insurance company and only that part of your unreimbursed expenses which exceed 3 per cent of your income.

Costs of medicines and drugs are included in medical expense to the extent they exceed 1 per cent of your income.

A person 65 before the end of the year—you were considered 65 for the whole year if your birthday was as late as Jan. 1, 1967—in making out his return can deduct his entire unreimbursed medical and drug expenses without worrying about what percentage of his income they were.

If you were under 65 and paid the medical and drug expenses of your over-65 parents — or your wife's over-65 parents — you can deduct them in full on your return but only if you also provide more than half the 1966 support of the one for whom you claim the deduction.

Here's another detail: You may claim a medical expense deduction for the premiums you paid on accident and health insurance policies which provide reimbursement for hospitalization, surgery fees and other medical expenses.

You can deduct transportation costs for going to get medical care—like bus, train, taxi or plane fare—or, if you use your own car, can deduct five cents a mile for such a trip.

You can exclude the first $100 of your stock dividends from domestic corporations—$200 if it is a joint return and the husband and wife each owned stock, either jointly or individually, from which they received at least $100 each. But the husband can't use part of his wife's dividends to make the total $200 and the wife can't use part of her husband's dividends for the same purpose.

You can also deduct what is above the first $100 for each personal loss from vandalism or from theft or casualty, like a storm that damaged your house or an accident that damaged your car, if it wasn't covered by insurance. But if your auto accident was caused by your willfulness, you can't deduct at all.

You can deduct five cents a mile if you work free for a qualified charitable organization and use your car in doing so.

But here are things for which you cannot deduct:

Federal income taxes; federal Social Security taxes withheld from your pay; Social Security payments you make for someone working in your home, like a maid; auto licenses, unless based on the value of the car; a driver's license; auto inspection or parking meter fees; taxes you pay for someone else although you can claim them as part of your support for a dependent; poll taxes, inheritance, gift, cigarette, tobacco or alcoholic beverage taxes; fees for dog tags, hunting or fishing licenses or marriage licenses; tolls for roads and bridges; water bills; sewerage and other service charges.

You cannot deduct gifts to political candidates, political organizations, relatives, friends or other individuals, labor unions or social clubs; you cannot deduct federal excise taxes on automobiles, telephones or airline tickets.

Historic St. Charles Hotel to Be Razed

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. 0 The St. Charles hotel, where Mark Twain and Charles Dickens stayed, and the birthsite of Southeast Missouri State College is being razed.

Someplace between 123 and 129 years old, the old building on Main street, a block from the Mississippi River, will give way to a modern business building.

Throughout its lifetime the building has been used for the purpose intended. Up to almost the very last it housed the traveling public, although its latter years were a distant echo of its brilliance in the 19th Century.

Built by Joseph Lansmon, a native of Alsace-Lorraine, the structure immediately was a success. There the traveler, getting off a packet boat, had but a block to go for rest and comfort.

Its cuisine drew the traveler and the Cape Girardeau resident as well, and in its ballroom many fancy balls were held.

Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, commanding the Union's western armies, stopped there in the summer of 1862, enroute to Cairo, Ill. from Ironton.

Mark Twain, during his days as a pilot on riverboats, stopped at the St. Charles. Charles Dickens, the famous British author, was reported to have spent the night there after a lecture in Cape Girardeau.

There are no registers available but it is probable that the number of famous who stopped at the St. Charles is considerable.

The hotel was the center of social gatherings until after the turn of the century.

When the nation was a century old, in 1876, and it was leap year, the Cape Girardeau News described one of the events.

"The St. Charles Hotel, on last Friday evening, was crowded with a brilliant party, gotten up by the leading young ladies of our city for the purpose of entertaining the young gentlemen, and to treat them to one of the finest balls that ever came off in the magnificent hotel," read the article.

It continued, "Supper came off about one o'clock and was served in that style and taste which so characterizes that excellent landlord, Mr. Z. Block and his accomplished lady of this splendid hotel, the St. Charles."

Earlier accounts described how the hotel was the scene of another outstanding ball during the Civil War, when Federal troops occupied Cape Girardeau.

It was in the parlor of the hotel on Oct. 28, 1873, that a state board met and tentatively decided that the Third District Normal School, now Southeast Missouri State College, would be located in Cape Girardeau.

MRS. ED ALDRICH, 316 Matthews, takes molasses sugar cookies from a cookie jar.

Mrs. Ed Aldrich Is Young Wife, Mother, Homemaker

Editor's Note: This is the 26th in a series of articles about the homelife of Sikeston area families.

By Ruth Dillender

Mrs. Becky Aldrich is a young Sikeston homemaker. She, her husband, Ed, and their two - year - old son, Rob, live at 316 Matthews.

Aldrich is office manager for the Ralph Distributing Company. Mrs. Aldrich sews, making curtains for her home and clothes for herself and her son.

After caring for her home and family, Mrs. Aldrich finds time to attend a card club and the Betsy Ross circle of the First Methodist church where the family attends.

Mrs. Aldrich is the former Miss Becky Hutchison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hutchison.

Favorite recipes of the Aldrichs are:

DESSERT SALAD

20 marshmallows, cut small
1 glass pimento cheese spread
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 small can crushed pineapple, drained

Combine ingredients and let stand in refrigerator over night. Serve on salad greens. Serves eight.

CHOW MEIN CASSEROLE

Brown together:
1 lb. ground beef
1 medium onion, diced

Add 1 cup cooked rice, 1 can cream of chicken soup, 1 can mushroom soup, ½ cup water, 2 teaspoons soy sauce.

Blend well. Pour mix into shallow baking dish. Top generously with chow mein noodles. Bake 30 minutes in 350 degree oven. Serves six to eight.

PORCUPINES

1 lb. hamburger
1-3 cup raw rice
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup onion, chopped
½ can tomato sauce

Mix ingredients. Form into egg- shaped balls about the size of eggs. Brown in 3 tablespoons shortening on all sides. Drain grease. Pour remaining tomato sauce over porcupines and simmer about 20 minutes.

MOLASSES SUGAR COOKIES

1 cup sugar
¼ cup molasses
1 egg
2 teaspoon baking soda
2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Add sugar, molasses and egg to melted shortening or oil. Beat well. Sift flour, soda, cloves, ginger, cinnamon and salt together. Add by teaspoons to first mixture. Mix well and chill. Form in one-inch balls and roll in granulated sugar. Place on greased cookie sheets, two inches apart. Bake in moderate hot oven, 375 degrees, for eight to 10 minutes.

Historic St. Charles Hotel to Be Razed

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. 0 The St. Charles hotel, where Mark Twain and Charles Dickens stayed, and the birthsite of Southeast Missouri State College is being razed.

Someplace between 123 and 129 years old, the old building on Main street, a block from the Mississippi River, will give way to a modern business building.

Throughout its lifetime the building has been used for the purpose intended. Up to almost the very last it housed the traveling public, although its latter years were a distant echo of its brilliance in the 19th Century.

Built by Joseph Lansmon, a native of Alsace-Lorraine, the structure immediately was a success. There the traveler, getting off a packet boat, had but a block to go for rest and comfort.

Its cuisine drew the traveler and the Cape Girardeau resident as well, and in its ballroom many fancy balls were held.

Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, commanding the Union's western armies, stopped there in the summer of 1862, enroute to Cairo, Ill. from Ironton.

Mark Twain, during his days as a pilot on riverboats, stopped at the St. Charles. Charles Dickens, the famous British author, was reported to have spent the night there after a lecture in Cape Girardeau.

There are no registers available but it is probable that the number of famous who stopped at the St. Charles is considerable.

The hotel was the center of social gatherings until after the turn of the century.

When the nation was a century old, in 1876, and it was leap year, the Cape Girardeau News described one of the events.

"The St. Charles Hotel, on last Friday evening, was crowded with a brilliant party, gotten up by the leading young ladies of our city for the purpose of entertaining the young gentlemen, and to treat them to one of the finest balls that ever came off in the magnificent hotel," read the article.

It continued, "Supper came off about one o'clock and was served in that style and taste which so characterizes that excellent landlord, Mr. Z. Block and his accomplished lady of this splendid hotel, the St. Charles."

Earlier accounts described how the hotel was the scene of another outstanding ball during the Civil War, when Federal troops occupied Cape Girardeau.

It was in the parlor of the hotel on Oct. 28, 1873, that a state board met and tentatively decided that the Third District Normal School, now Southeast Missouri State College, would be located in Cape Girardeau.

Kites Can Be Dangerous

Kite flying can be dangerous warned E. R. Inman, manager of the board of public works today.

One of the most common accidents in kite flying is entangling a kite in power lines.

The board of public works offered these suggestions for kite flying safety:

Fly kites in an open area, away from power lines, or electric power transmission towers.

Use dry string and never wire or metallic string.

Do not attempt to remove a kite entangled in power lines.

Avoid the use of any metal in making a kite.

Keep kites away from highways.

Do not fly kites in wet or stormy weather.

A booklet, "Kite Flight," published by the American Public Power association, gives safety hints on kite flying and also includes instructions on how to make these different types of kites.

The booklet is available free at the board of public works office.

Circle Meets For Potluck

The Lewis - Inman circle of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Tanner Street Church of God met with Mrs. O. C. Lewis, 111 West Wakefield, for a potluck dinner and the regular monthly meeting.

The Lewis home was decorated with Valentine colors.

Mrs. Merl Keefer presented the lesson, "The Church of God in Canada." Each member was given a place mat and napkin with maps of Canada. The maps helped members picture the provinces and locations of the 57 Churches of God. Also used was a poster showing pictures of missionaries who are from Canada. Included were the Gordon Schiecks, missionaries to India, who are sponsored by the Tanner Street church.

Assisting Mrs. Keefer were Mrs. Pauline Corlew, Mrs. Horace Byrd, Mrs. B. L. Robinson and Mrs. Lloyd Treece. Mrs. Vernon Guttenfelder gave the devotional thoughts and led the group in singing, "What A Friend."

During the business meeting, the announcement was made that the next meeting will be March 14 with Mrs. Don Lewis. It will be a joint meeting with the JOY circle. The annual election was held and the installation service will be next month.

During the fellowship hour, the secret pals were revealed and new ones selected.

Others present were Mrs. Joe Lopp, Mrs. George Johnson, Mrs. Mac McGahey, Mrs. Florace McClain, Mrs. Bob Tyrone, Mrs. Andy Hill, Mrs. Ivan Gimlin, Mrs. Tom Sims, Mrs. Martha Hogue, Mrs. Mary Klutts and three guests, the Rev. Branson Pushes for Fountain Recognition

BRANSON (AP) - Branson, in the southwestern Missouri Ozark Mountains, wants to become a "city of fountains."

Lyn Trask, chairman of the Community Betterment Committee, said Mother Nature "did an awfully good job in placing the hills around the city." Man added Lake Taneycomo, which flows through the city.

"What with the city flower basket program, the spring redbud and dogwood planting, and now the fountain program, Branson ought to be the prettiest city in the Midwest," Trask said.

The School of the Ozarks, business establishments and several home owners have built fountains of various sizes.

Trask said the committee will make a motion picture of existing fountains for use in its campaign. Emphasis will be placed on making Highways 65 and 76, which run through Branson "the fountain drive."

Now, from American Motors, the car that wasn't there.

This may well be the most important news to come out of Detroit this year.

A major gap has developed in today's automobile market—a gap that no American-built car is filling.

Because this gap exists, over 1,000,000 car buyers a year have not been able to get the car they wanted: a car for the American motorist at a list price competitive to foreign imports.

Today, American Motors' new management and nearly 2,500 American Motors/Rambler Dealers are filling that gap.

As of today, we are limiting future changes in our Rambler American line to essential changes that will further enhance the safety and reliability of these cars.

This will save us millions of dollars—and we and our dealers are passing the savings along to you now. This means that the Rambler American 220 two-door sedan that yesterday listed at $2,073 now lists at $1,839.[a] It means that today, your American Motors/Rambler Dealer has put new price stickers on all nine Rambler American models.

For years, Rambler American has been the best value in an American automobile. Today, priced competitive to imported cars, it is the best automobile value in the world.

This week on television, we promised you exciting news from American Motors.

Kites Can Be Dangerous

Kite flying can be dangerous warned E. R. Inman, manager of the board of public works today.

One of the most common accidents in kite flying is entangling a kite in power lines.

The board of public works offered these suggestions for kite flying safety:

Fly kites in an open area, away from power lines, or electric power transmission towers.

Use dry string and never wire or metallic string.

Do not attempt to remove a kite entangled in power lines.

Avoid the use of any metal in making a kite.

Keep kites away from highways.

Do not fly kites in wet or stormy weather.

A booklet, "Kite Flight," published by the American Public Power association, gives safety hints on kite flying and also includes instructions on how to make these different types of kites.

The booklet is available free at the board of public works office.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE WELL-FORTIFIED STUDENT

The United States Army moved in to protect a Negro who was getting an education at a Southern university. The Army, as it turned out, got an education also -- in high finance. The university subsequently submitted a bill to it for the Army's occupation of its campus -- sort of like reparations.

"That's absurd," was the Army's initial reaction. "We were ordered to move in by federal order to insure the student's safety. We weren't there because we wanted to be there."

"Our premise is very simple," retorted a university official. "Since you occupied our premises, a landlord and tenant relationship was created. You were the tenant and we were the landlord. And, like any other person who occupies the land of another, you've got to pay a fair and reasonable rental value for that occupation."

And so, without firing a shot, the Army surrendered. It consented to pay the bill. But, further approval had to be obtained before the bill could be paid.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you consider the university entitled to the "reparations" sought?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that there was never any intention on the part of the Army to pay rent or to establish a landlord-tenant relationship. What's more, the judge added, the reasons and circumstances of the occupation did not support an intention to establish a landlord-tenant relationship.

The Prayer From The Upper Room

You should not get into the habit of admitting your sins to one another, and praying for one another. (James 5:15, Phillips)

PRAYER: Dear Father, help us to listen to Thee as well as to petition Thee. Teach us the art of listening creatively to our brothers so that confession and communion can bring us closer to them and to Thee. Teach us to quit passing judgment but to grow in grace. For Jesus' sake. . . . . Amen.

Original Sports Heroes

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding the letter from the wife who felt "left out" because her husband refused to let her see him without his partial plate:

Our wonderful father used a hair-darkener for years. He kept the bottle hidden in his tackle box on the closet shelf. Mother knew it and so did us kids, but we wouldn't have let on for anything in the world. We allowed Father to keep his "secret" because to have done otherwise would have been cruel.

Part of successful living is the ability to make allowances for the harmless personality quirks of others. It cost us nothing to let Father think he had us fooled. To the day he died he believed he had "put it over," and I'm sure he felt good about it. --- FOUR CHILDREN WHO LOVED HIM

Dear Children: Somebody put some solid ideas into your heads and I'll bet it was your mother.

One of the most admirable of all traits is to be in the know and not have to advertise it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 23 and have been going with an attractive girl who is 20. A few weeks ago she threw a half-eaten ice cream cone out of the car into the street. I pulled over to the curb, got out, scooped up the mess and put it in the nearest trash container. She said I must be some kind of a nut.

On our next date she threw a candy wrapper out the car window. Again I stopped, picked it up and kept it in the glove compartment. She called me a "prissy old maid."

Last night she threw a malted milk container into the street. I told her THIS time SHE was going to pick it up. She got mad, said I was a jerk and refused. I picked up the container and drove her home. She got out of the car, and slammed the door in my face.

This morning I received a telegram saying that unless I sent a wire of apology she would never speak to me again. Am I petty and domineering as she insists? ---MR. CLEAN

Dear Mr.: The girl sounds immature and plenty sloppy. Some cities fine litterbugs as much as $50 for such antics.

You owe her no apology. And think twice before you accept hers. She sounds like bad news.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is 48 years old and we have been married for 23 years. I am telling you this at the beginning so you won't get the idea that we are teen-age newlyweds.

Before my husband goes to work he stops off at his mother's house for coffee and a bagel. If he isn't there by 8:45 she calls up and says, "Is Irving sick?"

On his way home from work he stops at his mother's again. She gives him a bowl of chicken soup or some chopped herring --- just enough to spoil his appetite for my supper.

Before he goes to bed he telephones his mother to say good night. If he doesn't call her by 11:00 she calls and asks, "Is Irving all right?"

This has been going on for 23 years and I am fed up. Am I unreasonable? Tell me what to do. ---IRVING'S WIFE

Dear Wife: If this has been going on for 23 years you should be used to it. Irving is not going to change, so accept, with grace, his attachment to his mother because it will last as long as she lives.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect from Marriage," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

REA BANKS

I have joined 18 other Senators, including Sen. Edward V. Hearings were held on a similar bill in the last session, but it was not acted on by the Congress.

Two Federal banks would be created, a Federal Electric Bank and a Federal Telephone Bank, following the proven pattern of the Farm Credit banks. Originally capital would be supplied by the government, but as soon as possible, the Banks would be owned and operated by the electric and telephone systems.

A.I.D. SAVINGS

The first procurement of steel for Vietnam by the Agency for International Development under an amendment to the Foreign Assistance Act which I supported last year indicates that from $3 to $5 million dollars will be saved on steel purchases during this fiscal year.

The amendment requires A.I.D. purchases of iron and steel products for Vietnam to be on a 90 per cent U.S. component basis. The first purchase by A.I.D. under the amendment resulted in a savings of $15.00 per ton of galvanized steel as compared with prices paid last year for similar products to Korean-Japanese sources.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE WELL-FORTIFIED STUDENT

The United States Army moved in to protect a Negro who was getting an education at a Southern university. The Army, as it turned out, got an education also -- in high finance. The university subsequently submitted a bill to it for the Army's occupation of its campus -- sort of like reparations.

"That's absurd," was the Army's initial reaction. "We were ordered to move in by federal order to insure the student's safety. We weren't there because we wanted to be there."

"Our premise is very simple," retorted a university official. "Since you occupied our premises, a landlord and tenant relationship was created. You were the tenant and we were the landlord. And, like any other person who occupies the land of another, you've got to pay a fair and reasonable rental value for that occupation."

And so, without firing a shot, the Army surrendered. It consented to pay the bill. But, further approval had to be obtained before the bill could be paid.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you consider the university entitled to the "reparations" sought?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that there was never any intention on the part of the Army to pay rent or to establish a landlord-tenant relationship. What's more, the judge added, the reasons and circumstances of the occupation did not support an intention to establish a landlord-tenant relationship.

The Prayer From The Upper Room

You should not get into the habit of admitting your sins to one another, and praying for one another. (James 5:15, Phillips)

PRAYER: Dear Father, help us to listen to Thee as well as to petition Thee. Teach us the art of listening creatively to our brothers so that confession and communion can bring us closer to them and to Thee. Teach us to quit passing judgment but to grow in grace. For Jesus' sake. . . . . Amen.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding the letter from the wife who felt "left out" because her husband refused to let her see him without his partial plate:

Our wonderful father used a hair-darkener for years. He kept the bottle hidden in his tackle box on the closet shelf. Mother knew it and so did us kids, but we wouldn't have let on for anything in the world. We allowed Father to keep his "secret" because to have done otherwise would have been cruel.

Part of successful living is the ability to make allowances for the harmless personality quirks of others. It cost us nothing to let Father think he had us fooled. To the day he died he believed he had "put it over," and I'm sure he felt good about it. --- FOUR CHILDREN WHO LOVED HIM

Dear Children: Somebody put some solid ideas into your heads and I'll bet it was your mother.

One of the most admirable of all traits is to be in the know and not have to advertise it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 23 and have been going with an attractive girl who is 20. A few weeks ago she threw a half-eaten ice cream cone out of the car into the street. I pulled over to the curb, got out, scooped up the mess and put it in the nearest trash container. She said I must be some kind of a nut.

On our next date she threw a candy wrapper out the car window. Again I stopped, picked it up and kept it in the glove compartment. She called me a "prissy old maid."

Last night she threw a malted milk container into the street. I told her THIS time SHE was going to pick it up. She got mad, said I was a jerk and refused. I picked up the container and drove her home. She got out of the car, and slammed the door in my face.

This morning I received a telegram saying that unless I sent a wire of apology she would never speak to me again. Am I petty and domineering as she insists? ---MR. CLEAN

Dear Mr.: The girl sounds immature and plenty sloppy. Some cities fine litterbugs as much as $50 for such antics.

You owe her no apology. And think twice before you accept hers. She sounds like bad news.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is 48 years old and we have been married for 23 years. I am telling you this at the beginning so you won't get the idea that we are teen-age newlyweds.

Before my husband goes to work he stops off at his mother's house for coffee and a bagel. If he isn't there by 8:45 she calls up and says, "Is Irving sick?"

On his way home from work he stops at his mother's again. She gives him a bowl of chicken soup or some chopped herring --- just enough to spoil his appetite for my supper.

Before he goes to bed he telephones his mother to say good night. If he doesn't call her by 11:00 she calls and asks, "Is Irving all right?"

This has been going on for 23 years and I am fed up. Am I unreasonable? Tell me what to do. ---IRVING'S WIFE

Dear Wife: If this has been going on for 23 years you should be used to it. Irving is not going to change, so accept, with grace, his attachment to his mother because it will last as long as she lives.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 22, the 53rd day of 1967. There are 312 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1732, George Washington was born.

On this date

In 1748, Count Casimier Pulaski, a hero of the American Revolution, was born in Poland.

In 1810, Frederic Chopin, the Polish composer, was born.

In 1879, Frank Woolworth opened his first five cent store in Utica, N.Y.

In 1929, the Kellogg-Briand anti-War Pact was ratified by the Parliament of Canada.

In 1942, it was announced that native tribesmen in the Philippines had completely wiped out an invading Japanese regiment.

Ten years ago — A U.S. Air Force "Globemaster" transport plane crashed in the Han River northwest of Seoul, Korea. There were 159 persons aboard the plane. At least nine were killed and 13 others were reported missing.

Five years ago — A freight train and a passenger train collided near Cali, Colombia, and at least 40 persons were killed.

One year ago — Gen. Maxwell Taylor said the Viet Cong might be included in a coalition government in South Vietnam through free elections.

IS ANY PERFECT?
When one's measure is taken
In the balances for the prize
Or the penalty to be had,
That which may well determine
The judgment could be whether
The good weighs more than the bad.
